PREFACE

For the last 20 years I have been my ancestors and the history that surrounds them. My interest was heightened very early in my childhood when I sat with my grandmother, Annie Scarburgh JOYNES Marsh on her porch, rocking in a chair, while she told me of her and my grandfather, Lewis H. Marsh's families. The one thing that struck me about her stories of the Marsh Family was that she had said that my grandfather's grandfather was a Northern carpetbagger who, with good Northern money, came to Chesconnessex VA after the Civil War and bought all the land from the Wise Family. She also said that the farm we were on was once owned by Peter Evans who had a wife Triphenia and theirs were the tombstones that were no more than 30 feet from the back door. For years I looked for my Marsh Family in New England, not knowing that they were only as far north as Smith's Island and The Maryland-Virginia State Line. It was a cousin on my Joynes side who told me there were Marshes living on Smith's Island who were somehow related to my own. That day opened a whole trunk full of information and enabled me to find what is to be included here. By finding my Marshes I have also found many new friends and relations. Among the many are Miss "Virginia Evans and Miss "Audrey" Brimer, who are the grandchildren of my great great grandfather John W. Marsh's brother Benjamin. to this list must be added Jennings L. and Edwina Evans and their son Benjy, Allen and Hester Smith and Wes and Faye Bradshaw, who treat my husband and I like family and whom we dearly love.

I have yet to cross the Chesapeake Bay to research the ancestors of Walter H. Marsh, but at a glance I do find his parents Charles and Nancy DAMERON Marsh and others there. I had been told that most of the Marshes who arrived in the Colonies did settle in New England but there is one family that did settle in bot St. George County Maryland and Northumberland County Virginia in the early 1700s.

The genealogy of all the families of Smith's island including the Marsh Family is very complex and difficult to do and it took a network of many local genealogists and historians to compile. My thanks go to Rebecca F. Miller, Barry W. and Moody K. Miles and Philip Goldsborough. Each one held some pieces of the puzzle and together we made the whole picture.

Below is a chart of my own direct line from Walter H. Marsh down to me.
