PREFACE

For the last 20 years I have pursuing my ancestors and the history that surrounds them. My interest was heightened very early in my childhood, when I sat with my grandmother, Annie Scarborough JOYNES Marsh, on her porch in Chesconnessex VA, rocking in a chair, while she told me stories of her and my grandfather, Lewis H. Marsh's family. The one thing that struck me about her tales of the Marsh family was that she said that my grandfather's grandfather was a Northern carpet bagger, who, with good Northern money came to Chesconnessex VA after the Civil War and bought all the land from the Wise family. She also told me that the farm we were on was owned by Peter Evans who had a wife Triphenia and theirs were the tombstones that were no more than 30 feet from the back door. For years I looked for the Marshes in New England not knowing that they were only as far north as Smith's Island and the Maryland-Virginia State Line. It was a cousin on my Joynes side who told me of that there were Marshes living on Smith's Island who somehow were related to my Marshes. That day opened a whole trunk full of information and enabled me to find what will be included here. By finding my Marshes I have also found many new friends and relations. Among the many are Miss Virginia Evans and Miss Audrey Brimer, who are the grandchildren of my great great grandfather John W. Marsh's brother Benjamin. To this list must be added Jennings L. and Edwina Evans, their son Benjy, Allen and Hester Smith, and Wes and Faye Bradshaw, who treat my husband and I like family and whom I dearly love.

I have yet to cross the Chesapeake Bay to look for the ancestors of Charles Marsh and Nancy Dameron but I know that they are there for I do find some Marshes in the records there. I had been told that most of the Marshes who arrived in the Colonies did settle in New England but there is one family that did settle in St. George County MD and Northumberland Virginia in the 1700's.

The genealogy of all the families of Smith's Island including the Marshes, is very complex and difficult to do and it took a network of many local genealogists and historians to compile. My thanks here go to Rebecca F. Miller, Barry and Moody Miles, and Phillip Goldsborough. Each one of us held some of the pieces of the puzzle and together we made a whole picture.

THE DESCENDANTS OF WALTER H. MARSH

Charles Marsh, the progenitor of the MARSH FAMILY of the Eastern Shore of Maryland was born in Northumberland County, Virginia circa 1780.
