Town sets Streetscape conference date

By LIZ HOLLAND

The contractor for Princess Anne's Streetscape work will meet with town officials and representatives from the various funding agencies for the project in a preconstruction conference on March 10. Town Manager Linda Chelton told the Town Commissioners Monday night.

The town already has the necessary funding in place and approval from the two funding agencies, the State Highway Administration and Rural Utilities Service, for the the $2.8 million job which was awarded in January to David G. Horsey & Sons of Laurel.

The town is expected to give Horsey a 30-day notice to proceed within a week of the conference date, Chelton said.

The project should take five to six months to complete.

Monday night, the commissioners agreed to keep town residents and business owners updated on the various phases of the project by posting regular notices in high-traffic areas in town, including banks, town, county and state offices and local businesses.

The work — which will include the downtown revitalization project known as Streetscape, plus the replacement of stormdrains — will often necessitate the rerouting of traffic.

Emergency services agencies, such as the Princess Anne Volunteer Fire Company and the county 911 center, will be notified on a regular basis of temporary changes to traffic patterns.

Work will take place one block at a time, beginning in the section of Somerset Avenue between the Manokin River and Broad Street.

Weekly updates on the project, as well as traffic detour information, will also be published each week in the Somerset Herald until the work concludes.

Streetscape will include landscaping, plus new streetlights, sidewalks and curbs on Somerset Avenue from Broad to Washington Streets, and on Prince William Street between Church and Beechwood Streets.

It will also include new storm drains from the Manokin River to William Street. At the same time the storm drain work is being done, the Somerset County Sanitary District plans to replace water mains under the street.

UMES adds physician assistant program

Students at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore will soon be able to study to be physician assistants in a new degree-granting program offered at the Princess Anne campus.

"This will be the second of two professional health care programs within the university," said department Chairwoman Brenda Jasper. "The PA program is one of three in the state of Maryland, UMES being the only one to offer a BA degree."

Currently there are 31,000 PAs in the United States, 3.1 percent of whom are African-Americans. Due to the low percentage of African-Americans entering the field, UMES, a historically black institution, will serve as an outlet for all students but will also encourage African-Americans to plan their careers in this field.

Emphasis in the program will be placed on provision of access for minority and underserved populations.

"Working as a PA will allow you as a licensed professional to practice medicine while being supervised by a head physician," said Jasper. "As a part of their on-going responsibilities, PAs are expected to conduct physical exams, diagnose and treat illnesses, order and interpret test, counsel on preventive health care, assist in surgery, and in most states, allowed to write prescriptions."

Students entering the UMES PA Program are expected to possess the essential cognitive, physical and behavioral abilities to assimilate knowledge, develop skill and good judgment.

Working with many patients, students are expected to work hand in hand with physicians and other medical professionals in order to

By LIZ HOLLAND

Anyone who's been hankering for a taste of Hotel Inn muskrat this winter will now get their chance.

After a long wait, 'rats are back.

Muskrat season starts in January, but an icy winter prevented trappers from getting into the marshes until recently. And muskrats from other parts of the country and Canada were not good quality this year, causing some local suppliers to drop them altogether.

Friday night — the traditional muskrat night at the Hotel Inn — was only the second time the dish was served there this year.

"People have been calling us 'round the clock (asking for muskrat)," said Hotel Inn owner Bill Green. "They prefer the recipe that's been done here for

Although longtime cook Mary Hutt is still recuperating from a stroke, she came in to teach cook Lawrence Hayes how to prepare the dish using the Hotel Inn's recipe.

The muskrats served Friday came from an Easton supplier who got them from Louisiana, but Green said local trappers should be bringing them in soon.

Although some churches and other groups, such as the Monie Gun Club, have been able to get muskrats for their annual dinners this year, Green said they came from local trappers who stockpile them in freezers for those events.

But with no way to get through a frozen marsh to set traps, there weren't enough muskrats available for suppliers and restaurants.

Two local trappers started setting traps last week, and hope to be able to supply the Hotel Inn. "It should be pretty steady now," Green said.

Trappers who are interested in selling muskrats to the Hotel Inn may call Green at 410-651-2526.

Officials on the lookout for illness in students

County school officials are asking parents to be on the lookout for symptoms in their children of listeria monocytogenes, bacteria that may have been in a shipment of chicken nuggets served at Washington High School.

The chicken was served Feb. 18, but no illnesses had been reported as of Friday, said Dr. Michael Thomas, superintendent of schools.

The school system was not notified of possible contamination until Feb. 22.

As of Friday, school and health department officials were still not certain if the shipment from Alabama-based Goldkist was contaminated.

The chicken nuggets sent to Somerset County were recalled because listeria was found in another box of nuggets from the same lot, but shipped to another state.

As a precaution, school officials confiscated three other shipments sent to Somerset, and Thomas notified county health officials.

The chances appear to be slim of anyone getting sick from the nuggets served on Feb. 18.

Listeria is killed when food is heated to 165 degrees, and Thomas said temperature records show the chicken at Washington High School reached between 167 and 168 degrees.

The incubation period for listeriosis is three to 70 days, and Washington students were given a fact sheet to take home to their parents Friday.

Listeria rarely causes a serious problem for healthy adults and children, but it can pose serious health risks for pregnant women, newborns, the elderly or people with serious medical conditions.

TLC nears end of medical, dental expansion

By LIZ HOLLAND

After years of employees working in cramped quarters and patients having to wait months for appointments, a Princess Anne health care facility will begin taking new patients today.

Three Lower Counties Community Services, which provides both medical and dental care to residents of Somerset, Worcester and Wicomico counties, is nearing the end of an 18-month expansion which not only will provide more room, but additional staff members as well.

The new dental clinic opened for business last month in an addition to the existing Elm Street building. It will be followed by renovations to the old building, which will be used for medical examination rooms and administrative offices.

Currently two dentists are on staff at TLC, but executive director Joan Robbins said two more will be hired soon followed by two more at a later date. Additionally, two more dental hygienists will be hired.

The service is an important one, Robbins said, because only 17 percent of children in Maryland have access to dental care.

Once the medical section of the building is renovated, there will be seven to 10 examination rooms used by three internists, four pediatricians and a family nurse practitioner, Robbins said.

TLC, a private nonprofit organization, receives 20 percent of its annual budget from federal grants which pay the bills of people without insurance.

The facility qualifies for federal funding because the three Lower Shore counties have been designated an underserved area for both medical and dental care.

Under the terms of the grant, TLC must provide case management, transportation to the facility, translation services and an outreach program. It also must offer a medical and dental program for migrant workers in the summer months.

Although many of TLC's clients require assistance with their bills, 59 percent of patients have either private or public insurance.

A grand opening of the new building is planned in May.

Dr. Sandra Garbely-Kerkovich, left, and certified dental assistant Laura Anderson examine Niki Lee's teeth at the new TLC dental center in Princess Anne.

Antioch UM Church

Because God speaks to people in so many ways, we should seek every conceivable means of creative expression to respond to God.

No single form is completely adequate for all persons, but singing using the voice with God has endowed us — is perhaps our most effective means of expressing our faith. We can participate empathically in many art forms, but singing provides a nearly universal means of active involvement that satisfies people's need for expression as few other forms can.

In singing, people actually expend their energies and participate with body, mind, and spirit. Speech can be dramatic and profound, but speech seldom reaches the emotional heights of song — and singing demands more self-giving than speech, more physical energy, more intense concentration, and more fervent emotional preparation. Likewise, singing unites people more effectively than perhaps any other kinds of response requiring precise rhythmic ensemble and the matching of tone in melody and harmony. Thus while singing is one of the most natural and universal forms of expression, it is also one of the most demanding.

Why sing? Because the unique nature of human song provides the ideal means by which we can respond to our Creator.

RECIPE BOX

Compiled by Shirley W. Richards

Do you often wonder, when cooking, where you learned those little "secrets" for making more delicious dishes, and from whom?

One of those "mysteries" is "put a piece of suet in when cooking your roast beef." Does it make the gravy browner or offer a better taste? Why the suet?

Then, the question of pot holders.

I have several, barely used, that I have had for many years, and a few of them were made for me by "little" Vicki Reid when she lived on Irving street in Princess Anne on a little square peg board, but which ones are they?

And, of course, we've all heard of the "pinch" when cooking, that is Liz Warwick's way of cooking, just a little "pinch" of this or that.

Then, in order to save your steel wool, dry it in the sun or on a radiator after each use, that will prevent rusting or becoming unpleasant. Unpleasant?

THE ROAD TO A HEALTHIER HEART

When Salisbury native Bob Hearn set out July 13 in his pickup to Cambridge, he had no idea where he would actually end up that day. Passing a vehicle at 60 m.p.h., he began to feel faint. He lost consciousness, then awoke to find his car barreling through a ditch, knocking down trees like "pins in a bowling alley." Amazed to be alive, he phoned 911 and was taken to the region's premier Heart Center at Peninsula Regional Medical Center.

Lucky for Bob, Dr. Emmanuel Nsah, a specialist in heart irregularities at the Heart Center, immediately performed a sophisticated electrophysiology study to determine what had caused Bob to pass out. Dr. Nsah found Bob's heart, operating at 17% capacity after two previous heart attacks, was beating at the abnormally high rate of 200 beats per minute. Without immediate intervention, Bob was at risk for Sudden Cardiac Death. Bob needed an Automatic Implantable Cardiac Defibrillator to regulate his heartbeat - and quickly. The AICD would "shock" his heart back into a normal rhythm if it started beating irregularly again.

After having the AICD surgery at Peninsula Regional, Bob exclaimed,

"I was so grateful to be treated at home rather than having to go to Baltimore or Washington. The care I received at the Heart Center was second to none."

Today, Bob is alive and doing well, thanks to Dr. Nsah and the electrophysiology lab at Peninsula Heart Center. The care Bob Hearn received is just one example of the high-technology and quality services the Heart Center provides all its patients close to home. An Eye On Art Prepare artwork before moving

By PAMELA MCCREADY

During our second year in business, a lady called to ask should she pack her art for the movers to pick up or should she carry it with her in the three family cars? The is not a simple question to answer. She was first referred to the moving company. Not all movers are equipped to move art. My first question would be, "Do you store in boxes or crates?" If boxes, does each have an insulating insert against road shocks and shifting? Are you storing for shipment at a later date? Is the warehouse climate controlled? When the total shipment is sealed in the are house, is it conducive to protecting the art you are storing? Again, keep in mind, artwork should not be placed in cool, damp, dark, or very hot areas, i.e. basements or attics. Visit the moving or storage company before making a final decision on one company to move or store your valuable art. Whether you are taking the art home from the framers, or to a new home, a few simple, but significant safety tips may prove to be invaluable and reduce the risk to your artwork.

With original works of art on canvas, carry these items by supporting the artwork equally with two hands on either side. This reduces stress. Lifting from the top increases stress to the supports and weakens the joined areas of the stretcher or frame.

If the painting is small, carry it facing you. Otherwise away from you. Large paintings may rub against your clothing which anything but PH balanced. Be careful not to let your fingers get between the canvas and the stretcher bar as this will cause pressure and possible distortions on the surface of the painting.

Fingerprints on any art media is also a problem. It is one of the most common forms of damage and one of the most difficult to reverse. Breakdown on paper or canvas surfaces from oil, sweat, acid and dirt make an unappealing appearance. Canvas that has not been primed and heavy all-rag paper are vulnerable due to the nature of their surfaces, which are textured and contain permeable fibers. Keeping hands clean or wearing white cotton gloves reduces the risk when transporting unframed art. Stone will also collect fingerprint acid build-up. On bronze-corrosion.

Heavy art objects, such as sculpture, may require transport with a dolly, bracing each object with tow-by-four boards. It is not a good idea to lift a sculpture by protruding parts such as hands, arms, accents, decorations, etc. Support from the base with two hands lends less danger to the entire structure and its parts.

Keeping your paintings or framed art and sculptures elevated off the floor will prevent dirt and dust from contaminating the bottom edges of the work. It will also decrease the risk in the event of spills or flooding. Elevate your art on pads, bumpers, or carpeted blocks of wood when storing. Matting also protects unframed pieces of art on paper.

Storage units should be in a well-ventilated, climate controlled area, away from external walls, radiators, heat vents, direct sunlight, overhead lighting and drafts. Do not store near toxic substances, tools, saws, or other sharp objects. The area should be free from dirt, clutter and dust. Cover all works of art on paper in sleeves to protect against the elements-dust, dirt, light, and abrasion; and interleaved with acid-free tissue paper in boxes, folders, or portfolios.

Storage boxes that offer maximum protection are available from any custom framer on special order if not available through the moving company. Be sure to allow time for shipping and handling well in advance of your move. Six to eight weeks may be needed for delivery.

Making the right decisions about how to store or move your art can make the difference in keeping your cherished art for a life-time or having to go out and buy new art once you have moved.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Septic tank bill is ludicrous

Editor:

With respect to the Septic System Bill (HB 283/SB 210) requiring an astronomical expense to the homeowners as brought out in the meeting on Feb. 19, on Deal Island.

It is absolutely ludicrous in view of the following: Many people simply cannot afford it. As pointed out in the meeting, this could possibly be a ploy to get a sewage treatment plant which in turn would raise taxes.

Some years ago, there was a three-state study which indicated individual septic systems were the best way to go.

Also brought out in the meeting was that a golf course in the Annapolis area put more nitrogen in the bay than Somerset County all together, and quite a bit of nitrogen came from the western shore.

Rather than saddle the homeowners and taxpayers with such an expense, why not, on a local basis perhaps, set up a limited inspection plan for maintenance of existing septic systems, pumping out every few years if needed. (Most septic systems last at least 20 years).

I had a septic system in the Chestertown area for 30 years, and it was in good condition per inspection when the residence was sold.

The funds for such a limited undertaking can either be Somerset County, (which has a surplus of $985,000 for 1999) or from monies in every state, county, and municipality. These funds are outside the funds in the yearly budgets and amount to, in many instances, millions of dollars unknown to taxpayers.

Information concerning the set funds can be obtained from the state auditor, or treasurer, or finance officer, by asking for the Comprehensive Annual Finance Report (CAFR).

Further information on the CAFR can be obtained on the Internet using the search engine for CAFR or e-mailing Walter J. Burien at CEV12000@aol.com or contacting Tony Blizzard, 300 Independence Ave., S.E., Washington, DC 20003.

At the meeting on Deal Island, it is my understanding there were over 300 signatures against the septic tank bill and no one for it.

Keep your eyes open for artifacts unearthed outside

By JOHN V DENNIS

With warmer weather here at last, many of us are starting to do some gardening. As we dig up the soil in flower beds or plots for vegetables, we should keep an eye out for any artifacts that might have been lost or buried many years ago. For example in our yard on Beechwood Street, we look for relics that may go back well into the 19th century. Our house was built by Col. George Handy, an ancestor of mine, in 1805. Therefore, some of what we find may go back almost two hundred years.

A couple of years ago, someone in a group called "Shore Seekers: Artifact and Recovery Club" asked if they could look for coins in our yard. They had a metal detector that they would use in making their search. We had no objection and they went about their business. They had good luck in a far back corner of our yard. Here they found a number of old coins. We were given one and were glad to let them keep the others.

The coin given us is exactly the size of a dime and has a round hole in its center. As far as I can make out the lettering on it, it is inscribed on one side: "Liberty, Fraternity, and Equality" and in another place "5 cents." The date on the coin is 1923.

You never know what you might turn up when digging in your yard. I had dug down a ways when transplanting a box bush and what did I find but a large cache of bones! They looked like the kind of leftover bones you might have after dining on ribs, pork, or steak. Only seven feet from the side of the house where there had once been a kitchen, the bones had been placed in a deep hole for disposal. This was back before the days of trash collectors. People often got rid of garbage by burying it. Oyster shells seem to have been scattered almost anywhere. No matter where I dig in our yard, I always turn up a few.

Back around 1950, we owned a house on Nantucket Island off the southeastern coast of Massachusetts. The house had been built in 1799 by a whaling captain. Back in the whaling days of the 18th and 19th centuries, the island was the chief port for whaling ships that cruised the oceans in search of whales whose blubber was turned into oil. It was a risky but profitable business.

One day, when digging a bed for a small vegetable, I began turning up old clay pipes, medicine bottles, and, the most amazing find of all — a sword. The medicine bottles, some of which still contained medicine, were in bottles that dated back to around 1900 and were in a separate cache. I can see how the bottles might have been tossed out after the person taking the medications had died. But why would anyone bury a perfectly good sword?

The older the house and adjacent property, the better the chances of finding old relics worth keeping. Something of real importance should be properly identified and made available to historical societies.

Thank You

I would like to thank C.H. Hayman for doing a wonderful job, for their excellent service and for all their help to my business. Their prices were highly competitive on materials supplied.

*Thank you again,
Paul Thornton*

Children Grow Better in Families.

Become an Adoptive Parent.

There are approximately 1,300 children in Maryland with a plan of adoption. These children have been removed from their biological families due to abuse, neglect or abandonment. Now they need a permanent family to call their own. Could you be that family?

Perhaps you are interested, but believe you would not qualify to be an adoptive parent. Quality families come in various forms. The ability to accept a child's special needs, remain committed to them, and offer them the love and stability they need is what is important.

- You do not need to own your own home
- You do not have to be married
- You do not have to make a lot of money
- There are no age restrictions
- There are no educational requirements
- You can adopt even if you work outside the home
- People with disabilities or medical problems are often eligible to adopt
- You can adopt even if you have biological children
- Public agencies do not charge for adoption services

Who Are the Children?

Although there are few Caucasian babies and toddlers available through public agency adoption, there are many older white children and African American children of all ages waiting for families. Waiting children are often of school age and may have emotional, behavioral, or physical disabilities due to their life experiences. Some are brothers and sisters who need to be adopted together. All of them need families.

Conference focus on women, heart disease

Peninsula Regional Medical Center and Salisbury State University are joining forces to educate area women about heart disease.

Four out of five women do not realize that heart disease—not breast cancer—is the biggest killer of American women. Women tend to dismiss heart disease as a "male" disease, but the main difference between the sexes is not whether women are likely to get coronary heart disease but when. It takes almost a decade longer to show up in women and women are more likely to shake off symptoms that shouldn't be ignored.

To promote awareness, Health Education in the New Millennium Women & Cardiovascular Disease will be presented Friday night, March 3, from 5 to 8:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall at SSU.

The evening will begin with a reception (heavy hors d'oeuvres and wine) and numerous health screenings (cardiac risk assessment, cholesterol, blood pressure, osteoporosis and "Legs for Life") will be offered.

Three physicians from the Peninsula Heart Center, Drs. Joseph Cinderella, Dennis Chodnicki, and James Todd, will teach how to be "Heart Smart," discussing how to prevent heart disease and what to expect if you develop it.

Charlotte Libov, the keynote speaker, will present "50 Essential Things To Do When The Doctor Says It's Heart Disease." Author of several best-selling books on women and heart disease, Libov describes her journey from couch potato to heart patient to award-winning medical journalist. An entertaining and motivational speaker, she is also founder of National Women's Heart Health Day and editor of Women's Health HotLine, the award-winning Internet newsletter at www.libov.com

The cost to attend the conference is $25 for adults, $15 for students. Preregistration is required; the deadline is Feb. 25. To receive information or a registration brochure, call 410-543-7123 or 800-955-0202.

Surprise party

Linda Bishop of Crisfield, a patient in the comprehensive care unit of McCready Memorial Hospital in Crisfield, was treated to a surprise birthday party Feb. 14 given by Social Services Department. She received gifts, and cake and punch were served. With her are nurse Bonnie Mack, left, and social worker Teresa Bowers.

Diabetes education starts March 21

Diabetes education classes will be held this month to discuss nutrition, foot care, glucose monitoring, exercise and other self-management skills to help assist with diabetes control.

Participants will meet in a Medical Center classroom on five of six consecutive Tuesdays from 10 a.m. to noon beginning March 21.

Class will not meet on April 18. There is a registration fee and pre-registration is required because class size is limited.

For more information or to register, please call the Peninsula Regional Diabetes Outpatient Education Program at 410-543-7061.

The Crisfield High School Crabbers pose after winning the Bayside Conference Championship.

Crisfield beats out Easton in Bayside Championship

By JANICE MILLER

The Crisfield High School Crabbers added another notch in the win column and another trophy in the trophy case last Wednesday as they rolled to a 77 - 54 victory over the Easton High School Warriors in the Bayside Conference Championship last Wednesday.

Four Crabbers scored in double figures with Andre Collins leading the way. "It was a great team effort," said Collins. "The key was when we went to the press in the second half. We have had to learn not to lay back when we have a lead. We defiantly can't do that in the tournament. The press helped us keep the lead and improve on it instead of letting the other team get close."

Easton scored the first basket of the game but that was the last time the game was even close. At the end of the first quarter CHS was ahead by 8 points. The Crabbers kept pouring it on and held a commanding 15 point advantage at the half.

"If we have a second half like our first we will be OK," said Coach Phil Rayfield at halftime. The second half was a good one for the Crabbers. On defense they were more aggressive, double teaming the ball and keeping Easton outside. The Crabbers dominated on the boards, allowing Easton just one shot at a time.

Easton's defense was no match for the mighty Crabber offense. Late in the second half Easton tried to put pressure on the ball with a full court press. Collins and Mark Bell were able to weave through the defenders like they were running through a practice drill. The Crabbers ran every play to near perfection, hitting three-point shots and slam dunks with ease.

Senior Sherman Holmes, who is also being courted by several Division I and Division II colleges was excited with the win. "It feels good. I've never won a championship before, it feels real good," Holmes said. "We played a good team game. We played our game."

Collins led all scorers with 31 points, including six three-pointers. Kirk Jackson netted 16 points, and Holmes and Mitchell Sterling had 10 apiece. Bell had eight points, including two three-pointers. Demetrius Campbell, who started the season on the JV team, sank the last bucket of the game on a buzzer-beating drive down the center of the lane.

The Crabbers earned the top seed in the State East Regional play-off tournament. They received a BYE in the first round and are scheduled to play either Kent County or Colonel Richardson in the second round.

WEEKLY SPORTS WRAPUP

By JANICE MILLER

Great news high school sports fans! The Maryland Public Secondary Schools Athletic Association has finally heard the cries of coaches, parents, and writers across the state and decided to revise the tournament selection process.

Previously, when tournament time came each high school team's name was placed in a lottery and drawn out at random. No regard was given to season record. The first team to be drawn received the first seed, the second team the second seed, and so forth until each team had a spot in the tournament bracket. The last time the old system was used was with the 1999 Fall Sports tournament.

In the new system the top four teams are seeded according to their regular season record. The rest of the teams are then placed in the lottery and drawn out at random. Seeds 1 - 5 receive a bye in the first round.

It is a step in the right direction. It looks pretty good on paper. "The proof is in the pudding" as they say here in Somerset County. We will have to wait to see how it all plays out.

Crisfield Lady Crabbers 32 - Cambridge-South Dorchester 30 — When the Crisfield High School boys basketball team played Easton High School at the Civic Center for the Bayside Championship last Wednesday the stands were filled with students, staff, and alumni from the two high schools. There were cheerleaders, the CHS Pep Band, media, college coaches, and other fans in attendance. There was an excitement in the air as only a championship game can produce.

Two days later when the Lady Crabbers visited the Civic Center for the first game of the Class 1A East Region Playoffs the stands were nearly empty, the cheerleaders and Pep Band were absent, but the excitement was still there. The playoffs had begun. It was "do or die" time. As CHS Coach Greg Bozman put it, "If you lose, it's next year."

It was an exciting game from the opening tip off to the final buzzer. Kia White hit a bomb from three-point land for the game's first points.

Three minutes later Cambridge went ahead 7 - 5. The first quarter ended with Cambridge ahead 10 - 9.

Crisfield got the lead back in the second quarter but Cambridge rallied and tied the score with 1:30 left in the half. The teams went to the locker room tied at 17.

Both teams had trouble finding the basket in the third quarter. Crisfield was the first to score when Nichole Brown finally got a lay-up to fall with 3:50 remaining in the quarter.

The fourth quarter started with the Lady Crabbers ahead 23 - 19. Another basket put them ahead 25 - 19 for their biggest lead of the game.

Cambridge then started to chip away at the lead. With 3:15 left in the game Cambridge pulled to within one point.

Following a Crisfield time out, the Lady Crabbers went ahead 30 - 25 on two power lay-ups by Nichole Brown. With 1:26 left in the game Cambridge pulled to within three points. Seconds later Cambridge missed a three-point shot attempt. Two Crisfield moms breathed a sigh of relief. "I'm glad she missed that," one of them said. Then with 13 seconds remaining Cambridge connected on a three-pointer to tie the score.

Crisfield called a quick time out with 10 seconds remaining. Cambridge set up in a full court press. White got the inbound pass to Brown at the top of the key. Brown took the ball across the half court line and avoided a double team trap by passing back to White. White dribbled away from her defender and put up a 10-foot jumper from the left side of the foul line. As soon as the ball left her hands the final buzzer sounded.

Everyone froze as the ball arched its way to the basket. Incredibly it went in... nothing but net... swish... and suddenly the Lady Crabbers had won their first playoff game in years. Crisfield's dream season continues.

White and Brown scored 15 points each. Erica King dominated under the boards, hauling in 11 rebounds, and added the team's other two points.

Washington Lady Jaguars 54 - Kent County 40 — The Washington High School girls basketball game against Kent County on Friday evening was no less exciting than the Crisfield game. It was nip and tuck the whole way for the Lady Jaguars as they defeated Kent in their first round tournament play-off game at the Civic Center in Salisbury.

Kent jumped out to a quick 6 - 0 lead, holding the Lady Jags scoreless for the first 2 minutes of the game. WHS seemed bothered by Kent's quick and aggressive, tight man-to-man defense in the first quarter.

About half-way through the second quarter WHS settled down and started to pick away at Kent's lead. They found the "back door" open, and hit Jana White for a couple of easy lay-ups. With 2:24 left in the quarter, WHS got their first lead of the game, 17 - 16, on a three-point shot by Melissa Webster. Seconds later Kent tied the score again. The two teams traded baskets for the remainder of the half and went to the locker rooms with Kent ahead 21 - 20.

Kent continued to play their aggressive, physical man-to-man defense in the third quarter and managed to stay just out of reach of the scrambling Lady Jags for nearly the entire period. Then with 23 seconds left TaShena Burton was fouled under the offensive basket. Burton, who recently moved up from the JV team, got the bucket and made the free throw to tie the score at 31.

The fourth quarter was all Washington. They held Kent scoreless for nearly five minutes as they racked up a 10 point advantage. Kent never threatened again and WHS advanced to the second round of the tournament.

"It was ugly but I'll take it," were Coach George Stewart's first words following the game. "I'm very happy with the win. We will have to work hard to get ready for Snow Hill."

Melissa Webster led the well-balanced Lady Jags scoring attack with 12 points, Margie Johnson had 10 TaShena Burton had 9 points, Autumn Wallace had 8, Jana White added 7, LaShonda Holbrook, back from the disabled list, added 4 key points, and Danielle White and Crystal Pines had 2 points each. Burton grabbed 11 rebounds.

Pocomoke 59 - Washington Jaguars 39 — The Washington Jaguars gave Pocomoke a scare in the nightcap at the Civic Center on Friday night. After being humiliated in their first two meetings during the regular season, the Jaguars decided a change of game plan was in order.

Washington was able to slow down and confound Pocomoke's run-and-gun offense in the first quarter and were ahead 12 - 11 at the quarter's end.

Pocomoke went ahead in the second quarter and despite all their best efforts Washington could not catch them again. It was a great tournament effort.

After treatment with our lithotripter (Greek for stone crusher), all that's left of a kidney stone is mere dust.

While our patient reclines comfortably, an x-ray machine aims the lithotripter's series of pulsating waves toward the stone - reducing it without invasive surgery. The advantages of lithotripsy are many: no pain or scarring, minimal anesthesia, and usually just a few days recovery. Since the Peninsula Stone Center has the area's only on-site lithotripter, treatment can happen when you need it. 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

To learn more, contact your physician. If you need a physician, call our Physician Referral Line at 410-543-7090 or 1-888-290-7090.

Finalists for SSU president named

Five finalists for the Salisbury State University presidency were announced last week by the Presidential Search and Screening Committee.

The finalists will visit the campus and meet with constituent groups in the next three to four weeks. The Presidential Search Committee, composed of members of SSU's faculty, staff and alumni, the Salisbury community and the University System of Maryland Board of Regents, will then forward the names of three of the finalists to the Board of Regents who will interview the candidates and make the final presidential decision. It is anticipated the new SSU president will be announced in April. The starting date is July 1.

The five finalists are: Dr. Wilson B. Bradshaw, provost and vice president of academic affairs, Bloomsburg University of Pennsylvania; Dr. Barbara S. Haskew, provost and vice president for academic affairs, Middle Tennessee State University; Dr. Samuel A. Kirkpatrick, senior fellow, American Association of State Colleges and Universities; Dr. Michael Rao, chancellor, Montana State University-Northern; and Dr. Richard H. Wells, provost and vice president for academic affairs, Indiana State University.

A toast to George

Tickets on sale for SSU theater

The box office is now open for the Salisbury State University Bobbi Biron Theatre Program's production of A Midsummer Night's Dream, one of Shakespeare's most youthful and popular comedies.

Performances are Friday-Saturday, March 3-4, and Wednesday-Saturday, March 8-11, at 8 p.m., with matinees Sundays, March 5 and 12, at 2 p.m., in Fulton Hall Theatre. Tickets are $8 general admission, $6 for students and senior citizens. For reservations call the SSU Theatre Box Office at 410-543-6228.

Midsummer is directed by guest artist Charles Duff of the Shakespeare International Education Centre at the Globe Theatre in London, England.

Duff has had a distinguished career as a director, teacher and scholar. His 1995 book, The Lost Summer, The Heyday of the West End Theatre, was praised by Sheridan Morley in The Sunday Times of London as "the best theatrical history" Morley had read in recent years.

Duff has worked extensively with American educators and students at the Globe and was also vice principal and director of productions for seven years at the London Theatre School. He has directed at the Shaw and Edinburgh festivals and the European Chamber and Pavilion operas.

Land of Books

Dr. Judylynn Mitchell sits in the television studio at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore where she will host a new cable TV program for children called "Land of Books." Mitchell, who is principal of West Salisbury Elementary School, will be known as Lady Read A. Long on the show which will air Mondays through Fridays at 5:30 p.m. on Comcast Channel 33 beginning this week. She will be joined by her sidekick, Book E. Lookie. The program, which is geared to children from birth to 6, will entertain children and provide reading tips to parents. The show is a joint presentation of UMES, Comcast and the Wicomico County Free Library.

Stanley Turrentine

Saxophonist plays at UMES

Legendary jazz saxophonist Stanley Turrentine will perform tonight at 8 with the UMES Jazz Ensemble at the Ella Fitzgerald Center for Performing Arts on campus.

Turrentine formed his first jazz band, Four Bees and a Bop, in high school. His first professional gig was with his brother, trumpeter Tommy Turrentine, at the Perry Bar in Pittsburgh. In his 20s, Turrentine performed with the 158th Army Band, followed by a stint in Tadd Dameron's group. The next year, he replaced John Coltrane in Earl Bostic's band.

Turrentine made his Blue Note Records debut as a sideman on organist Jimmy Smith's now classic "Midnight Special" album.

In 1985, Turrentine returned to revived Blue Note Records where he was reunited with George Benson, Jimmy Smith and Les McCann on the album "Straight Ahead," followed by the Wonderland project. In the '90s, he switched to MusicMasters Records, recording three more albums.

The concert is free and open to the public. For more information contact John Lamkin at 410-651-6576.

Manokin residents fight public water plan

By LIZ HOLLAND

Residents of Manokin, who currently draw their drinking water from private wells, said last week they cannot afford the quarterly fees of a public water system proposed by the Somerset County Sanitary Commission.

Many of the homeowners in the rural village are retired and living on fixed incomes, which would prevent them from being able to pay the average $150 hook-up fee, the annual front foot assessment or the minimum $30.65 quarterly fee, opponents said at a public hearing before the Somerset County Commissioners on Feb.

But the Sanitary Commission, as well as the county Health Department, have recommended building a public water system after tests on private wells showed high levels of chlorides, iron and bacteria, according to Tony Bruce, attorney for the Sanitary Commission.

The quarterly fee for a new system would actually be less than what residents are paying now for electricity to run their pumps and maintenance on water treatment systems in their homes, Bruce said.

Since a new system would also include the installation of fire hydrants, homeowners would also likely see some savings on their insurance bills, he said.

The boundaries of the proposed Manokin water district are Back Creek on the north, Big Annemessex River on the south, Hood Road and Waters Farm Road on the west and Millard Long and River Roads on the east.

The main line would run up Route 361 and would include 1,000 feet each of Millard Long Road and River Road, plus all of Fontaine, Adams and Maddox Roads.

It will not include either Hood or Waters Farm Roads.

About 40 homes would be within the new district.

The cost of the new system would be $720,800, but 81 percent would be funded by a grant through the U.S. Department of Agriculture program called Water 2000. The remaining amount would be borrowed from Rural Utilities Service, the former Farmers Home Administration.

The Manokin water district would be tied in to the existing Fairmount sanitary district, which would eliminate the need for a new water tower or well.

However, Manokin residents would continue to use their existing septic systems instead of being connected to Fairmount's sewer system.

Before public water can be installed, the creation of the Manokin district must be approved by the County Commissioners.

If it is approved, the Sanitary Commission must then work out the specifics and hold more public hearings before it is built.

The County Commissioners will accept written comment on the proposed water system until 2 p.m. on Tuesday, March 14.

Letters may be mailed to: Charles Massey, County Administrator, Somerset County Commissioners Office, P.O. Box 37, Princess Anne, Md. 21853.

Princess Anne Primary School students cheer during a Read Across America Day celebration at the school last week.

Schools celebrate progress in reading

By LIZ HOLLAND

The scene at Princess Anne Primary School last week was one seen at schools across the state and nation.

It was Read Across America Day, as well as what would have been the 96th birthday of popular children's author Dr. Seuss, and schoolchildren were treated to free ice cream, plus a program that included songs and a visit from the Cat in the Hat who read Hooray For Diffendoofer Day, Seuss' last book.

But at Princess Anne Primary — as well as other schools across the county — there was an even bigger reason to have a party: Since September, reading scores have soared.

In the second grade at Princess Anne Primary alone, the number of students reading below their grade level has dropped from 69 percent to 29 percent.

The improvement is due to a new reading curriculum that started countywide in September under the direction of Dr. Peter DeWitz, a consultant hired by the school system after local schools scored poorly on the Maryland State Performance Assessment tests.

A mid-year report showed dramatic improvements at Princess Anne and Whittington primary schools and Marion and Westover elementary schools, with the majority of students now reading at or above their grade levels.

DeWitz began a study of the county schools last year, and started pilot programs at Whittington Primary and Westover Elementary. The promising results at both schools led to the program this year in all elementary schools.

The program includes a reading specialist in each school, lower teacher-to-student ratios for struggling readers, reading intervention

SSU takes over Ward Museum

By DIANE FREDA

Salisbury State University announced Friday it will take over the Ward Museum of Wildfowl Art — a deal hailed by school officials as a better way to showcase authentic Eastern Shore culture and save the financially strapped wildfowl museum from bankruptcy.

No money was exchanged in the deal the calls for the university to take control of the museum's $8.5 million in assets and assume its $1.6 million in debt incurred during 1992 to pay for the Beaglin Park Drive building.

"The debt has been a limiting factor from that day to this," said Fulton Jeffers, The Ward Foundation's chairman of the Board of Directors. "We have been limited in what we could do."

The building and exhibits now belong to the university, which will be part of hiring the next executive director. However, the museum will continue as a nonprofit organization and run its programs and exhibits independently of the university. The Ward Foundation will continue to run the museum's day-to-day operations — including the internationally renowned wildfowl carving competition.

The deal should be formalized by April 27 and a new executive director should be installed by that date.

Meanwhile, the university has scripted a three-year plan to eliminate the $1.6 million debt. University administrators said they will pay off the debt with dormitory fees as well as revenue from the book store and dining halls.

Administrators also presented the deal as another step in the school's rise to prominence.

"We're excited about promoting and preserving the cultural history of the area," said Joel Jones, SSU interim president. "There will be greater opportunities for national recognition and to engage in a whole new line of activities."

First, with more resources, the museum's wildfowl exhibits could go on tour, said Sam Dyke, the museum's interim executive director. Secondly, the university's marketing machine could create more exposure for the museum.

Administrators also said they can improve profitability by cutting costs, especially utility bills.

Town looks for codes enforcement officer

By LIZ HOLLAND

Princess Anne officials will begin advertising this week for a replacement for codes enforcement officer George Carey who last year spearheaded a successful effort to register and inspect rental properties in town.

Carey resigned recently to accept a similar position in Ocean Pines.

Since Carey's departure, all inspections of rentals have been put on hold. He had completed inspections of 114 out of 755 registered rental units when he left, Town Manager Linda Chelton said.

Extra code enforcement within Princess Anne's newly created HotSpot area also is on hold until Carey's replacement is hired. Funding from the program is available to pay for another employee, but no one has been hired for that position yet either.

In the meantime, Chelton said she is handling building permits and obvious code violations herself.

Applications for the full-time codes enforcement officer job will be accepted until it has been filled, Chelton said. Town officials hope to hire someone by the end of the month.

High school students hear horrors of heroin use

By MICHAEL SCHAEFER

Growing evidence that heroin use among East Coast teens and young adults is rising sent police into Washington High School on Monday, saying Somerset County could be the next problem area.

"I am getting tired of putting people in body bags," Art Trout, a Delaware paramedic, told about 450 students.

Pat Malone, a New Castle County police officer, said the rising number of heroin addicts in Delaware is typical of the problem across the East Coast.

He reported 337 Delaware addicts in treatment centers in 1991, yet by 1998 the number rose to 2,049. A 1997 New Castle coroners report showed 173 heroin deaths. Yet there were 538 such deaths alone in the first quarter of 1999.

Somerset County Sheriff Robert Jones said deputies have handled few heroin cases, but he expects an increase.

In 1994, Maryland officials reported four addicts in Somerset County were receiving treatment for heroin addiction. In 1998 there were 39 addicts.

The numbers also are up across Maryland: In 1994 there were 15,353 addicts in treatment. There were 18,204 in 1998.

Trout said little about the heroin addict has changed since the '60s and '70s. They still steal and prostitute.

Historic Garden Week features 8 Va houses

The Old Dominion's 67th annual Historic Garden Week is being dubbed the "Next Millennium" tour by its sponsor, The Garden Club of Virginia.

As part of the event, the Garden Club of the Eastern Shore will showcase seven houses built or begun in the 1700's.

Eyre Hall, an elegant manor house, and Golden Quarter, a former overseer's cottage, are owned by 11th generation members of the Eyre family.

Proceeding north, the tour visits two handsome brick houses with clapboard wings, set amidst the broad waterfront farmlands that are a signature feature of the Eastern Shore. Hungars Glebe is admired for its classic Colonial design and tranquil environment.

More modest in size and embellishment, The Farm and Little Wheeler House in Accomack County offer object lessons in sympathetic adaptation for contemporary life. Both art-filled houses have been enlarged and decorated with a mix of old and new, providing snug and sophisticated residences for their empty-nest owners.

Kerr Place in the town of Onancock, completes the group of featured early buildings. Headquarters of the Eastern Shore of Virginia Historical Society, this fine brick mansion will be open for two evenings of candlelight and refreshments.

In Eastville, the massive Victorian building known as James Brown's Dry Goods Store has been imaginatively renovated for reuse as a home and studio by an internationally known advertising photographer.

And at the northern end of the tour, the welcome mat will be out at a stylish contemporary residence, descriptively named Salt Marsh, overlooking a pristine landscape that is rapidly disappearing along the East Coast.

Tickets are $25 each and include all eight houses and Kerr Place. They are available at all locations on the tour.

Beyond the ashes

By Rev. Olivia Costango
Antioch U.M. Church

We are indeed in the dust on Ash Wednesday. We kneel in penitential sorrow and we confess our sin. We ponder the weak and crumbling nature of all things human. We face reality.

We may be good or evil, happy or miserable, living in the clouds or writhing in dirt and filth... regardless of how it has treated us, life will end for all of us some day. Then we will be together down in the dust.

But Ash Wednesday, which begins the Lenten season, points us ahead. There is more than the dust of this earth. There are the cross and the resurrection of Jesus Christ. We will soon hear the glorious and living truth of Easter. The promise of new and eternal life in the risen and living Savior is given to us now. Even the ashes on our foreheads are in the form of his cross.

There is the great promise and the consolation which come from Jesus Christ. He is our life. "Just as we have borne the image of the man of dust, we shall also bear the image of the man of heaven" (1 Corinthians 15:49).

Even on this earth, in the midst of the pain and death which are all about us, we can live in and through him who said: "I am the resurrection and the life; he who believes in me, though he die, yet shall he live, and whoever lives and believes in me shall never die." (John 11:25-26).

The Gospel of the forgiveness of sin, and life through Jesus Christ, gives us a heavenly promise indeed. This Gospel also gives us hope and strength and wisdom for our daily life. And it gives us the only assurance we can ever have concerning the final disposition and transformation of our earthly bodies.

Face life and death honestly and fully! Ash Wednesday is surely a time when Christians should see themselves, all life and all humanity, with utter clarity. Christians should be the true realists. Yet, looking to Christ, we can see him, in spite of the tears, and the dust, that would blind us.

Jesus Christ did not remain in his grave, nor are we to do so. He will care for us, and our bodies, as he has promised. In Jesus Christ, by faith, we "press on toward the goal for the prize of the upward call of God" (Philippians 3:14).

New book tells history of Somerset Parish

Of Ancient and Apostolic Lineage: Somerset Parish 1692-1992 has recently been published. This history of the Anglican Church in Somerset Parish (which once included what are now Somerset, Wicomico and Worcester counties) was originally part of the Tercentenary Celebration in 1992.

Due to deaths and departures among the original authors, the work was shelved until this past year when it was revised and edited.

Beginning with the early Anglican settlements along the Manokin River in Somerset County, the history traces the building of the first church at Almodington, the second church All Saints at Old Monie in Venton, and finally St. Andrew's in Princess Anne.

Others chapters focus on the rectors, 50 in all, of Somerset Parish. Among them are interesting individuals such as the Rev. Thomas Chase, who was the father of Samuel Chase, signer of the Declaration of Independence, and the Rev. Randolph Field, who simultaneously served as rector and fire chief.

Rebecca Furniss Miller, local historian and only original author still residing in Princess Anne, will sign copies of the book at an Open House at St. Andrew's on Sunday, April 9, from 1 to 4 p.m.

Of Ancient and Apostolic Lineage: Somerset Parish 1692-1992 may be purchased at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church or ordered by calling 410-651-2882.

The price is $12.95 (plus $3.00 shipping and handling).

Foundation funds new computer lab

In Somerset County's Westover community, unemployment is a problem. Lack of education is one obstacle to employment—the average education level of the local population is tenth grade. Lack of computer skills is another.

Now, thanks to a grant from the Community Foundation of the Eastern Shore, the community will have access to a computer lab through the nonprofit Costen Recreational Council, Inc.

A $2,069 grant will help furnish a computer, printer, heater and air conditioner at a small Somerset community known as Costen Station.

The computer project is one of the major efforts Costen Recreation Council is making to help bring the rural community into the 21st Century. In addition to providing positive educational and technology development opportunities for youth, the new computer lab will allow adults to receive computer training to improve their skills for the job market.

Computer training has been pledged by the staffs from the Somerset County Cooperative Extension Service and University of Maryland Eastern Shore.

The computer lab will be open to the public and accessible to people of all ages.

The Community Foundation of the Eastern Shore works to strengthen our community by building charitable endowments.

For more information about the Foundation, call (410) 742-9911.

Mrs. Merton S. Yerger, Mrs. N. Thomas Whittington, and Mrs. E. T. Cato, members of the Somerset County Garden Club were in Baltimore for a symposium on Horticulture and Abstract Art.

Note: What a nice note from Mr. Fred M. Henderson of Marion Station. Mr. Henderson wrote about his teacher, Miss Charlotte Fitzgerald, who taught at The Rehoboth school when he was in the fifth grade, he thought. For a while she went back and forth to Princess Anne, eventually staying with the Jeff Dryden family. He lost sight of her when she left the Rehoboth school. In those days, he said, it was a two-room school, and there were those who would say, "well before your time," it was called The Rehoboth Academy. You could get a couple more years education there, then at the Shelltown and Marumco schools. "Thank you for the memories," Mr. Henderson wrote; and, Mr. Henderson, thank you for the memories!

Start now to get a good-looking lawn

By JOHN V. DENNIS

This is the time of the year when lawns look their worst. After the last of the snow melted, I did find a fair amount of green grass and clover in my lawn. But we have since had some hard frosts and the grass is mostly brown. Although we have had some warm, springlike days, the groundhog was pretty much right when on Feb. 2 he predicted six more weeks of winter.

Plants, besides grass, can take hold in your lawn and ruin its appearance. Among them are wild onion, dandelion, and knotweed. You may have to dig them up to get rid of them. The snow cover has been of particular benefit to moss. Able to flourish in compacted, poorly drained soil, moss will take over yards where conditions are favorable for it.

I have a cousin who lives in West Ocean City and who has a lawn that is almost 100 percent moss. She has tried using lime, fertilizing, and tilling the lawn with a machine to make the soil less compacted. Nothing has helped. Now she is planning to have a couple of trees removed in order to make her grounds less shady. Moss thrives in shade.

Where conditions are less favorable for moss, it helps to spread lime and a fertilizer such as 17-4-4 which is high in nitrogen. A natural organic fertilizer called "Milorganite" is widely used on golf courses and is also recommended for home lawns.

I am a strong believer in adding compost to lawns and flower beds. Beginning in the fall, I rake up dead leaves and grass clippings and place them in a circular area fenced with chicken wire. I add any biodegradable material from the kitchen to the compost heap. After building up a layer about a foot deep, I cover it over with a mixture of lime and rich soil, and start another layer. By the time, I have three or four layers, I have used up all the leaves in my yard and will let nature take its course.

Earthworms will come in and finish the job. Compost passing through their digestive systems is enriched. The only other step that I should take is to turn over the compost with a pitchfork so as to allow air to come in. By the time that spring comes around, I will have all the compost I need. It is now a black humus ready to be put on lawns, flower beds, and around trees and shrubs. It will not only enrich the soil but will keep moisture in the soil. This will be very important if there is a summer drought.

If reseeding a lawn or starting a new lawn, the best grass to use is Kentucky bluegrass. Plant the grass seed in soil that has been enriched with lime and organic fertilizer. Also add humus from a compost heap if you have one. Grass can be planted in late fall or early spring. Sprinkle the seeded area with a lawn sprinkler if the weather is dry. During the summer, lawn management consists mainly in cutting the grass with a lawn mower and watering the lawn in dry weather.

Finally, make sure that there are no moles digging tunnels in your lawn. You can buy poison pellets and put them in the mole holes. It takes a lot of work to have a nice-looking lawn. The time to begin is now.

Spoils could rebuild islands

Editor:

There seems to be a difference of opinion in our state Legislature on what should be done with dredge spoils from Baltimore's Inner Harbor.

The environmentalists say that they don't want these spoils dumped in the Chesapeake Bay. I believe that the Inner Harbor is part of the bay and redepositing the already existing spoils will not adversely affect the current condition of the bay.

The dredge spoils could be put to very good use by fortifying and rebuilding the already deteriorating existing islands in the bay; such as Smith, Bloodsworth, Hollands and South Marj.

Guns at school not a new problem

The nation was shocked last week when a Michigan first-grader student shot and killed a classmate. But, according to one Princess Anne resident, guns showing up at elementary schools is nothing new.

By ALLEN F. MUIR

One spring day in 1948 at the Princess Anne Elementary School as a member of the third grade an event occurred that remains with me today.

Ms. Bertha Hanley was our third-grade teacher. Savilla Powell was the principal. It was a warm spring day when a classmate named Price Gunter came to school with a homemade weapon.

This was a weapon, I believe, fashioned from a World War II gun shell. It was approximately 8-10 inches long with a spring-load pull-type firing pin. It was a single shot type as opposed to holding more than one shell.

In order to fire the weapon one would drop a shotgun shell down the barrel. The shell would lock into place and be fired by pulling back and releasing the plunger/firing pin.

Price showed the weapon to most of the students in the classroom and also to Ms. Hanley. Then, as I recall, he asked her if he could demonstrate the weapon at lunch time and he was told by her that he could.

Lunch time came and many students gathered on the Linden Avenue side of the playground. Price proceeded to demonstrate the weapon. What was to come surprised everyone at the school, for Price had brought loaded shotgun shells to school.

He quickly loaded a shell into the barrel, pointed the front of the barrel into the air, pulled back on the firing mechanism, released it and the shell fired just as foretold. I believe he fired two shells.

They were very loud explosions. Luckily, no one was injured. Many kids starting running and yelling like they were very frightened.

The atmosphere at the school turned from education to safety for the students. I don't remember many details regarding what took place shortly thereafter. However, I do know that the weapon was confiscated from Price. He didn't bring it to school anymore.

Ms. Hanley came into the classroom very distressed and openly voiced her apology and responsibility for what could have become a very serious incident.

An afterthought: Remember when we went to Washington High School and water pistols were the craze? The Principal C. N. Baughn took them from students so quickly there was non room for comprise. He was the consummate leader.

The Delmarva Peninsula's only permanent non-invasive lithotripter offers quick relief at Peninsula Regional Medical Center.

After treatment with our lithotripter (Greek for stone crusher), all that's left of a kidney stone is mere dust.

While our patient reclines comfortably, an x-ray machine aims the lithotripter's series of pulsating waves toward the stone - reducing it without invasive surgery. The advantages of lithotripsy are many: no pain or scarring, minimal anesthesia, and usually just a few days recovery. Since the Peninsula Stone Center has the area's only on-site lithotripter, treatment can happen when you need it, 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

To learn more, contact your physician. If you need a physician, call our Physician Referral Line at 410-543-7090 or 1-888-290-7090.

Southern States backs conservation program

Southern States Cooperative, a billion-dollar corporation that operates in Maryland, as well as 15 other states, is throwing its clout and resources behind a new campaign to encourage Maryland farmers to enroll in a voluntary conservation program that reduces erosion and protects local waterways.

The campaign, spearheaded by the Maryland-based, non-profit group Future Harvest-Chesapeake Alliance for Sustainable Agriculture (Future Harvest-CASA), is focused around the $200 million Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program (CREP). The statewide campaign kicked off in mid-February with a mailing to more than 30,000 agricultural landowners and distribution of a video profile of the conservation program cable and broadcast television stations statewide.

The Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program (CREP), a voluntary state-federal initiative, makes it cost-effective for Maryland farmers to plant buffer strips of grasses, trees and other vegetation along rivers and streams. Potentially 100,000 acres of Maryland could be planted with protective buffers under CREP.

As part of its commitment to the campaign, Southern States will provide point-of-purchase displays at Southern States retail locations across Maryland; publicize the campaign on its Internet site and in various agricultural publications; and send out background information and profiles of farmers enrolled in CREP to its Maryland members. Future Harvest-CASA will be complementing this effort with a statewide direct mail, radio, television and newspaper campaign and appearances at county fairs, agricultural events, association meetings and community forums.

The CREP program offers farmers 100 percent cost-share for most conservation practices and soil rental rates substantially higher than the county average.

The campaign is urging farmers to call toll-free 1-877-4BUFFER to get more information about enrolling in CREP.

programs, increased emphasis on phonics and phonemic awareness, and the creation of more time at each school for independent reading.

Future plans for the schools include a new writing curriculum, a summer program for students who have trouble with reading and a family literacy project.

Two more assessments on the new reading program will be done this month and in May, but the "Gold Medal Readers" at Princess Anne Primary were already celebrating with a song written by the school's reading specialist, Lisa Forbush.

"There's a part going on around here, tute themselves to support their habits.

However, he said addicts now are younger, and the drug is more powerful and less expensive.

A $10 or $15 bag is "just enough to kill four people," said Malone, who along with Trout say they have seen numerous 15-year-old addicts.

Another problem is addicts quickly build a tolerance, and the $15-a-day fix escalates into a $250 habit.

Tenth-grader Merrith Smith said the presentation was informative.

"It really makes you think about addiction and what it does to you and others around you," she said.

Peace Corps volunteer visits WHS

Students at Washington High School in Princess Anne received a firsthand account of life in another country on Tuesday, thanks to a visit by returned Peace Corps volunteer Melissa Rochford.

Having served in the Dominican Republic from 1996 to 1998, Melissa spoke to students about her experiences there. Currently a resident of Pocomoke City, Rochford will visit the class of Ms. Grangier-Webb as part of Peace Corps Day celebrations.

On March 7, thousands of returned volunteers, representing more than 100 Peace Corps countries, shared their overseas experiences with students in all 50 states. Peace Corps Day helps raise awareness for the year-round educational resources that volunteers and the Peace Corps provide.

Through participation with educators in World Wise Schools, the Peace Corps' global education program, volunteers past and present bring the world home to students by encouraging the study of geography, promoting cultural awareness, and illustrating the value of service.

The day coincides with the Peace

Corps' founding in 1961.

"Peace Corps Day is an excellent opportunity to bring the world home, one of the essential goals of the Peace Corps," Peace Corps Director Mark L. Schneider said. "On this day, when thousands of returned Peace Corps Volunteers share their perspectives about their service with young people in classrooms across the country, students are able to better appreciate cultures different from their own. By taking the time to learn about other countries around the world, the Volunteers and young people will begin to build the bridges of friendship and understanding that are the foundation of peace among nations."

More than 150,000 Americans have joined the Peace Corps since 1961. Today, approximately 6,500 volunteers live and work in more than 80 nations around the globe.

For more information about joining the Peace Corps, call 1-800-424-8580 (press 1) to speak to a local recruiter. To learn more about Peace Corps Day, call 1-800-424-8580 (press 2, then Ext. 1961) or send an email to pcday@peacecorps.gov. Peace Corps' web site is www.peacecorps.gov.

A REEL ADVENTURE

For nine years Ray and Pat Forestal have traveled from their Pennsylvania home to their scenic, rural retreat in Harborton, Virginia to fish. But their trip in late October was different.

On the second day of their trip, Ray landed at Shore Memorial Hospital in Nassawadox where he suffered a heart attack. Shore Memorial staff cardiologist Dr. Marilyn Kellam gave Ray a choice: catheterization at a hospital in Norfolk or at the Peninsula Heart Center at Peninsula Regional Medical Center in Salisbury. Ray and Pat chose Peninsula Regional, where the catheterization detected three blockages in Ray's heart. Dr. Joseph Cindarella inserted intracoronary stents, one of the latest advances in cardiac care, to keep Ray's clogged arteries open. He avoided major surgery and weeks of recovery.

Today Ray is planning his next fishing trip. He's hooked on living a healthier lifestyle and happy he chose Peninsula Regional.

"I can't say enough about the Heart Center... Even under the circumstances, it was just a pleasure treated there."

The care Ray Forestal received is just one example of the advanced technology and quality services the Heart Center provides to all its patients. Peninsula Heart Center - The Center of Excellence for Cardiac Care on the Delmarva Peninsula.

WEEKLY SPORTS WRAPUP

Girls Basketball Regional Playoffs

The Washington High School and Crisfield High School Girls Basketball teams who defeated their first round opponents in two exciting games tried to keep the momentum flowing into the second round but fell short of the mark Tuesday at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

Washington, up against the number two seeded Snow Hill Eagles, would not go down easy as their roller coaster season came to a close.

Crisfield, refusing to go away quietly, faced the number one seed, North Dorchester, and just about pulled off the upset of the season.

Girls Basketball

Snow Hill 54 - Washington 40 - Jana White's 13 points and Margie Johnson's 8 points and 10 rebounds led the Lady Jaguars effort against Number 2 seeded Snow Hill High School last Tuesday. The Lady Jags pulled to within four points late in the third quarter but could not keep the drive going.

North Dorchester, 59 - Crisfield 57 - "This was my favorite game of the whole year," said Coach Greg Bozman. "My girls played a really good game." Down by as many as 16 points in the second half, the Lady Crabbers gave it their all and ended their dream season on a very positive note even in defeat. At the beginning of the season, Coach Bozman's goal was to keep all of his players eligible, and to win 6 or 7 games. Both goals being met quite well, finishing 7 - 17, and losing only one player due to injury, the Lady Crabbers are the talk of the Bayside Conference. Kia White hit her 6th three-point shot of the game to tie the score and send the game into overtime. Crisfield went ahead in the overtime period on White's 7th three-pointer but North Dorchester stepped up their defense and managed to pull off the win. White led the team with a career high 26 point effort, Nichole Brown had 16 points, Shanise Byrd added 13 points, and Erica King dominated under the boards, hauling in 11 rebounds.

Coach Bozman had nothing but praise for his team. "I think they have caught the basketball fever now. They realize now how much fun it is to compete and win. They are already talking about going to camp this summer, and improving for next year. We will be a team to be reckoned with in the future."

Boys Basketball Regional Playoffs

The Number-One Seeded

Crisfield's Andre Collins in a game against Cambridge-South Dorchester.

Crisfield Crabbers proved the old sports adage "Offense wins Games, Defense wins Championships" true last week as they held three challengers to less than 60 points each in the Class 1A Regional Tournament and took home the Championship.

Crisfield defeated Kent County 75 - 55 on Monday in their first game of the tournament.

On Wednesday, the Crabbers spotted Cambridge-South Dorchester 6 points in the first two minutes of the game, but went on to win 73 - 50 and advance to the Regional Final.

Andre Collins' three-pointer with 1:25 left in the first quarter gave the Crabbers a lead that they would never relinquish. Cambridge pulled to within one point with 5:05 left in the second quarter, but Mark Bell hit a three-pointer of his own to keep the Crabber lead.

Coach Phil Rayfield praised Bell's effort. "Mark stepped up when we needed him. When Andre is double-teamed someone has to be open. Mark hit the shots when we needed him."

Cambridge managed to stay within striking distance until late in the third quarter when the Crabbers turned up the defensive pressure. CHS went on a 12 point shooting spree, topped off by Kirk Jackson's slam dunk with 5:44 remaining in the game.

It was the "Sherman Show" in the last two minutes of the game as Sherman Holmes scored six straight points inside, including a slam dunk off an offensive rebound and a spinning reverse lay-up that left the defenders flat-footed. "Sherman played a great game," said Coach Rayfield. "He really defended well against a player who is three inches taller."

Friday night's game was a sell-out at Wicomico High School when the Crabbers faced Pocomoke for the Regional Championship. An estimated 200 fans, including this reporter, were turned away at the door, when the crowd inside pushed the state fire codes to the limit.

Crisfield defeated rival Pocomoke 71 - 58. Collins and Mitchell Sterling led the Crabbers scoring attack with 22 and 20 points respectively, and Holmes added 16 points.

Once again it was the defense that put the opponent on ice. The Crabbers held Pocomoke's leading scorers in check as they poured on the defensive pressure.

Crisfield will play the West

Regional Champion, Williamsport, on Friday, March 10 at 3 p.m. at Cole Field House in College Park.

Williamsport, ranked 9th in the State, according to "The Herald-Mail" in Hagerstown, knocked off the number one seed in their tournament. "They are a slow-down team. They are not real big, but they are aggressive," said Rayfield. "We are looking forward to a good game."

The State Tournament

Have you ever seen the Crisfield Crabbers either before or after a game dressed in their matching kaftans and blue sport coats? What a great looking group of young men! They look like a team even off the court.

"I know that it is not a popular look among young people today," said Coach Phil Rayfield. "They probably would not dress this way by choice, but when they put on that sport coat they feel proud."

The Crabbers don't just look good off the court and play a great game on the court, their behavior matches their appearance. "They are recognized as the best behaved young men around the conference," Rayfield said. "I get compliments from coaches, athletic directors, and principals all the time."

These young men are sportsmen both on and off the court. This kind of behavior is becoming rare among young people today and deserves to be commended.

The State Basketball Committee gives a sportsmanship award each year that the state tournament. The Maryland Public Secondary Schools Athletic Association Basketball Bulletin set forth the criteria for the award.

"The State Basketball Committee will recognize the school which displays the best overall sportsmanship while participating in its respective tournament. Appointed judges will observe each school's coaches, players, spectators, and cheerleaders, rating them on a scale of 1 - 10. Immediately following the last game, the award will be presented to the principal of the school achieving the highest average score."

Crisfield High School has made it to the Final Four 17 times in its history and has never won the Sportsmanship Award. It will take a team effort, a whole community effort, to make it happen, but how about it Crabbers? Let's follow the example of the guys that we will be cheering on to victory. Lets show them that we have noticed. Lets bring home the Sportsmanship Award.

Parents attend reading workshop

Parents of first-grade students were invited to Princess Anne Primary Feb. 24, to learn strategies for helping their child at home.

Held in the first grade Reading Lab, the 14 participants were presented with an actual reading lesson by the first grade teachers just as if they were a student in a first grade classroom.

Parents were shown how to assist their child with decoding words using phonics clues as well as contextual clues. Each teacher presented a portion of the lesson to the parents, who were then sent home with educational manipulatives to work with their child.

Each parent also received a small gift for attending the workshop.

A similar night for parents of second grade students is planned for Thursday, March 9, at 6:30 p.m. in Mrs. Ennis' Reading Lab. Kindergarten held their parent night on Feb. 17.

First-grader Benjamin Koons jumps during Jump Rope For Heart at Princess Anne Primary School.

break from jumping and did some dances including the "Electric Slide" "Y.M.C.A."

Mrs. Long's second grade and Mrs. Monar's first grade won the class poster contest celebrating the event. A special thanks goes out to this year's sponsors, Meatland and Sysco. Meatland donated pretzels and Sysco donated oranges used for snacks for the students during the two hour event. Furnace Town readies for season

Furnace Town Historic Site is in the midst of preparations for the opening of the 2000 season. Furnace Town offers many opportunities for residents to play a part in sharing the rich history and heritage of the area. Seasonal staff are being hired; volunteers are being interviewed, and a general cleanup day is set. Situated in the heart of the Pocomoke Forest and along the Nassawango Cypress Swamp, Furnace Town has been intricately woven into the family stories of the area since the early 1800's. The Richardsons, the Purnells, the McAllens, the Hills, the Sirmans, the Nairns, the Harmons and many more Eastern Shore families played varied roles in the growth, operation and afterlife of the town which surrounded the Nassawango Iron Furnace. Descendants of these and other families are still today supporters of Furnace Town, through volunteering, membership in the Foundation, and working at the site.

Volunteer opportunities range from dealing directly with the public as a tour guide or gate-tender to lending a hand with office work. Volunteers also assist with grounds work, help with building maintenance, prepare product for The Company Store, sew period costumes, and deliver posters and brochures. A Junior Volunteer Program allows young people between the ages of 9 and 13 to work, in period dress, along with one of Furnace Town's 19th century interpretive artisans.

Seasonal staff for 2000 has openings for broom makers, a gardener assistant, and woodworkers. Period dress and training are provided for these positions, which are usually 1-2 days per week between April 1 and October 31. Applications are available by calling Furnace Town at 410-632-2032. Interviews will be held between March 1 and March 15.

For those wishing a short-term project, mark your calendar now for Saturday March 18 between 9 and 4. This is Furnace Town's annual "Cleanup" day, and volunteers drop in to scrape, sand, paint, rake, clean, polish and generally put the finishing touches on the site in preparation for the April 1 seasonal opening.

IRAs provide tax shelter, retirement plan

By K. JILL HALL

As April 15 approaches, most of us are agonizing over our tax returns, hoping for a refund but dreading the bad news that there are more taxes owing than we paid in.

The good news is that there are many tax breaks American workers can take advantage of. Probably the best is an Individual Retirement Account or IRA. Even better news: An IRA is a tax shelter and a retirement plan all rolled into one.

IRAs are appealing as tax shelters for two reasons. First, you may be able to take a tax deduction for the full amount of your annual IRA contribution, even if you don't itemize your tax return.

And, whether or not all of your contributions are tax deductible, the earnings on the assets in your IRA accumulate and compound tax-free.

Then, eventually, when you withdraw funds from your IRA during retirement, you pay income tax on whatever contributions you tax deferred but your tax bracket should be lower and so should the taxes.

IRA contributions entitle you to an annual tax deduction equal to the lesser of $2,000 or your total compensation. The cap is $4,000 for a married couple regardless of whether they both work.

How do you set up an IRA? It couldn't be simpler. Practically any mutual fund, stock broker, bank, thrift institution or insurance company can help you do it and the paperwork is usually a one-page form.

The deadline for establishing an IRA and contribution to it for a particular tax year is the unextended tax deadline for the current year, traditionally April 15.

A stock broker can help you establish a "self directed" plan, where you control all investment decisions.

A mutual fund with a switching privilege to a money fund lets you control market-timing decisions without worrying about stock selection. Thrift and insurance plans give you less control but are also less work because they're managed for you.

You can set up more than one IRA and contribute to all, some or none every year as long as you don't go over your annual limit.

If you die before you deplete your IRA savings, the plan passes tax free to your named beneficiary, who will then pay taxes only as he or she withdraws the money. If the beneficiary is your spouse, he or she can treat the IRA as his or her own and make contributions to it.

Here are some tips to help you make your IRA even more valuable as a tax-saving and investment vehicle:

1. Start soon. The younger you are when you open your IRA, the earlier your tax free compounding of interest begins. The difference between starting at age 19 and starting at age 29 can be hundreds of thousands of dollars just 40 years later. Even a minor can start an IRA, and invest up to the $2,000 annual limit.

2. Invest early in the year. Extra compounded income will accumulate by the time you retire.

3. Go for high returns. High returns can be riskier to achieve but IRAs are designed to be held for long periods and over the long run — ten years or more — sharp swings in the market smooth out. If you're under 50, you can afford to invest your money more aggressively.

4. Use your IRA for trading. Many investors like to devote a portion of their portfolios to rapid turnover trading strategies. IRAs are ideal for this because there are no tax consequences to the trades.

5. Don't shift from one IRA to another at a moment's whim.

Don't set up a new IRA every time a new investing fad appears. You should review your IRA's performance at least annually, with the goal being 10 to 12 percent annual appreciation if you're going to keep that IRA.

6. Avoid tax exemptions. IRAs are tax-exempt. Don't put tax exempt bond funds, which yield less than taxable ones, into an IRA.

7. Consolidate. Many people set up multiple IRAs, but this also means multiple annual maintenance fees. Consider consolidating your investments into one or two fund families.

8. Deduct IRA fees separately. You can set up your IRA so that the annual management fees are deducted from your account without your intervention. But if you set it up so you pay the fees directly, you can take a tax deduction for them among the Miscellaneous Itemized Deductions subject to a 2 percent floor. Even if you can't take a deduction, if you pay your fees directly, the IRA will grow faster.

9. Use your refund to fund your IRA. If you get your tax return filed early enough, you can claim your IRA contribution, then get your refund and use it in time to pay into the IRA before the April 15 deadline.

Crabbers win state title

By JANICE MILLER

Another state championship came home to Somerset County. Saturday after Crisfield defeated Pikesville High School 42-37, to win the Maryland State 1A Boys Basketball Championship on the campus of the University of Maryland College Park.

In November the Washington High School Field Hockey team brought the trophy home.

Upon entering the Cole Field House, Crisfield fans were directed to the left side of the arena, where the excitement was building. It was like a huge class reunion, family reunion, and school dance all rolled up into one.

The Crisfield crowd was estimated to be about 1,000 fans strong, outnumbering the Pikesville group from Baltimore County by about 3-1.

Alumni gathered from far and wide to join virtually every CHS student, their families, and faculty, and cheer their beloved Crabbers on to victory. It was a time of reminiscing, and catching up with old friends. There were memories of past championships and heartbreaking losses. There were high hopes for the game at hand.

From the first play of the game, a missed slam dunk, to the final seconds which seemed to drag on forever, the game was a struggle. Fitting really, considering the adversity the team had to overcome before the season even began. One player was deemed ineligible, and another was out with injury. "The adversity helped to pull the team together," said Assistant Coach Dale Turpin.

The Crabbers struggled on offense, committing uncharacteristic turnovers, and missing shots that usually fall with ease, but made up for it on the defensive side of the floor. They forced Pikesville to turn the ball over 17 times, blocked 4 shots, had 27 defensive rebounds, and 6 steals. "We played great defense," said senior center Sherman Holmes. "We had to beat great teams like Pocomoke, North Dorchester, and Snow Hill to get here so we were prepared, we were ready."

CHS scored the first point of the game, a foul shot by Holmes, just five seconds into the game. Sixteen seconds later Pikesville got a basket inside to go ahead 2-1. The lead changed hands eight more times in the game until Andre Collins put the Crabbers ahead for good when he connected on two of three free throw attempts with 2:41 remaining in the third quarter.

Just minutes earlier, with the Crabbers down 25-20, at the 6:20 mark if the third quarter, Mitchell Sterling sparked the Crabbers comeback with three backdoor lay-ups in a row to put CHS ahead 26-25. Pikesville went ahead for the last time 27-26 with 3:10 left in the quarter.

Newcomers beat incumbent in school board race

By LIZ HOLLAND

Somerset County voters picked two newcomers to go on to the General Election for a District 4 Board of Education seat, and then followed the same course as the rest of Maryland by selecting presidential candidates Al Gore and George W. Bush as the winners of last week's Primary Election.

In the nonpartisan Board of Education race, Jack Paul with 296 votes and Lauri Bedsworth Marshall with 197, beat incumbent board member William D. Barnes who got 158 votes.

Paul and Marshall will face each other in November's election.

The other four districts had only one or two Board of Education candidates which made contests in the Primary unnecessary. However, voters in those districts will get a chance to vote for board members in November.

In the presidential races, 797 Democrats cast their votes for Vice President Al Gore, while Bill Bradley received 490 votes and Lyndon Larouche got 12. There were 86 Democrats who said they were uncommitted to a candidate.

In the Republican Primary, George W. Bush was the clear winner 892 votes, followed by John Council amends pool hall law to allow use by youth clubs

By LIZ HOLLAND

A city ordinance that forbids minors from entering establishments where pool or billiards are played was amended last week by the Crisfield City Council in order to allow the games in a church-run coffee house for young people.

The amended ordinance will allow pool tables in youth clubs and recreation areas run by churches and other nonprofit groups, such as the Salvation Army, and those groups will still be required to get a permit from the city.

However, minors will continue to be barred from for-profit pool and game rooms.

The change to the ordinance was made after the Rev. Dave

Dunn, pastor of Liberty Rock Church, asked the council last month to allow him to place donated pool tables in a new coffee house on Broadway that will cater to teen-agers and children as young as 10.

The church recently received a donation of $5,800 in equipment for the coffee house which included pool tables.

The coffee house also will have pinball machines and ping pong and bumper tables, but there will not be a charge for the games to any of the young patrons, Dunn said.

The establishment will be open after school until 7 or 8 p.m. and later on Saturdays. It will be closed Wednesdays and Sundays.

Dunn said young people will be chaperoned, and anyone who is rowdy or uses foul language will be asked to leave. Gambling will be strictly forbidden.

"The doors won't be thrown open for people to do as they please," Dunn said.

Now that it is allowed to use the pool tables, the church will be required to get permits which cost $40 per table annually.

Census Bureau opens two centers in county

Two centers to help people fill out their Census 2000 forms opened last week in Princess Anne and Crisfield.

The centers are designed to help people who may have questions in completing their census questionnaire, need special language assistance have questions about the census in general, or who did not receive a questionnaire.

Questionnaire Assistance Center locations for Somerset County are:

●Crisfield Housing Authority Community Center, 119 S. Seventh Street, Crisfield, Thursday and Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.;
●Somerset County Office Complex (old Washington High School), 11916 Somerset Avenue, Princess Anne, Monday through Friday 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The centers are just two of the more than 30,000 Questionnaire Assistance Centers nationwide, open from now through April 14.

Questionnaire Assistance Centers are staffed by local volunteers and by Census employees trained to assist respondents in answering questions about their Census 2000 questionnaire.

A large print English guide and language assistance guides in 37 languages will be available at all Questionnaire Assistance Center.

Census forms are currently being delivered to every household in the United States by mail or in person by Census Bureau workers.

Census information is subject to strict confidentiality laws for 72 years and may not be revealed to any person or government agency except in the form of statistics.

The United States Constitution requires a census every 10 years.

To ensure proper distribution of government funds to communities and states for highways, schools, health facilities and many other programs, it is important that everyone living in the United States on April 1 be counted.

Without a complete, accurate census, a community may not receive its fair share.

Katina Williams of Crisfield, an enumerator for the Census Bureau, loads census forms and information into her car to be delivered in rural areas of Somerset County.

Arson was cause of house fire

Arson was the cause of a one-alarm fire Friday that caused heavy damage to a summer home on Smith Island, according to the Office of the State Fire Marshal.

The fire occurred at the home of Bruce Vandy, 3323 Marsh Road, Rhodes Point. The dwelling was unoccupied at the time.

A passerby saw smoke pouring from the two-story wood frame dwelling around 12:20 p.m.

Seventeen firefighters from the Ewell and Tylerton Volunteer Fire Departments responded and battled the blaze for more than 30 minutes before bringing the flames under control. The interior of the home was gutted by the blaze. Damage was estimated at $15,000. There were no injuries reported.

An investigation into the origin and cause of the fire was performed by deputies from the Office of the State Fire Marshal, Eastern Regional Office who determined the fire originated on the first floor in the rear southeast corner.

The Fire Marshal is continuing the investigation into the arson of the home. Anyone with information about the fire is asked to call 410-822-7609 or 1-800-492-7529. All information will be kept confidential.

Odd, isn't it?

Antioch U.M.C.

Odd isn't it — that $20 looks like so much when it is placed in the collection plate, yet so small when going to the store?

Odd isn't it — how big an hour serving God and our churches looks, yet how small 60 minutes are when fishing, playing golf, or watching television?

Odd isn't it — that we labor over studying a chapter in the Bible, yet can read a best selling novel in a week or less?

Odd isn't it — that we have no time to pray, yet can pour over pages of the newspaper as we sip our morning coffee?

Odd isn't it — that we can't think of anything to say when we pray, yet can talk on the telephone for hours?

Odd isn't it — that we can't recite the 23rd Psalm yet we can sing all the words to lots of popular songs?

Odd isn't it — that we can't come to a church team meeting unless it is scheduled weeks in advance, yet are always able to adjust to last minute social invitations?

Odd isn't it — that we have difficulty learning to openly praise God, yet will clap and shout at a sporting event?

Odd, it is. Unfortunately, it may reflect the way in which we choose to live. We know our God is an honorable God and He will honor our choices.

Organ music to be featured at open house

The beauty of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church with its stained glass windows and Flemish bond brick is easy to see, but another beauty of St. Andrew's is that which is heard; the music produced by the Covington Memorial Antiphonal Organ.

Donated in 1994 by sisters Julia Ford and Mary Windsor in memory of their parents and grandparents, the organ is a 61 antiphonal organ. The console sits in the chancel while the 61 pipes are located in the balcony around the bottom and sides of the Rose Window containing the St. Andrew's Cross. The antiphonal pipes, controlled by stops on the main pipe organ, create sounds which "echo" in the back of the church, producing a full, elegant sound.

Currently the organ is played each Sunday by master organist Dr. Norris Meredith of Fairmount. Meredith adapts the service music to the full rank of pipes creating rich and inspirational sounds for the congregation.

Music performed by Meredith on the antiphonal organ will be one of the highlights of St. Andrew's Open House to be held Sunday, April 9, from 1 to 4 p.m.

Foundation honors volunteers

The Crisfield Heritage Foundation Inc. honored their volunteers at a Volunteer Banquet Friday, March 3, at the J. Millard Tawes Historical Museum and Visitors Center.

Vice Chairman of the Foundation, Jackie Beales, welcomed everyone and thanked them for all their hard work and dedication this past year. Beales thanked Betty Tyler, Peggy Atkins and Wanda Milbourne, the three volunteers who worked so hard on the banquet which was enjoyed by all.

Pat Gray, administrative director of the Foundation, thanked everyone again for all the help given her since August. Gray presented a special certificate to Rosabelle Tyler for her hard work planning and organizing the Oyster and Bull Roast which proved to be the most successful one to date.

Gray also presented the "Volunteer Award of the Year" and a gift certificate to Waterman's Restaurant to Jackie Beales. Jackie conducted walking tours, worked in the gift shop, helped with all events and put in many, many volunteer hours. Our other volunteers have donated their time and effort and clocked more than 1,600 hours for the year 1999.

Pat Gray presents the Volunteer of the Year award and a gift certificate to Waterman's Restaurant to Jackie Beales.

The names of the following businesses were acknowledged for their donations that helped tremendously at the end of the year. They are as follows: Tawes Insurance, The Original Captain's Galley, Chesapeake Boats, H. Glenwood Evans & Son, Crisfield Gas Inc.,

Clarence Sterling & Son, Tangier Island Cruises and Scott Tawes & Associates, CPA.

Because of our volunteers, our museum is alive and well. Volunteers from the Somers Cove Yacht Club have cleaned and painted the Chesapeake Room with paint and brushes donated by Rubberset.

Hopefully in the near future we will be able to have new carpet installed and the furniture reupholstered. To continue, we still need new memberships, donations and new volunteers along with our current volunteers.

Gray advised everyone of a few of the events taking place this spring and summer. American Cruise Lines Inc., a new cruise line out of Connecticut, will be coming into Crisfield five times in May and June.

The American Canadian Caribbean Line Inc. from Rhode Island, will be bringing three Elderhostel cruises here in April, May and June.

In addition, if it is like last year, we will have about five more cruise ships from the American Canadian Caribbean Line Inc. This will bring at least 450 tourists here for the confirmed cruises and around 500 more if we have the additional cruises.

This year we have seven Elderhostel classes for the Foundation and seven for the Ward Foundation. This should bring at least another 400 people to Crisfield.

Take part in April "gasout"

Editor:

To try and combat the high gas prices, a "Gasout" is proposed for April 7, 8 and 9. Buy the gas you need before or after, but not on those dates.

I guess this is about all we have going for us. The last gasout was only for one day, and prices dropped some as a result.

Our politicians, who are supposed to look out for us seem to be looking the other way as usual. Where are the Desert Storm people? Weren't we involved in a conflict that cost us American lives, not to say a good chunk of tax money?

I read we have the resources to combat this price gouging. Open up the reserves. With our Alaska pipeline and our offshore oil rigs, we could probably be self-sufficient.

I also don't want to hear how expensive gas is overseas. Most European countries have A-1 transportation systems. We let our public transportation systems go to pot in favor of the gasoline engine and automobile.

Support tobacco settlement plan

Editor:

Very soon, major decisions affecting the fate of thousands of Marylanders will be made in Annapolis. Over the next two weeks Gov. Parris Glendening's Tobacco Settlement spending plan will come up for review by the Maryland General Assembly.

Glendening's proposal to spend $80 million annually on two groundbreaking programs has afforded Maryland the opportunity to become a national leader in tobacco control as well as cancer prevention and treatment.

As a member of the Governor's Task Force to End Smoking in Maryland, I must implore the Legislature to enact those recommendations that our Task Force put onto paper, as well as those of the governor's equally important and impressive Task Force to Conquer Cancer.

To wait yet another year to decide how to spend the tobacco settlement dollars would not only confuse and further politicize the process, but would also cause Maryland to be less proactive in the areas of tobacco and cancer control. Maryland should once again lead the nation and become a model for

Conectiv CEO apologizes for billing problems

Editor:

I want to apologize for the problems many Conectiv customers have been experiencing with our new billing system. Customers expect timely and accurate bills. When they have questions, they expect to be able to reach us. Recently, we have fallen short of those expectations, but we are working diligently to remedy all problems as quickly as possible.

First, let me explain the reasons for changing to a new billing system at this time. The former system was over 25 years old and badly in need of upgrading. We had two billing systems—one from Delmarva Power and the other Atlantic Energy—which we needed to consolidate into one Conectiv Power Delivery system. And finally, we need to give customers the additional information they will require to shop for suppliers when electric choice goes into effect later this year.

Since making the transition to the new billing system in late December, we've run into several glitches. The biggest problems, from our customers' perspective, involved late and estimated power bills and busy signals or long waits when they've tried to call us. We are taking aggressive actions to resolve those issues.

To make it easier for customers to get timely answers to questions about their bills, we are hiring and training 137 additional customer service professionals (a 68 percent increase). We are adding 120 incoming and 45 outbound phone lines for customer calls. We are requiring Call Center employees to work overtime and we're routing some calls to alternate call centers.

Many bills were late going out because we took time to manually review for accuracy the first 500,000 bills produced by the new system. We've taken several steps to deal with the resulting backlog. For instance, we added 24 people to the review process and reduced the backlog from a peak of 61,000 bills to 19,000 by the end of February. We have suspended late charges and will not disconnect any customers over this issue. We send out more than one million bills each month, and we believe these and other steps will allow us to get those bills out on a timely and accurate basis going forward.

Estimated bills have also been a source of customer frustration. To help alleviate this situation, we have already hired eight new meter readers in New Castle County. Others are working overtime, and we're expediting improvements to the system to allow customers to call in their own meter readings.

We are taking a number of steps to better communicate with our customers. For instance, we've opened five walk-in centers where customers from across the state can resolve billing issues in person. We are staffing community meetings where Conectiv representatives speak to consumers and answer questions about the new billing system. We're also offering billing information through our Web site (<http://cpd.conectiv.com>), mailing bill inserts and separate letters to our Delaware customers responding to frequently asked questions, and finally, running advertisements addressing the major issues surrounding our new bill.

The intent of all this communication is to give people the information they need in the most convenient manner possible. We are beginning to see the results of these efforts—about 94 percent of Conectiv's bills to customers are being mailed on time compared with 82 percent when the conversion system was first installed. We are making the computer fixes which are progress on answering our phones more promptly and resolving customers' billing issues. As even more resources are brought to bear over the coming months, we hope to meet or exceed our customers' expectations.

Again, I want to apologize for any inconvenience this transition has caused our customers and reiterate my personal commitment to resolving these issues as quickly as possible.

Support Harvest For the Hungry

By William Donald Schaefer,
Chairman of the Maryland Commission for Celebration 2000 and Comptroller of Maryland

With the economy booming, some can't understand why there are hungry people. According to the Maryland Food Bank, however, these are still bad times for many poor people who aren't benefiting from an unprecedented economic upturn. In fact, local food collection agencies say that the demand for food is also up while donations are down. In fact, pantries in Maryland distributed nearly 60 percent more food in 1999 than in the year before.

We all think of giving around the holidays, but unfortunately people are hungry every day. So, having a major food drive this time of year fills a very critical need.

More than a million households in Maryland have just received postcards urging the donation of non-perishable foods to be picked up by letter carriers from March 11 to 18. What's going on? It's simple. Maryland 2000, the state's millennium commission, has organized one of the biggest food drives to take place in the state—one whole week where Marylanders from across the state are donating healthy, nutritious, non-perishable food to help their neighbors in need.

Called Harvest for the Hungry 2000, this ambitious effort builds on entrepreneur Larry Adam's highly successful Baltimore-area food drives by the same name. Harvest for the Hungry 2000 is a unique partnership made up of Maryland 2000, the U.S. Postal Service, the Maryland and Capital Area Food Banks, CareFirst Blue Cross Blue Shield, and the Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Foundation.

The drive is relying on nearly 11,000 postal workers to collect food directly from households and the state's 560 post offices to serve as drop-off points. Nearly 1,000 soup kitchens, food banks, and shelters supported by 41,000 volunteers will be involved in this effort.

Between March 11 and 18, all residents have to do is place canned and other non-perishable food at their mailboxes or take it to a local post office. The drive is putting an emphasis on the donation of nutritious food such as canned tuna packed in water, canned vegetables, and low-salt soups.

When I became chairman of Maryland 2000, I wanted to be sure that we would help people—not just have a big party that ended with the dawn of the year 2000. Harvest for the Hungry 2000 is one of the most significant efforts of Maryland 2000 and calls on all of us to contribute to a legacy of helping Maryland's hungry.

Animals prove to be good weather predictors

By JOHN V. DENNIS

In a number of my past columns, I have referred to the ability of some animals to give reliable pronouncements about the weather. This ability seems related to a sixth sense in certain animals that is lacking in the human species.

We see this in the ability of dogs and cats to find their way home, the homing ability in pigeons, and the ability of migrating birds to reach their destinations. So why not the ability in some animals to predict the weather?

Among the smaller animal weather prophets are woolly caterpillars, crickets, and frogs. If the caterpillars show more black than brown on their backs, it is regarded as a sign that a hard winter is ahead.

Crickets supposedly by the frequency of their chirps can give you an exact temperature reading. All you have to do is count the number of chirps a cricket makes in 15 seconds, and then add 37 to get the correct temperature in degrees Fahrenheit.

Continuous croaking by frogs in a pond is a good sign of impending rain.

The list of animal weather prophets also includes cuckoos, often called rain crows, because of their habit of calling louder and more often during periods of high humidity preceding and following a storm.

Common loons also become more noisy as a storm approaches. But the well known habit of swallows flying close to the ground preceding a rainstorm is simply their reaction to the flying insects they feed upon. The insects descend to lower levels when rain is approaching.

Ducks and geese are known for their excited calls and sudden take-offs from the water at the approach of a storm. As stated in the book, Waterfowl Tomorrow, they have an ability to forecast the weather based upon "the barometric capabilities of their body air sacs, or possibly they have evolved other systems yet unknown to science. Whatever the innate ability is, it seems to work well enough to have qualified waterfowl as homespun weather prophets long before the science of meteorology was born."

The waterfowl may also be our only reasonably reliable long-term weather prophets. When ducks and geese head south earlier than usual, it is a good sign that a cold winter lies ahead. This is an observation that has been made over and over again by people who know waterfowl and their ways.

During last year's hurricane season, I told about a cat named Napoleon, who lived in Baltimore and was so good at predicting bad weather that his forecasts were published in the local paper.

In contrast, the Hurricane Center in Miami did such a poor job in predicting hurricanes and telling where they would hit shore, that I wrote the center and suggested that they get a cat. I didn't get any response to my letter.

Since then, I have heard of a cat named Sugar who predicts a storm by getting a crazed look in her eyes, laying back her ears, and tearing through the house like a kitten. The crazier she acts, the worse the weather that lies ahead.

Hardly on a par with the domestic cat is the groundhog. By predicting on Feb. 2, how many weeks of winter lie ahead, the groundhog is regarded as a short-term weather prophet.

In view of the poor records of meteorologists in forecasting hurricanes and tornadoes, it would pay us, if we paid more attention to what animals are predicting. I would place the most confidence in the house cat.

An Eye On Art

Prepare for unforeseen problems when shipping art

By PAMELA MCCREADY

In the continuation of our discussion of the safest methods of transporting artwork outside the protected environment of your home, office, or any display area, we will be confronted with the risks that are often beyond our control. We all know that pieces of art are moved every day, but it also must be said that if properly handled and packed, it is safe to say that your art will arrive, as a rule, in good shape.

Risks can be anticipated and controlled with knowing how to pack art properly and choosing the right mode of transportation. These two factors alone will assure that your art is handled properly when no longer under your watchful eye.

First, should it travel, and under what circumstances? The physical characteristics of the object of art, its destination, and the means of transportation available should all be evaluated in order to decide how it should be packed for maximum protection.

Second, what is your budget? Professional art transporters can be hired to wrap, pack, and crate your art. You can do some of this yourself, if you know how.

If you do not have your artwork insured before the move, it is imperative to do so now, especially if the transporter does not insure each item separately. Call your local insurance company that carries your homeowner's policy. You can also get policies to cover the contents of your rented apartment or home.

Shop around. Not all agencies give the same coverage and do not assume that you are covered for certain items. You may not be. I speak from experience in this area. Sometimes, life's biggest lessons are learned the hard way.

Weather conditions play a vital role in travel. Your art may be traveling from a humid summer climate in the East to a parched summer heat in Mexico or Arizona. Perhaps most of the trip will be during inclement winter weather.

Your art will need to be fully protected in transit by water-proofing, insulation, and padding during packing and crating. Road vibrations, traumatic shock, and changes in temperature and humidity as well as protection against many types of spills and the introduction of water into the environment can drastically change the condition of your artwork once it has arrived at its destination.

Once you decide to let the artwork travel with a moving company, check the condition and record any weaknesses or prior damage. Take pictures of each piece at all angles. This will assist greatly, in the unforeseen possibility that you need to file an insurance claim.

Before wrapping begins, be sure that all parts, components, frames, backing board, and bases are secure. Remove all hanging devices, or secure them so they are no risk to the work itself.

Properly documenting and securing your objects of art, are key factors in preparing your art for travel.

PAMELA MCCREADY is the owner of Chesapeake Art in Crisfield.

Town police assist in feline rescue

Princess Anne police proved last week they not only get their man, they can get his cat, too.

After a young calico cat failed to come down out of a towering pecan tree in his yard for two days, Washington Street resident Vernon Tompkins called the Police Department for help Thursday.

Lts. Rob Nelms and Scott Keller, who were on bicycle patrol in the neighborhood, responded to the call and then radioed for help to the Public Works Department.

Within a half hour, Public Works Director Bruce Riggan and employees Don Sisson and Barry Figgs were on the scene with a tall ladder.

Sisson climbed the tree, grabbed the frightened kitty by the scruff of its neck and carried it safely to the ground.

"That's exactly what we want in a small town," Tompkins said of the town employees' efforts. "It's one of the more pleasant things about Princess Anne."

The cat's opinion of the ordeal was less apparent. It took off down Irving Street and hasn't been seen since.

The Crabbers tried desperately to break the game open but could not shake the swarming Pikesville defense. At times they appeared frustrated, but they never quit.

When the fourth quarter began the Crabbers turned up their defense a notch and went into their half court trap defense, double-teaming the ball wherever it was and not allowing Pikesville to get it inside.

Crisfield went ahead 37-31 when Collins hit two free throws with 3:36 left in the game. Pikesville then rallied to pull to within three points at the 2:50 mark. Both teams were scoreless for the next two full minutes, trading turnovers and missed shots.

With 44.5 seconds left Collins sank a free throw to put CHS up 38-34. Pikesville, with no timeouts remaining had to foul to stop the clock. Kirk Jackson and Collins hit two free throws with 3:36 left in the game. Pikesville then rallied to pull to within three points at the 2:50 mark. Both teams were scoreless for the next two full minutes, trading turnovers and missed shots.

With 44.5 seconds left Collins sank a free throw to put CHS up 38-34. Pikesville, with no timeouts remaining had to foul to stop the clock.

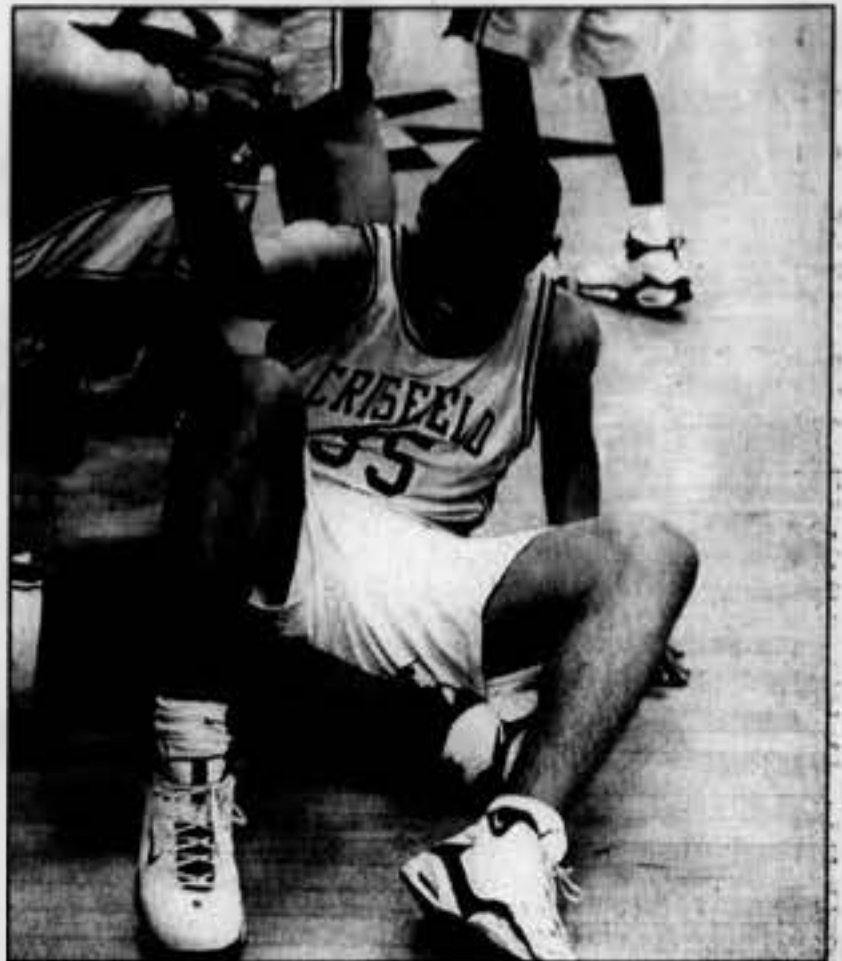

Kirk Jackson and Collins sank two free throws each in the final 25 seconds of the game to seal the victory and State Championship.

Coach Phil Rayfield was filled with pride for his team. "What can I say? It's a great feeling to be here, a great feeling to win. They did exactly what they had to do to win the game."

The players, too, were full of emotion, as they piled in a great heap in the center of the floor celebrating the victory. There were shouts of victory and tears of joy.

The fans could hardly contain themselves as they were forced to remain in the stands. But it was OK, because they knew a bigger celebration was coming.

Collins led the Crabbers offensively with 16 points and 5 assists. Sterling had 9 points and 9 rebounds, Jackson and Mark Bell added 6 points each, with Holmes and Derrick Turpin chipping in 3 and 2 points respectively.

When asked by Lem Satterfield of the Baltimore Sun about scoring just 16 points when he normally averages 30, Collins said, "I just concentrated on getting the ball to my teammates. What good's 30 points if my team loses?"

Back at home, the celebration was just beginning. Everyone from Westover to Crisfield who couldn't go to the game prepared to meet the team when they came home.

"I have never been to one (celebration) that big," Rayfield said. "The whole town turned out. There were babies and old ladies and everybody. It was great."

The parade began at King's Creek Market in Princess Anne when the county sheriff stopped the team bus.

"The boys thought we had been stopped for speeding. They didn't know what to expect," said Rayfield.

When the team bus made the turn onto Route 413, they were surprised to see the fire trucks from Crisfield and Marion ready with lights flashing and sirens blowing.

At every intersection along 413 more cars joined in, there was even a crowd at the golf course, and at the entrance into town.

"The boys were very excited with the response. They were happy, crying, very excited," Rayfield said. "It is quite a way to finish. Very few players get to win their last game."

Newcomers beat incumbent

McCain with 330, Alan Keyes with 72, Steve Forbes with 7, Gary Bauer with 1 and Orrin Hatch with 0.

In the 1st Congressional District race, incumbent Rep. Wayne Gilchrest, who ran unopposed on the Republican ticket, got 958 votes.

Princess Anne native Bennett Bozman, who currently is serving as the resident state delegate for Worcester County, won the Democratic Primary for Gilchrest's seat, and also led in Somerset County with 1,013 votes.

U.S. Sen. Paul Sarbanes also easily won the Democratic Primary both statewide and in Somerset County with 1,096 votes.

Sarbanes' opponent Paul H. Rappaport won the Republican nomination, and but barely squeaked through in Somerset with 215 votes.

According to the county election office, 2,750 Somerset residents cast votes in the Primary, which was about 25 percent of the registered voters.

Of that number, 1,438, or about 52 percent were Democrats and 1,312, or about 47 percent, were Republicans.

The General Election will be on Tuesday, Nov. 7.

answers may require some "home-work," and officials want to be as specific as possible in addressing concerns, Chelton said.

Work is expected to start in the block between the Manokin River and Broad Street, and then work south, one block at a time, to Linden Avenue.

Streetscape will include landscaping, plus new streetlights, sidewalks and curbs on Somerset Avenue from Broad to Washington Streets, and on Prince William Street between Church and Beechwood Streets.

The town will also replace storm drains along Somerset Avenue from the Manokin River to Linden Avenue, as well as some on Prince William Street.

At the same time the storm drain work is being done, the Somerset County Sanitary District plans to replace water mains under the street.

"Delmarva Millennium, Volume I," a collection of historical articles about various aspects of the peninsula, is now on newsstands.

Produced by Thomson Chesapeake Publications, "Delmarva Millennium" includes a look back at the region's maritime history, its cultural, political and religious roots, and the evolution of its economic engines of agriculture and tourism. The magazine-style publication includes articles, historic photos, timelines and entertaining anecdotes about various "legends" of Delmarva, such as the Eastern Shore railroad's "Casey Jones," the chicken industry's "other famous Frank" and Somerset County's famous "Parson of the Islands."

Main historical overviews are complemented by articles on such unusual topics as an Indian chief known as "The Laughing King," the role of the black waterman in Delmarva history and the peninsula's baseball "dream team" of famous past stars.

The collection of articles gives a broad overview of Delmarva's rich history, and it sets the stage for Volume II, scheduled for release in December. To follow up on Volume I's look back, Volume II will take a look at Delmarva's future, through the eyes of many of its residents.

Each Delmarva Millennium book is compiled and designed by local award-winning journalist Terry Plowman.

PRMC to close Tilghman Road office

In an ongoing effort to improve patient services and control costs, Peninsula Regional Health System has announced that a consolidation of its Primary Care Network will result in the closing of one local office.

"The restructuring is an effort to gain efficiency and to create a team oriented approach to improving patient access at a time when the health care industry is increasingly subjected to diminishing reimbursement for services," said Ron Fisher, executive director of Peninsula Regional's Primary Care Network.

Effective April 1, the medical center is closing its Tilghman Road Family Medicine office at 262 Tilghman Road in Salisbury. Ben Miller physician assistant certified, will be joining on Dr. Alon Davis at the Primary Care Delmar Family Medicine office at 3 Bi-State Boulevard in Delmar. All patient records will be moving with Miller from Tilghman Road to the Delmar office. Appointments with Miller there can be made by calling 410-896-3601 Mondays, Wednesday, Thursdays, and Fridays from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Tuesdays from 8:30 a.m. to 7 p.m.

In conjunction with Miller joining the practice, the hours of the Delmar Primary Care office will expand to 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays and 8:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Tuesdays. The change in office hours, for both Miller and Davis, will occur on Monday, April 3.

Patients of the Tilghman Road

Family Medicine office are invited to call the Peninsula Regional Medical Center Primary Care Network Administrative Office at 410-543-7252 weekdays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. for answers to any questions they may have regarding the consolidation.

Infant care class planned April 8

A one-time, three (3) hour infant care class offered by Peninsula Regional Medical Center is a must for first-time parents.

Through hands-on experience, lecture and videos, parents learn skills to be more confident.

Topics include the development of babies (infant to 1 year), your changing role as a parent, the fussy baby, immunizations, dressing and feeding babies.

The class will be held Saturday, April 8, and again on Saturday, June 10, from 1 to 4 p.m. in the Peninsula Cardiology Building, 3rd Floor Classroom, 400 Eastern Shore Drive, Salisbury. There is a $20 class participation fee. For more information or to register, call 410-543-7126.

Wellness classes start this month

Peninsula Regional Medical Center will begin offering three new wellness classes this month featuring muscle conditioning/aerobics, precision toning (yoga), and Tai Chi.

JoAnn Lewis will instruct the new low impact aerobic class which will offer participants muscle toning and stretching as well. The class will meet in the Peninsula Cardiology Building on Eastern Shore Drive Mondays and Thursdays from 4:45 until 5:45 p.m. The cost is $40 for a 6-week series.

Karen Hughes, a certified yoga instructor will lead the precision toning or yoga classes on Mondays and Wednesdays from 12:15 to 12:45 p.m. in the Avery W. Hall Educational Center beginning March 28.

Each 30-minute class will be a challenging workout for complete body toning. Class size is limited to 20 individuals. The cost is $40 for the 8-week session.

Tai Chi, a soft, inner marshal and health art, will be taught by True-ly Tiger-Lilly on Tuesdays from 5:15 to 6:15 p.m. in the Phase II Cardiovascular and Pulmonary Rehabilitation Area at Peninsula Regional.

The next 8-week session of this ancient Chinese practice begins March 28. The cost is $50 for the full session.

After treatment with our lithotripter (Greek for stone crusher), all that's left of a kidney stone is mere dust.

While our patient reclines comfortably, an x-ray machine aims the lithotripter's series of pulsating waves toward the stone - reducing it without invasive surgery. The advantages of lithotripsy are many: no pain or scarring, minimal anesthesia, and usually just a few days recovery. Since the Peninsula Stone Center has the area's only on-site lithotripter, treatment can happen when you need it. 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

To learn more, contact your physician. If you need a physician, call our Physician Referral Line at 410-543-7090 or 1-888-290-7090.

Wor-Wic to hold early registration

Wor-Wic Community College is offering area residents an opportunity to obtain academic counseling, take diagnostic assessments and register early for credit classes being offered this summer and fall.

Early registration is available Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., from April 10-20 at Wor-Wic's campus on the corner of Route 50 and Walston Switch Road in Salisbury. Early registration is encouraged for students to obtain the best selection of classes.

Early registration services include academic counseling to assist anyone interested in attending college who is unsure about how to apply or undecided about a program of study. Diagnostic assessments, which last approximately two-and-a-half hours and cover reading comprehension, English usage and mathematics, are also offered free to anyone interested in applying to Wor-Wic.

The diagnostic assessments are required for all new students who do not have a high school diploma or the equivalent, new students who register for six or more credit hours, students who register for an English or mathematics course, students who register beyond 15 cumulative credit hours, or students who are currently in high school.

The assessments are administered by appointment at Wor-Wic's campus during the day and in the evening and at the college's Berlin-Ocean City Instructional Center in Berlin during the day.

The results of the assessments are used for class placement and they do not affect a student's acceptance into the college. Wor-Wic has an open door admission policy so that age, economic status, ethnic background or prior schooling does not stand in the way of admission.

UMES students revive drab thrift store

The University of Maryland Eastern Shore's Department of Human Ecology faculty and students turned what was once a drab basement thrift store into a vibrant fashion boutique for the senior patrons at MAC Inc. Area Agency on Aging.

What started out as a class/service activity to simply rearrange merchandise at the MAC's Thrift Store, became a major undertaking as volunteers sprouted creative ways to make the store resemble a high fashion boutique.

Under the leadership of Dr. Shirley Hymon-Parker, Chair of the Department of Human Ecology, volunteer faculty: Dr. Missale Kumelachew and Elka Stevens, along 15 student volunteers and four university physical plant employees working after hours, the basement space of MAC on Riverside Drive, once an old hospital, came alive.

Thanks also to area businesses like Duron Paint, Sherwin Williams, and Sears of Salisbury, that donated paint, wallpaper and merchandise fixtures.

After sorting and weeding through the merchandise, dusting, scrubbing floors, painting ceilings, walls, floors, constructing a partitions for a wire cage area, wall-papering, putting in new fixtures and remerchandising the clothing and accessories, The Thrift Store, renamed "Once In My Closet Thrift Shop," took on new life.

Dr. Hymon-Parker will also be conducting wardrobe workshops utilizing clothing and accessories from the thrift shop to show seniors how they can look great for less.

Workshop will be conducted for seniors attending MAC Centers in Wicomico, Worcester and Somerset.

UMES promotes safe spring break

Spring Break: it's what college students look forward to from the first day of the term. People will be heading off to the beach, the ski slopes and just about everywhere else imaginable.

This year, the University of Maryland Eastern Shore's BAC-CHUS and GAMMA Affiliates is helping students have a "Safe Spring Break...The time of your life." It's an opportunity to develop friendships, relationships, and pictures!

The Safe Break Campaign, a national program of The BAC-

CHUS and GAMMA Peer Education Network, is a chance for UMES students to get ready for Spring Break and learn how to play it safe. Through a variety of fun activities and events, the program promotes tips to having a healthy, enjoyable Spring Break.

The main goal of the campaign at UMES is to get students to take the safe Spring Break Pledge. By taking the pledge, students promise not to drink and drive, not let their friends' drink and drive or ride with an impaired driver.

This national campaign is sponsored by Inter-Collegiate Communications. In addition to these activities at UMES, Safe Spring Break campaigns are in full swing on hundreds of other college and university campuses across the nation. For more information contact the Office of Community Relations at 410-651-6669 or 7580

MARYLAND DEPARTMENT OF THE ENVIRONMENT

Notice of Intent to Establish
Total Maximum Daily Loads (TMDLs)
of Nitrogen, Phosphorus, and Biochemical Oxygen Demand (BOD)
for The Manokin River
in Somerset County, MD

Section 303(d) of the federal Clean Water Act requires Maryland to: (1) identify waters, known as water quality limited segments (WQLSs), where technology-based effluent limitations and other required controls cannot achieve water quality standards; (2) for each listed water, establish Total Maximum Daily Loads (TMDLs) for pollutants preventing the attainment of water quality standards; and (3) offer an opportunity for public review and comment on the proposed TMDLs.

The Manokin River was identified on the State's 1996 list of WQLSs because of low dissolved oxygen and seasonal algal blooms. Consequently, the Department is establishing three TMDLs for the Manokin River, for nitrogen, phosphorus, and Biochemical Oxygen Demand (BOD). The TMDLs set the maximum load limit for each substance. Each TMDL also reflects load allocations to point sources and non-point sources and a margin of safety, which accounts for uncertainty in the procedures used to estimate the TMDLs.

Once established by the State, the TMDLs will be subject to approval by the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). The established TMDLs will support the measures needed to restore water quality in the Manokin River.

OPPORTUNITY FOR PUBLIC REVIEW AND COMMENT

The draft TMDL document is available by written request to Margie Crawford at the Water Management Administration, Maryland Department of the Environment, 2800 Broening Highway, Baltimore, MD 21224, or by telephone at (410) 631-3634. For technical information please direct your request to Ms. Paryse Turgeon, Technical and Regulatory Services Administration at the same mailing address or by telephone at 410-631-3183. Anyone wishing to review the draft TMDLs and supporting information may call Ms. Crawford during normal business hours. The draft TMDLs are also available from the internet at web site <http://www.mde.state.md.us>. A copy of the draft TMDL document has also been placed in the Somerset County Library, 11767 South Beechwood Street, Princess Anne, Md., phone: (410) 651-0882.

Written comments concerning the draft TMDLs may be submitted to the Department on or before April 12, 2000 and should be sent to Ms. Crawford at the above address. If there is sufficient interest, a public hearing on this matter will be held. All comments received during the comment period will be considered and the TMDLs revised as appropriate.

Lankford to have broadened responsibilities at SYSCO Corp.

Lankford

SYSCO Corp. announced last week that Larry J. Accardi, 51, who is currently senior vice president of operations, northeast region, has been elected executive vice president, merchandising services and multi-unit sales, effective July 1.

Accardi succeeds Thomas E. Lankford, who will retain his position as executive vice president but will have broadened responsibilities for foodservice operations and the FreshPoint produce subsidiary, a pending acquisition.

Previously, the company had announced on Jan. 11, that Accardi would be replacing O. Wayne Duncan, 62, who was planning to retire.

However, due to SYSCO's increased acquisition activity, fold-out facility construction plans on both the East and West coasts and the continued expansion of precision steak-cutting programs, senior management and the Board of Directors asked Duncan to reconsider his early retirement plans. As a result, Duncan will continue as senior vice president of operations, southeast region.

Lankford, 52, began his career in foodservice distribution at the founding of his family's business, S.E. Lankford, Jr. Produce Company, the predecessor to SYSCO's eastern Maryland operating company.

After graduating from the University of Maryland in 1969 with a B.S. in agricultural economics, he joined the company as vice president. When it merged with SYSCO in 1981 to become Lankford-Sysco Food Services, Inc., he was named president and also later served as chairman of three other SYSCO subsidiaries. In 1995, he was elected senior vice president of operations, northeast region. Lankford and his wife Bonnie are the parents of two daughters and a son and reside in Houston.

SYSCO, generating annualized sales in excess of $18.5 billion, provides products and services to about 325,000 customers, including restaurants, healthcare and educational institutions, lodging establishments and other foodservice operations. The SYSCO distribution network currently extends throughout the entire contiguous United States as well as portions of Alaska and Canada.

■ The first Better Living Expo, sponsored by the Optimist Club of Salisbury, opened in March 1963

By Laura Spinella

Some would argue the greater Salisbury area is still a rural community, unspoiled and tucked neatly away in the middle of the Delmarva Peninsula. And for those who hail from cities filled with skyscrapers, claustrophobic traffic and jammed sidewalks, it's probably a fair statement.

But there are many whose roots have been firmly planted on Delmarva for generations who recall a simpler life. It's an interesting point of contention any seventh-grade civics class could debate for a week — that is, if they still had civics class.

Did you know, for instance, in 1963 the population of Wicomico County was 49,050, compared to a projected population of 84,000 expected in the 2000 Census?

A ride in the car in any direction would have quickly become a trip to the country, with numerous farms dotting the landscape.

Those wishing to travel by air couldn't get a flight out in 1963; commercial flights from Salisbury didn't begin until later that decade.

Downtown was the hub of Salisbury, where Montgomery Ward was located before it moved to Route 13, which is before it was located in The Centre at Salisbury.

And forget the "new mall." For that matter, forget the "old mall," it wasn't built until 1968.

The Super Giant store was there though, a staple of our community since 1959. During the 1960s, in addition to your grocery list, you could also bring your K-Mart list, as they carried a wide variety of household goods.

Peninsula Regional Medical Center was just a little general hospital on the corner 37 years ago. In 1963, fewer than 14,000 patients were treated in the emergency room. Last year, Peninsula Regional Medical Center dealt with 50,000 emergency care cases by year's end. The medical staff has grown from a mere 61 to an impressive 225 physicians.

Salisbury High School and Wicomico High School had a combined total of 470 graduates in 1963. When caps and gowns are donned this June, the cumulative total graduating from three area high schools will be nearly double that.

That same year, the first Better Living Expo was held at the Wicomico Youth & Civic Center, with some 17,000 in attendance, a noteworthy number considering the rural surroundings of the time.

But changes and progress have not gone unnoticed by members of the Optimist Club, who have sponsored the event since its inception.

The Better Living Expo has experienced a metamorphosis in recent years, perhaps none as dramatic as this year's expo, scheduled for March 17, 18 and 19.

The concept of "better living" has changed a great deal in the past few decades.

People are still interested in things that can make life easier, but the term "better living" has expanded.

Eric Edstrom, who has been involved with the show for more than a decade, said, "It now encompasses the things that make life better. It's really evolved from a home improvement show to a better living environment."

A testament to that is the wide range of vendors patrons will find at the expo.

Nontraditional vendors such as hot tub retailers, piano and cosmetic suppliers, as well as country club representatives, will be on hand.

They will be intermingled with more common offerings like lawn care specialists and appliance dealers, bringing to expogers an eclectic blend of ideas, products and services.

More than 130 vendors are expected to take part in this year's show.

"A large number of vendors, especially those who are service-oriented, conduct demonstrations and give away handy items," said Maury Fields, who serves at the expo's chairman.

The 2000 Better Living Expo will host a variety of new and interesting vendors, including area chiropractors, mobile phone services, general contractors, Internet servers and travel agencies.

In addition, the Better Living Expo will be the site of a sports and fitness display to be held in the Midway Room of the civic center.

The Optimist Club has also launched a brand-new Web site dedicated to both its ongoing programs and the Better Living Expo.

"People will be able to access this site all year long to find out about the programs we offer and to keep track of the various teams we sponsor," said Optimist member Terry Johnson, who helped design the site.

The site offers up-to-the-minute information on vendors who are participating in this year's show.

The first expo boasted an appearance by the Mercury 7 space capsule, quite an awesome sight for rural Wicomico County.

Subsequent expo crowds have been treated to athletic stars such as Brooks Robinson, and a number of beauty queens have been paraded through the civic center as well.

"The focus has shifted somewhat. We want to promote that one-on-one contact between customers and the vendors at the expo.

"The show is an opportunity to give people ideas, whether it involves decorative things for the home, services for the home or demonstrations

A Friend of Youth

The Optimist Club's motto is "A Friend of Youth." The money raised by the Better Living Expo goes to support their numerous youth-oriented programs and scholarships.

Progress is evident even among the Optimists, whose original motto decades ago was "Friend of the Delinquent Boy."

Nowadays this service-based club focuses on and promotes activities for both boys and girls. In addition to a number of annual scholarships, they conduct a Youth Appreciation Program that recognizes outstanding area youngsters at the high school level. They also host an oratorical contest each year that involves children from local middle schools.

In May, the Optimist Club holds its "Respect for Law" program, which also involves area youth.

One of the largest and most popular endeavors is the Little League program the group sponsors each year.

"We operate the Central Little League, which we call the Optimist League, out of the Prince Street area. We take care of the coaching, announcing, umpiring, concessions and the scoring," said Edstrom.

The Little League program involves 80 to 120 youngsters and registration will be held during the expo for ages 9 to 12.

Last year the Optimist Club raised more than $35,000 through its various projects, including the Better Living Expo. All of the money raised goes to directly back into the community.

"The Optimist Club recognizes that the youth are our future. It is our goal to provide them with more opportunities, acknowledge their accomplishments and sponsor their endeavors," said Edstrom.

Wrought iron returns to the patio scene

By Laura Spinella

From Memorial Day to Labor Day, a great deal of our leisure time is spent outdoors, right in the backyard. The type of furnishings we use to entertain and relax in that setting has evolved tremendously over the past few decades.

The standard redwood picnic table, which served as the dining space for family barbecues years ago, is barely considered functional in today's market of trendy designer outdoor furniture.

"One of the very first things we want to know from a customer is whether the furniture will be used in a Florida room or screened porch versus a more traditional outdoor setting," said Lynn Tyndall, owner of Tyndall Patio.

There has been an enormous increase in these rooms, particularly on the Eastern Shore. According to Tyndall, the comfort and function of such a space are important ingredients to the overall look the customer is trying to achieve. Wicker and wrought iron furniture, often intermingled, are among the most popular types of furniture for enclosed rooms.

"Another determining factor, and one that takes some thought, is whether or not you plan to dine in the room or use it as a gathering place," she suggested. If you're dining, you may want to invest more money in a quality table, large enough to accommodate guests.

A 48-inch round table is considered standard, but oval and rectangular ones are also readily available; Tyndall's can even order tables without the umbrella hole for a more finished look.

"Larger tables are quite useful. We have lots of people who find them to be especially handy during the holidays when they need extra seating," she said. Trends this year will include a mixture of materials, wrought iron, aluminum and wicker, giving Florida rooms an eclectic upscale feel.

Tyndall also noted often the most inviting look is achieved when this type of room is a blend of "outdoor furniture" and other smaller pieces that reflect the owner's personal taste.

"People have a tendency to do a seasonal porch in one type of furniture, right down to the smallest accessory. A combination of things, such as wrought iron furniture with a wicker chair accent and a few antique pieces to embellish a room can create a beautiful, yet functional look," said Tyndall.

Fabrics are another consideration when selecting outdoor furniture. The choices are nearly as vast as a traditional indoor sofa, but are much more durable. An experienced sales person should be able to guide you equally in your choice of both furniture and fabric.

Tyndall said although it isn't necessary to bring cushions in during bad weather it is advisable.

"We always tell people it's like a car. It's not necessary to garage it, but it certainly helps with the longevity of the vehicle if you do."

True outdoor furnishings have also given way to today's more active lifestyles. Ornamental ponds, courtyards, stone terraces and poolside are among the growing list of places you will find outdoor furniture aside from the standard deck.

"When people choose to entertain or relax, they want to do it in a comfortable environment; it's much more than the concrete slab from a generation ago. They want a shady, well-landscaped spot to read or visit with company. Outdoor furnishings play a large role in that," she said.

furnishing that is enjoying an enthusiastic revival in the market. Thirty-seven years ago, it may very well have been part of the display at the Better Living Expo as an example of fashionable outdoor furniture.

As PVC and aluminum came more into vogue, interest in wrought iron faded somewhat. This season, black and green wrought iron furniture, in combination with all-weather wicker, are debuting on patios everywhere.

One of the things that has helped make it more appealing to consumers is the use of thicker, more comfortable cushions. Although its look is upscale and appealing, it does require some occasional painting maintenance.

When all is decorated and done, the message with outdoor furniture — whether you are shopping for your patio or an enclosed porch — is to have fun with it.

Tyndall said, "There's so much to choose from. We have people come into our store thinking they know exactly what they're after. But once they become aware of the selection and possibility, they're amazed at their options." Outdoor furnishings are a smorgasbord of selection for the backyard, with an endless array of designs and price ranges. But no matter what your budget, unfortunately, the ants are still included.

Traditional PVC, aluminum and wrought iron are the most popular types of furniture. The furniture made from PVC piping is a furniture grade PVC, quite different from the piping in your home. It is virtually impervious to the elements and will not rust, corrode and requires no touch-up painting.

Aluminum, although maintenance-free, is lightweight which can be a problem on very windy days.

Wrought iron is one type of Today a fantasy, tomorrow reality

By Laura Spinella

Imagine a waterless washing machine or a dryer that uses microwaves instead of a traditional heat source to dry your clothes.

Pretty wild, huh? That is, until you consider this plausible scenario involving a husband and wife as they pass by a state-of-the-art appliance exhibit at the Better Living Expo, circa 1963:

Exhibitor: "Ma'am, have you ever thought about the convenience of an automatic wringer-free washing machine? One that's not kept in the out-of-doors on your chilly porch, but a washing machine right inside your house? Would you like to see how an automatic clothes dryer operates? Think of the time it would save — put your wet clothes into a machine, shut the door and press a button. No more lugging a basket of heavy wet clothes outside or waiting for a sunny day."

Wife: "Well, as exciting and convenient as that is, I think maybe it's for folks who are really well-to-do, but for us — it's just too much of a luxury."

Husband: (He is marginally impressed by the technology and completely unaffected by the convenience.) "That's something, all right. The next thing you know, they'll have a machine that will heat your supper in two minutes flat and another to clean up the dirty dishes," he chuckles as he and the Mrs. stroll on to visit the next vendor ...

Thank goodness the times were a-changin'. And while you may not appreciate the convenience of a frost-free freezer on a daily basis, and your kids have no clue how or why you'd heat Spaghetti-O's on the stove instead of the microwave, that hasn't always been the case.

"One of the major misconceptions of appliances is that they've been around forever," said Gary Larmore, owner of Shore Appliances. "It really wasn't until after World War II that appliances became an integrated part of the home. In the 1960s we saw the first surge of appliances promoting the idea of convenient time-saving devices. In more recent decades, the idea of energy saving appliances, in terms of cost, has become more pertinent."

While the evolution of appliances has been vast and steady, interestingly, prices have not experienced the same growth. For example, in the early 1960s a 14-cubic foot refrigerator would have cost you in the neighborhood of $400 to $600. Today, a much superior, 21-cubic foot, frost-free refrigerator/freezer costs about the same amount of money.

Larmore suggests this phenomenon is because of an overabundance of product from the manufacturers.

"The industry can produce about two-and-a-half times the amount of product the customer base can absorb in a year," he said.

This all translates well for the consumer, who can expect a competitive market and an excellent selection of products from which to choose.

Market research shows about 85 percent of homes in the United States today have a dishwasher and upwards of 90 percent have a refrigerator. The appliance industry operates mainly on a replacement cycle, not a new growth cycle.

"Let's face it, you're not going to run out and buy a new refrigerator because it's on sale. Either the old one has worn out or you are building or remodeling," said Larmore.

The average life expectancy of an appliance is 10 to 15 years.

When shopping for new appliances, Larmore said customers are looking for convenience and innovative developments such as the Maytag Gemini range.

This nifty little eye-catcher offers two separate ovens within the same traditional 30 inches of space. Cook a roast in the top portion and throw in a tray of chicken nuggets in the bottom, for those with finickier appetite.

There is also a trend toward better gas cooking stainless steel appliances reminiscent of professional restaurant equipment.

"People are looking for the stainless steel appliances, they're clean looking with a flexible design. Sealed Ceran cooking surfaces and 24-inch deep built-in refrigerators are in great demand," he said.

Larmore said the configuration of refrigerators and washing machines is changing. Ideas such as easy-reach freezers, located on the bottom, and front loading washing machines have come, gone and are on their way back again.

Larmore said these are not merely gimmicks to make you buy, but are often part of a more efficient, cost-saving design.

"Front-loading washing machines use much less water with greater efficiency. Perhaps that's not an overwhelming consideration here, but in many parts of the country the cost of water is at a premium, making this washing machine very attractive to the consumer. They're also easier on fabrics," he said.

Although Shore Appliance won't be able to bring that microwave-induced dryer or waterless washing machine to this year's expo, they will be on hand with a dynamic display of the latest appliances and information.

When it comes to those cutting edge marvels of technology, be careful what you chuckle at — you may find one at your house in the not-too-distant future.

Hot tubs are no longer unattainable luxuries

By Laura Spinella

A hot tub or spa is wonderful place that offers relaxation and recreation for friends and family. Once considered a luxury item, hot tub sales have seen a steady increase in recent years. Middle class America is quickly becoming hooked on the fun and therapeutic value of a hot tub.

"A lot of people are including hot tubs in their plans when building a house. Many older people are finding out the fantastic medicinal benefits of using a hot tub. They're certainly not considered an unattainable luxury anymore," said John Jarvis, president of Atlantic Aquatech, with locations in Salisbury and Berlin.

"Our biggest demographic nowadays is the father, mother and two kids. It's really become a family activity," he said.

Running a close second are retired people — they are discovering the solitude and peaceful surroundings of a spa along with the therapeutic advantages.

There have been a number of studies that show a correlation between soaking in a spa and subsequent health benefits.

Pain from excessive sports activities, minor strains and arthritis can all benefit from the therapeutic use of warm water known as hydromassage.

Kara Konlian, physical therapist and owner of Aquacare Rehabilitation, said, "Spas provide wonderful massaging benefits through the combination of jets and water temperature. Basically, the body reacts to sensory stimulation, shutting down the pain."

The average spa is kept at slightly warmer than body temperature, but never higher than 104 degrees. Built-in thermostats keep the water from rising above that plateau.

"For older people, we really recommend a temperature below 100 degrees, and that they remain in the tub no longer than 10 to 15 minutes at a time," said Konlian.

Whether you are interested in rejuvenating sore muscles and joints or simply want to relax after a hectic day, a hot tub may be the key to inner peace that life has been lacking.

Jarvis said the hot tub industry has evolved tremendously during the past two decades.

"Initially, hot tubs were manufactured by swimming pool companies because the equipment and chemistry are very similar. We've seen a transition to spas being marketed solely by hot tub manufacturers. Ultimately, this makes for a better product," he said.

Spa sizes range from two seaters to larger ones that can comfortably accommodate seven adults.

There are a number of transportable spas on the market in addition to a large selection of better spas which are full, hot and chemically treated, ready for use anytime.

Jarvis recommends the best location for a spa is on top of a deck surface. This allows for easiest and safest access to the spa, as well as its working parts.

The notion of a big electric bill is one consideration when deciding to invest in a spa. Costs can vary according to the quality of the product.

Atlantic Aquatech has been a dealer of Hot Spring Spas since 1985. These spas are totally insulated, resulting in lower operating costs.

"Hot Springs is a leader in the industry. They've always been on the cutting edge with technology and design," he said.

What's old is new again in decor

By Laura Spinella

The concept of "what's old is new again" is a prevalent theme in home decor. Flip through the pages of any decorating magazine and you will find what's hot is more likely to be found rummaging around at a flea market than in an upscale designer showroom.

In fact, the household wares from the Better Living Expo circa 1963 would most likely be a hit with today's shoppers. Decorators, collectors and antique dealers are scrambling to meet the demand for old metal kitchenware, bedraggled Hoosier cabinets and paint-chipped wooden dough bins, just to name a few.

Collectibles, rather than textbook-defined antiques, are at the root of Market Street Antiques' success.

"One hundred years or older is the usual definition of an antique. For the most part, that's not what people are interested in for their homes. We don't have a huge inventory of antiques fitting that criteria, but items from your grandmother's day are in particular demand," said Marie Vogel, manager of the Salisbury antique mall.

The 95-plus vendors who sell their wares at Market Street do have to fit a certain specification when setting up shop in the old Feldman's Furniture building, which is still owned by the family.

"We don't allow flea market-type merchandise, used TVs or stereo equipment. We do allow a few vendors to carry soaps and candles because it is in such demand," she said.

To say Market Street Antiques carries an eclectic blend of merchandise would be a fantastic understatement. Many of the vendors specialize in one type of "old" vs. another.

Fine china and high quality glassware may be featured in one booth, while a few feet away is "the best of the June Cleaver collection" — a retrospective of the 1950s.

ELECTRIFYING LAMPS

Long before Mrs. O'Leary's cow kicked over the lantern that started the great Chicago fire or Thomas Edison's invention of the light bulb, lamps of one sort or another have been illuminating homes and businesses.

Nowadays, they are a growing part of the antique market, dating back to the turn of the century, and catching the eye of collectors everywhere.

Anne and Don Moulton have collected a vast variety of lamps in almost every form and have turned their interest into a unique business. Gramps Lamps, located in Parsonsburg, specializes in the restoration and conversion of lamps.

Don (also known as Gramps) has turned electricity into an art form, wiring heirloom ginger jars, antique vases and old oil lamps.

"People have things like that sitting around from their grandmother's day. We do the polish work, help them select a shade, add a base and once it's wired they have a beautiful working lamp," said Anne Moulton, pointing out an antique ginger jar recently converted for a customer. The lid to the jar had been broken, rendering the piece somewhat useless to its owner.

Their small shop is bursting with old and antique oil lamps including an ornate "fat lamp" dating back to the late 1700s that originally burned whale oil. A

When Market Street Antiques first opened two-and-a-half years ago, the demand was great for items from the 1950s. That has since been replaced with furniture, knickknacks and notions that have more of a "minimalist" appeal.

"One of the most popular trends is what we call 'country primitive,'" said Vogel. Interesting examples of the new trend are featured throughout the antique mall. Basically, it is defined as wares dating back several decades that are in their original unrestored condition.

Gray agate metal pots and colanders trimmed with rust, tattered cupboards, old quilts, shelving converted from an old hen house and simple stick built furniture are part of the crude look.

Vogel said it is not uncommon to have decorators come in and choose items to complement a room they are designing for someone.

Several vendors were sporting old painted shutters, hinged together to create a unique decorative screen or to serve as a backdrop to display other bric-a-brac.

Among the most popular vendors at Market Street Antiques is Westbrooke Cottage. Inviting scented candles and potpourri are intermingled with a lesson in recycled goods.

"Within the primitive country look,

This display at Market Street Antiques is an example of the primitive country style that is gaining popularity.

you will often find new items that are made from old things," Vogel pointed out. Wood salvaged from an old barn or home has taken new shape in the form of tables and cabinets that would fit perfectly into today's folksy decor.

The same concept is used by another artisan who uses old pieces of metal to create decorative sculptures. A discarded piece of corrugated metal is painted tastefully with an American flag, making it a unique conversation piece and perfect Fourth of July decoration. Her creations have found a loyal following at Market Street.

Most of the vendors at Market Street Antiques obtain their wares from estate sales; Vogel said prices will tend to creep up as the popularity of an item escalates and fewer of them become available.

One of the most interesting aspects of antiques and collectibles is how demand drives everything. Unlike their contemporary competition, there is no assembly-line production; merchandise is a limited treasure hunt into someone else's past.

High quality furniture is a consistent seller in the downtown store.

"Our inventory is constantly growing when it comes to furniture," said Vogel. "People know they are getting a well-made piece of furniture that has withstood decades of wear at what is generally considered a bargain price."

Teacarts, marble topped tables, wrought iron lamps, wooden plant stands and overstuffed chairs are quickly making their way from grandma's house to yours. The decorated facades which served as a backdrop for Feldman's Furniture are now the perfect display case for the vendors at Market Street.

"People can really get a feel for the way something will look in their home. The backdrops also tend to inspire people's imagination as to how a piece could work in their decor," Vogel said.

"One of the most interesting things about collecting is the pieces that have appeal nationwide, versus those that are strictly regional," she said.

Vogel noted (as you might expect) anything with a chicken on it sells well on the Eastern Shore. However, a Victorian-era painting might sell better in New England.

Market Street has capitalized on this phenomenon by selling a small portion of their merchandise on eBay, the Internet auction house.

"We recently had a plate in the store that was priced at about $30; the last three minutes at auction on eBay, the bidding went to more than $400. That doesn't happen often, but it certainly is very exciting for our vendors," she said.

In early spring, Market Street Antiques will expand into yet another portion of the vast former furniture showroom. Forty-five more vendors will join this wildly successful adventure into yesteryear's charm.

You can also tap into Market Street at its Web site, www.msantiques.com. Whether you are shopping for a few knick-knacks for the curio cabinet or looking for pieces that denote the latest trends, Market Street Antiques has much to offer.

Paved driveway offers readily visible benefits

By Laura Spinella

If you are a homeowner, there is undoubtedly a driveway that leads to your house. And if that driveway is filled with gray stone, common to many homes in this area, chances are you probably curse it on a daily basis.

Not a season goes by you don't battle that unsightly, bumpy — not to mention merciless to the naked feet — stone-filled driveway.

Come mid-July, you'll spend a sweltering morning crouched over, pulling weeds from between the stones as the neighbor's kid mockingly whizzes down his blacktop drive on his skateboard. Wintertime ruts created by ice and snow leave behind a muddy, unattractive mess.

The benefits and good looks of a blacktop or concrete driveway are obvious. In some parts of the country, a paved driveway is almost a staple that comes with a new house. Here on the Eastern Shore, however, it appears to be more of an afterthought.

Local builder Hugh McLaughlin said, "Blacktopping a driveway is an added expense most new home owners are willing to forego for the time being. In other parts of the country, a blacktop driveway may be part of the covenants of a homeowners' association, but generally not in this area."

Whether it is the expense involved or simply a trend common to this area, a paved driveway is still considered an amenity for many. Jim Brown and his son own Chesapeake Paving & Sealing Inc. They have between them 22 years of combined experience in the blacktopping business. Locally, he said, business is on the rise as more people on the Shore are choosing to blacktop their driveways.

"It's not an inexpensive investment. The average cost is $2,000 to $4,000, depending on the size of the driveway and its condition," he said. Much of that expense is determined by the underlying surface of a driveway and how much preparation work needs to be done to get a good result.

Brown regularly attends seminars focusing on his business. He said blacktopping costs in this area are competitive with costs in other areas, with some half-dozen reputable blacktop contractors in the area. He suggested when considering a blacktop paving company, you make sure they are a licensed and insured Maryland home improvement contractor.

Recommendations are another good source when deciding on a contractor.

"Customer satisfaction is everything in this business. With Chesapeake Paving, we do whatever is necessary to make sure the customer is completely satisfied with the job. If (a potential contractor) can't direct you to several satisfied customers, I'd certainly look elsewhere," he said.

Once you've had that beautiful driveway installed, proper maintenance is crucial. Brown said the edges of a paved driveway need to be sprayed to keep wire-grass from invading the blacktop, and it should be sealed every couple of years.

"This is another service we offer. You can seal a driveway yourself, but we use a commercial grade sealant that's much more efficient," he said. The average life expectancy of a well-maintained blacktop driveway is at least 20 years.

Concrete is another option homeowners may consider when choosing a permanent surface for their driveway. John Bononno, owner of J.A. Bononno & Son Concrete Inc., said the life expectancy for a concrete driveway is far greater than for blacktop, and it offers several other advantages.

"It is more of an investment, but concrete is stain resistant to things like gasoline, weeds can't penetrate it and it is heat tolerant," he said. Homeowners who concrete their driveways won't have to give it much thought after installation, as it is virtually maintenance-free, and it offers more decorative options for the homeowner. Expect to spend about $2.50 per square foot for a concrete project, he said.

Don "Gramps" Moulton, right, repairs and rewires older lamps as well as electrifying all sorts of items that may serve as lamps. Examples of his work, above, can be seen in his Parsonsburg shop, known as Gramps Lamps.

large portion of their small, but successful business is converting these types of lamps, as well as candle sticks, into electric ones.

Painted globe lamps, also known as "Gone With the Wind" lamps, are always a popular style.

"We see a lot of these with a broken top globe. We can replace the globe and match the artwork to the bottom globe of the lamp," said Anne Moulton. Lamps from every era are represented — if not in the main shop, in Don's workshop where numerous lamps line the shelves, waiting for their turn to be spruced up and rewired.

The Moultons have been collecting lamps for about 15 years and have become quite astute at recognizing old lamps vs. an antique.

"With oil lamps, the glass will tell you a lot about it. You have to be able to differentiate between metal and brass with electric lamps. There's a lot to consider when determining the age of a lamp," she said.

Small yard doesn't prevent gardening

By Christine Arpe Gang
Scripps Howard News Service

Six years ago Barbara and Roy Mansberg happily gave up a large yard when they moved to a smaller house. But they weren't about to stop gardening.

"I wanted a place where I wouldn't need a lawn mower or a wheelbarrow," said Roy, a retired small-business owner who is enjoying a second career in the lawn and garden department at Home Depot. "This is perfect."

"This" is a zero-lot line home in Memphis, Tenn., with a yard big enough to satisfy their earthly urges but not large enough to gobble their energy.

Their first task in developing their compact, richly planted garden was to kill every blade of grass. Their only lawn is in front of the house, a spot maintained by the homeowners association.

Roy estimates he spends 30 minutes a week in the summer doing routine maintenance such as pulling weeds and grooming plants.

"In the spring I do about three days of planting, but it's cool then and that's what I want to be doing," he said.

Although they have many containers of blooming plants, the couple spend no time watering. None!

They can go on vacation without worrying about their plants dying, because Roy installed a drip irrigation system that snakes around the entire garden, hiding under handrails and eaves and meandering through beds.

If he didn't point out the tubing, most visitors would barely notice it.

Each container is watered by the system. Pots on tables and the decks have emitters stuck into the soil. Hanging plants are watered by drips from above.

Roy sets two timers so everything is watered from 15 to 30 minutes per day, depending on how hot it is.

Barbara, the artistic partner, does the design work, and Roy engineers and installs. They work fast, completing all of the construction and most of the permanent plantings the first year.

Barbara decided a curving path would enable them to plan surprises and delights along its way. It also makes the space appear larger.

After she marked it out using a hose, Roy and a helper installed it. Wood edging material was used to define the beds on either side of the path.

They placed animal statues, small benches, other garden ornaments and special plants at strategic points.

"I like to challenge my grandchildren to count the animals they find in the garden," she said.

The gravel and stepping stone path has another important function. It quickly moves rainwater along a system of swells that drains all of the lots in the development. Shrubs such as photinia and azaleas give the garden evergreen bones during the winter.

"Everyone hates photinia, but I love it," Roy said, referring to the plant's tendency to develop fungus problems. "I spray it with a fungicide in early spring and then again about a week later."

In shady spots, impatiens are used for color, often with hostas in the background. In early spring, azaleas and a Bradford pear put on a show of blossoms. A small water garden with a soothing trickling stream is filled with hardy water lilies, parrot feathers, powdery thalia and water hyacinths, a multiplying plant needing firm control.

"I like the garden to look almost, but not quite, overgrown," Roy said.

Across from the water garden, a lime green ground cover fills in the spaces between some stepping stones laid in a grid. Roy got a start of the sedum-like plant from a friend, but its identity is unknown. A couple of large, variegated privets hide the air-conditioning units. Roy keeps them pruned from behind for access to the equipment.

Because almost every room has a view of the garden, the couple have taken pains to make sure there is always something attractive to see.

From their breakfast table, they look out on part of the deck where they have many containers overflowing with Wave petunias and other annuals.

"In the winter we fill the pots with pansies," Barbara said.

Outside a window of the dining room hang three baskets also filled with petunias. The garden can even be enjoyed at night when it is softly lit.

SMALL PLOT TIPS

Here are some tips for gardening in small spaces from Barbara and Roy Mansberg:

■ First, kill the grass. Instead of a high-maintenance lawn, create flower beds on either side of a path. This will make your garden look larger and mowing unnecessary. Roy sprayed the grass twice with Round-Up before installing the garden.

■ Plan beds so the tallest plants are in the back and the smaller ones in the front. This is a good idea for beds in gardens of any size, but it's especially important in small gardens.

■ Be sure to check labels for a plant's size at maturity before planting it. Make sure it won't grow too large for your space.

■ Watch out for crowding and overgrown plants. Prune and/or divide when plants get out of bounds. Give excess plants to friends.

■ Depend on container plants for much of your seasonal color. Mix upright and trailing plants in pots.

■ Place containers on hard surfaces, such as decks and patios.

■ Mix a slow-release fertilizer such as Osmocote into the potting soil in the spring. Roy adds a little more in August.

■ Use PREEN or another pre-emergent herbicide in the spring to control grassy weeds.

As always there are inviting objects here to please the eye: a garden bench, a small table and chairs, hanging baskets and a window box filled with impatiens near the door. Their small but lush, courtyard type garden is similar to the gardens that inspired them when they were newlyweds in New Orleans. That's where they decided to make gardening a part of their lives.

A pond in a day keeps the doldrums away

By Laura Spinella

In 1963, vendor wares at the Better Living Expo were a sure sign of the times. Crowds gathered to take in featured items like the latest in farm equipment and crop irrigation.

The first expo also offered cutting edge ideas on household appliances and yard maintenance. Electric dryers, automatic dishwashers and gas-powered lawn mowers were all in their infancy, just beginning to make an impact on everyday life.

Today's Better Living Expo still focuses on the convenience items that make work around the house easier. But there are also numerous vendors whose speciality lies in "the things that make life better" and more enjoyable.

One of the better ideas can be found in the backyard. Ornamental ponds are beautiful to look at and can be a fun family project.

Spring is the most popular time of year to consider installing an ornamental pond. A number of landscaping businesses and nurseries are adapting their product lines, featuring all the necessary equipment for installing and maintaining a pond.

Cypress Villa Garden Center, located in Pocomoke City, specializes in what they have fondly dubbed "aquascapes."

Owner Mark Frostrom said, "It's really become a popular and integrated part of our business in the past few years. An in-depth landscaping project is likely to include a pond these days."

Frostrom said there is a market for those who choose to put the pond in themselves, as well as those who want

This backyard site was transformed into a decorative pond in just 12 hours. Ground was broken at 8:30 a.m., above. After the digging was completed, the liner and stones were put in place, right. By 8:30 p.m. that same day, the pond was finished, complete with plantings and mulch.

one professionally installed.

"We suggest 'peanut ponds' for the do-it-yourself project. They're the preformed ponds and hold about 50-75 gallons of water," he said.

For this type of pond, the complete project will cost in the neighborhood of about $500 to $1,000, including all plumbing, electrical supplies, a skimmer, simple plants and fish to fill it.

Frostrom suggested installing an ornamental pond can be somewhat complex, and those who take on the project should research it thoroughly before they begin.

"There's quite a bit to it, with all the electrical components involved and of course, the care and maintenance of the plants and fish as well," he said.

One of the most common misconceptions concerning ornamental ponds is the proper location. Although a sunny spot is preferable, a shady locale can also provide a lovely setting.

"People are afraid to put a pond in near trees because they think the roots will break through. While that's true of concrete, which is porous, it isn't the case for a preformed pond or PVC lining. With trees, the main concern is the leaves, which can become a maintenance issue," he noted.

When Cypress Villa Gardens professionally installs a pond, they generally suggest an area of 11-by-16 feet, using PVC lining, not a pre-molded form.

"This method really lends to the overall creativity of the landscaping project," Frostrom said. "The 11-by-16 size may seem like a lot, but once you collect three or four fish, you've filled up a smaller one."

A pond is an excellent decorative solution for sandy soil areas or odd spots that don't lend themselves to typical landscaping ideas.

Plants are one of the most essential elements for a pond. They provide both esthetic value and are important to the wildlife that will inhabit the pond. Some of the easiest to maintain and heartiest plants are lilies, lotus, cattail and sweet flag.

Frostrom also suggested floating plants, whose roots are detached, such as water lettuce and hyacinth.

Mark Lynch of Johnson's Seed and Feed in Salisbury also specializes in ornamental ponds. They are expanding their inventory this season to keep up with the demand.

"We offer a lot of hands-on advice and can guide you right through all the necessary steps for a successful pond. We have everything customers need, from the pond liners and stones to gravel and all the aquatic plants. In addition to an array of fish we also carry snails and frogs," said Lynch.

Of course once the pond, plants and water are in place you will want to fill your new aquatic environment with a few gilled friends.

Japanese koi, also known as carp, come in a vast rainbow of colors and are among the most popular choices in pond dwellers. Koi can grow to be two to three feet in length and can live decades in a well-maintained pond.

"They're a very personable type of fish, they recognize people and come right up to the surface to be fed once they become acclimated," said Frostrom.

Traditional comet goldfish are the giant orange variety that are often seen in ornamental ponds. They are also quite hardy and more likely to breed.

Cypress Villa Gardens will have a complete working pond on display at the Better Living Expo. Visitors can get first-hand ideas on how an ornamental pond works and they can fit one into their budget and backyard.

At the far end of the pond, a waterfall circulates the water and invokes a sense of peacefulness.

Within two weeks, the water in this pond had cleared up enough to add fish.

Container gardening is an attractive alternative to in-ground planting, allowing better control of soil, fertilizer and watering and transforming decks or patios.

Just as hope begins to fade, it's spring planting time again

By Laura Spinella

Do you ever wander out to your icy-cold shed in the middle of winter, perhaps searching aimlessly for a snow shovel? Off to one side, your eye catches a collection of dirt-covered, cobweb-filled planters from last summer, and you think: "Gee, they never looked so good."

It seems, at that point, spring will never come. But just as hope is fading, there are the first crocuses of late winter. Before long daffodils are in bloom, followed by a parade of grape hyacinths; from there you're just a tulip bed away from spring in full swing.

Once the bulbs have miraculously awakened from their sleep, it's time to think about the flowers that will grace your garden for the next five or six months.

Spring is planting time, and there is much to enjoy. While traditional annual flower beds can be reinvented year after year, trying new additions and configurations, container planting is a popular choice with few boundaries.

Container gardening allows those with limited ground space to grow flowers, herbs and vegetables with relative ease. Decks, screened porches, mailboxes and entryways can all become more inviting with a few well-placed planters.

Flowering plants at eye level are more enjoyable and may even attract a family of hummingbirds to your yard. Delicate plants that may not thrive in this region have a far better prospect of surviving in the controlled environment of a container.

The quality of the soil, which can be questionable in some Eastern Shore areas, and a lack of rainfall are never a problem. It's a moveable feast for the eyes that places all gardeners on common ground.

Any type of vessel can be an interesting choice for your plants, in many cases the more creative the better. Old metal or wooden buckets, baskets, discarded tin watering cans — even a converted mailbox — can provide an interesting venue.

Adequate drainage must be provided and is an important consideration for any container. Pots at least 6 inches deep are recommended for best results.

Mark Lynch, garden specialist, at Johnson's Seed and Feed said, "We've added a lot to the choices in our green house this year. People are looking for more unusual containers. The faux terra cotta pots are very popular and those that look like they're from another era. They're lightweight and durable."

Lynch also suggests a good potting soil such as Schultz or Professional Pro-mix. A container should include either sun or shade plants; varieties are endless. The best configurations are generally achieved by varying the height and fullness of plants.

Lynch suggested a combination of flowing Vinca vines, a spike, some dusty miller to fill it out and marigolds for color to create an attractive planter that is also low-maintenance and heat-tolerant.

"There are countless combinations, some plants do require more care than others. Your local nursery should be able to offer the best advice," he said.

Lynch noted direct sun should be avoided in July and August with even the most tolerant plants.

Four to six herbs in a pot is another interesting idea the folks at Johnson's Seed and Feed recommend.

"Herb pots can be nice to look at, fragrant and useful," Lynch said. "Growing vegetables like tomatoes and peppers in a container is another option that's gaining popularity. You can have great success with this, if you do it right."

They recommend a light, airy potting soil, giving the roots plenty of breathing space. A good breakdown for the soil in a container is 50 percent solid material, 25 percent water and 25 percent air, creating a balanced environment for the plants.

The versatility of container planting can be a wonderful addition to a traditional "in the ground" garden. Even those who are horticulturally challenged will surely find fun and enjoyment that will last throughout the season.

In addition to the advice of local nurseries, an abundance of "how-to" plant information is available on the Internet. Two choice gardening spots are www.dighenet.com, a giant search engine dedicated to gardening; and www.garden.com, offering a host of botanical tips and suggestions.

FLORAL: Silk arrangements provide maintenance-free beauty for your home

"They're also a convenient idea for people who travel a lot."

Just as containers are an important ingredient for decorative outdoor plantings, they are equally important to silk arrangement.

"We often use what people have on hand. But sometimes if they are completely redecorating, it becomes part of the new theme they're introducing in the home," she said.

Using the resources available and her imagination, Jackson once spied a decorative birdcage in a client's home. A combination of silk flowers, ivy and a trail of miniature lights made for an eclectic arrangement that became the centerpiece of their enclosed porch.

In addition to traditional tabletop centerpieces and arrangements for cabinet soffits, Jackson has also created more elaborate designs to compliment foyers and even a grand piano.

Spring can be achieved year-round with the colorful addition of silk flowers to your home or office. A professional silk plant designer can assist with an entire arrangement of flowers, or simply guide you to the best selections in color or style if you choose to create your own botanical masterpiece.

DON'T MISS IT...IT ONLY HAPPENS ONCE A YEAR!

Let's talk lawnmowers

By Laura Spinella

A man enters a lawnmower equipment shop early one Saturday morning. He spies the shiny line-up of metal machinery neatly arranged on the showroom floor, riders to left, push mowers to the right.

The air has the faint aroma of new rubber — it's instant nirvana. A salesman approaches. There's a spontaneous, slap-you-on-the-back comradery between the two.

Horsepower, hydrostatic transmission, deck size, mulching blades — these are just a few of the buzz words they'll exchange. They speak the same language. They're going to talk "lawnmowers."

There are a number of serious considerations when choosing a new lawnmower, according to mower expert Tim Tyndall of Tyndalls' Inc., located in Salisbury.

The first consideration is — how dedicated are you to your lawn?

"A lot of what drives people when deciding between a push mower and a rider is how much time they want to invest. If you have between a half acre and whole acre of property, you might be undecided between the two," he said.

Tyndall said either is an appropriate choice. The push mower will get you a lot of exercise, but it also can be a taxing chore in the heat of the summer.

"Some people don't want to spend the money on a rider, thinking with a self-propelled mower they can just get it done early in the day. That's unrealistic because the grass stays wet until midday," he said.

Push mowers typically have a 21-inch cutting area and riding lawn mowers begin at 30 inches. Customers can choose from standard mowers or the more popular self-propelled mowers, which come in a variety of speeds, making the grass-cutting chore go even faster.

"We generally recommend the five speed push-mower, it offers the customer the most diversity," he said. The John Deere line Tyndalls' carries offers 11 different models of push mowers, covering a wide range of prices.

"A lot of times you get the fellow who has a small yard, but takes a great deal of pride in it. The Cadillac of push-mowers is probably what he's looking for; there's certainly something for every type of homeowner.

When considering a riding lawn mower, Tyndall said one of the most frequently asked questions is, "How long will it take to cut the lawn?"

"That depends on the deck size and, again, how much time you want to invest," he said. The most popular size decks in a rider are 38-, 42- and 48-inch cuts.

Tyndall recommended 38- or 42-inch decks for half-acre to under two acre properties. These mowers generally range from 13 to 17 horsepower.

"The deck size and horsepower work together as one function — basically, the larger they are, the less time you'll spend cutting your grass. Here on the Shore, horsepower isn't a huge consideration in terms of the terrain, but in other parts of the country you certainly want to allow for enough," he said.

If a mini-farm has always been your heart's desire, a business like Tyndalls' Inc. also carries the type of tractor necessary to keep large acreage neat and tidy. Tyndall said hydrostatic, or automatic transmission, riding mowers are certainly preferable to a straight gear drive.

"In terms of convenience, it allows the customer so much more freedom when cutting their lawn," he said. Customers may also want to consider features such as mulching blades, grass catchers and thatchers.

"Mulching is a good thing if you're very dedicated to your yard," he said, "because in the spring, mulching will make your grass grow. When customers come into our store, we try to ascertain whether they want to cut their grass or manicure their lawn. That helps with the decision-making process; there's certainly a mower to meet every need."

Tyndalls' Inc. has been the business of selling John Deere equipment since 1949. Tim Tyndall said although the majority of his business is in large farm equipment, he also sells a great many of the high-quality John Deere lawn mowers during the year.

The average life expectancy of most riding mowers is seven to 10 years, according to Consumer Reports. The average life expectancy of a John Deere lawn tractor, however, is about 20 years, the magazine said.

Meatland to close Princess Anne store

By LIZ HOLLAND

The Meatland store in Princess Anne, which has been struggling to compete against newcomer Food Lion, will close April 1, leaving just one store in the Somerset Plaza shopping center.

The store is one of the company's older ones and hasn't been doing very well in the past several years since Food Lion opened on the opposite side of Route 13, said Guy Sykes, president of Camellia, Meatland's parent company.

"We decided it was in the best interest of the company to shut it down," Sykes said. "In a small community where you have two stores, the pie sort of gets split."

In addition to competition from Food Lion, the Meatland store suffered another setback when the CVS Pharmacy next door closed in March 1999.

Although CVS continued to pay rent on the store through the end of its lease, Meatland's business declined after pharmacy customers no longer had a reason to shop in Somerset Plaza, Sykes said.

Camellia owns the shopping center and is currently trying to find another tenant for the former CVS store.

In the meantime, Family Dollar will be the only store left there once Meatland closes.

Sykes said he expects a decision on the shopping center will be made within the next six months. It is possible the company will decide to rebuild in the area, he said.

In Pocomoke, Camellia closed two older stores and then reopened a new, larger store in the former Ames building there.

There are still 14 Meatland stores on the Eastern Shore, including one in Crisfield.

By LIZ HOLLAND

The Crisfield Municipal Airport is one of five Eastern Shore airports expected to receive $150,000 a year over the next four years for construction projects under legislation passed last week by the U.S. Senate.

Under the legislation, airports would be guaranteed a certain level of funding each year, and also would be able to apply for additional funds for airport construction needs, according to a statement from Sens. Paul Sarbanes and Barbara Mikulski.

The Crisfield airport, which is owned jointly by Somerset County and the city of Crisfield, has not received FAA funding for about two years when a master plan for the facility was completed, according to County Administrator Charles Massey.

Mobile home fire

Mt. Vernon firefighters extinguish a mobile home fire Friday night that caused $7,000 in damage to the Mission Road home of Patricia Rhock and Gwen Taylor. Thirty firefighters from Mt. Vernon and Princess Anne brought the fire under control in five minutes. The fire started in a bedroom and caused smoke damage throughout the rest of the structure. The cause of the fire is under investigation by the Maryland State Fire Marshal's Office.

Bar Association pushes for courthouse marker

By LIZ HOLLAND

A prominent Princess Anne landmark could get official recognition from the state for its architectural significance if recent efforts by the Somerset County Bar Association are successful.

An application for a historic marker for the 1904 Somerset County Courthouse was sent to the Maryland Historical Trust, which reviews such requests twice a year, according to Jack A. Willing Jr., treasurer of the Bar Association.

Bar members have not heard yet when the next review of applications will be, nor have they been quoted a price for the marker.

Both the price and the actual location for the marker will be determined following approval.

The Bar Association already has $1,000 set aside for a marker that was donated by a committee headed by County Historian Shirley Wilson Richards. The money is the total amount allocated annually to the committee by the County Commissioners.

If that amount is not enough, Willing said the Bar Association will pay the difference.

The location would likely be somewhere on the courthouse lawn, he said.

Willing, along with law partner Tony Bruce, researched the courthouse and wrote the text that would appear on a marker:

"The Georgian Revival structure, graced by red brick, fluted Ionic sandstone columns and Indiana limestone trim, was designed by Frank E. and Henry R. Davis and built by W.P. Pusey and Son of Snow Hill at a cost of $28,451.00.

"The site was purchased by the Levy Court of Somerset County on

Somerset County Courthouse

April 23, 1827 from the bankruptcy estate of Littleton Dennis Teackle. Materials from previous structures dating back to 1815 have been incorporated into the current building."

Boards approve Teackle Mansion merger

By LIZ HOLLAND

The two owners of the Teackle Mansion last week took the first step toward merging their organizations when board members of both groups unanimously approved a merger agreement and proposed bylaws.

However, the merger cannot become official until the general memberships of Olde Princess Anne Days Inc. and the Somerset County Historical Society vote to approve it.

Historical Society members will vote on the matter at the group's annual membership dinner on April 12 at the Princess Anne Volunteer Fire Company.

OPAD members will vote at the semi-annual meeting April 25 at the Teackle Mansion.

The plan calls for Olde Princess Anne Days to become a part of the Historical Society, but the new bylaws provide for the annual house and garden tour of the same name to continue as it has since 1958.

The Historical Society's officers, who were elected earlier this year, will continue in office until their terms expire, but current OPAD board members are expected to fill half of the newly created seats on the merged organization's board of trustees.

Teackle Mansion

The proposed deal is not expected to alter the mission of the Historical Society, or to change the current interior restoration plan of the mansion already under way by OPAD.

Although the two groups rarely worked together and kept a connecting interior door locked for nearly 40 years, the deteriorating condition of the mansion served as the impetus for both organizations to work together more closely

Last summer, board members of the groups began monthly meetings which resulted in an agreement to begin drafting a merger agreement.

In recent years, the dual ownership of the Teackle Mansion created problems in attempts to get state grants for exterior restoration, and resulted in the creation of Friends of Teackle Mansion to oversee the fund-raising and completion of the work for both groups.

Since Friends' role is limited to exterior work and utilities, OPAD and SCHS are responsible for all interior repairs and restoration.

Board members of both groups think a merger will improve their chances of getting grants for the much-needed work.

In the meantime, the two groups now have combined telephone service and hold a joint insurance policy, which is expected to save money.

They are also looking into having one water meter for the entire building instead of two, which is expected to cut the Somerset County Sanitary District bill in half.

County proposes right to farm law

By LIZ HOLLAND

A proposed ordinance that would allow farms and forestry operations in the county to continue without fear of complaints and lawsuits from residential neighbors, and would warn potential home buyers in rural areas of nuisances associated with those businesses, could soon become law in Somerset County.

A public hearing on the right to farm ordinance was held Tuesday night before the County Commissioners.

The ordinance has the support of Somerset County Farm Bureau President Charles Otto who planned to speak in favor of it at the hearing.

"It acknowledges certain inconveniences in rural areas shouldn't be held against us," he said. "It protects those operations that have been there for years."

If the commissioners adopt the ordinance, sellers of residential properties that are located in agricultural zones would be required to give a disclosure statement to buyers outlining inconveniences and discomforts, such as noise, odors, flies, dust, spraying by aircraft and operation of heavy equipment that occur — sometimes 24 hours a day — in farming operations.

The ordinance would allow farmers to continue accepted agricultural practices that do not endanger public health or safety.

The ordinance also establishes a Somerset County Agricultural Reconciliation Board that will hear complaints, and then mediate and arbitrate disputes between farmers and homeowners.

The board would be composed of five people, two of whom would be nominated by the county Farm Bureau, and one nominated by the county Forestry Board.

Conflicts that cannot be amicably resolved between two parties would be submitted to the board in writing through the county's planning office.

The ordinance was drafted at the request of the County Commissioners and is similar to ones already enacted in other Maryland counties where new housing built alongside existing farms has created problems and, in some cases, led to lawsuits.

Written comment on the right to farm ordinance will be accepted through April 3, and may be mailed to Somerset County Commissioners, P.O. Box 37, Princess Anne, Md. 21853.

Combined school on board agenda

The proposal to combine the two county high schools was on the agenda for Tuesday night's Board of Education meeting — after the Somerset Herald went to press.

Pastor's Corner

The meek shall inherit the earth

By the Rev. Olivia Costango
Antioch U.M. Church

It was a humble donkey on which Jesus chose to ride when he entered Jerusalem at the height of his popularity. The donkey is basically a peaceful animal and so Christ came — gentle, riding a beast of burden, willing to let the people surround him and acclaim him.

"God bless the Son of David!" many of them shouted.

All Jerusalem eventually was astir; from that moment on events began to build — yet in less than a week, he was branded a criminal and condemned to death — climaxing with the grimness on Calvary's cross and then to the marvel of Easter morn.

The New Testament tells us that Jesus' disciples did not understand all of this. But significantly, the scriptures say, "When Jesus was glorified, then (the disciples) remembered what had been written of him and had been done to him."

It came as a serious reminder that the way of the Lord of gentleness, patience, long-suffering, and peace, is in the final analysis the only real definition of power. To him alone can be ascribed power and glory and honor in the true and right meaning of those terms.

Faithful disciples of the Lord Christ in every generation have discovered the same. Yes, they may be known as the meek, yes, they may be misunderstood and persecuted for righteousness' sake, but yes, they are the ones, who are meek, who shall inherit the earth, even as Jesus said.

St. Andrew's plans April 9 open house, book-signing

A book signing for Of Ancient and Apostolic Lineage: Somerset Parish 1692-1992 will be a highlight of the Open House at the St. Andrew's Episcopal Church Open House on April 9th from 1 to 4 p.m.

Of Ancient and Apostolic Lineage: Somerset Parish 1692-1992 tells the history of the Anglican Church in Somerset Parish, but the writing of history has a history of its own. In 1992 the original writing committee consisted of five members of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church: Alice Mae Beauchamp, Robert Chamberlin Jr., the Rev. John Klein, Mary Klein, and Rebecca Furniss Miller. Their goal was the completion of the written history as part of Somerset Parish's 300th anniversary celebration. This goal was never realized.

With Robert Chamberlin's death in 1993 and Rev. John and Mary Klein's departure in 1994, the history project came to a halt. Not until February 1999, when Beauchamp entrusted the rough draft to Anne Redfield Smith, was the manuscript revised, edited and finally printed. Sadly, Beauchamp, who died in June 1999, did not see the final work.

The book combines historical facts and personal anecdotes about the churches and the rectors of Somerset parish. Also featured are St. Andrew's architecture, bells and stained glass windows. Much of the book tells of the laity (the people of the parish) whose names were provided through church records, tax lists and family genealogies. Amazingly, many of these names, still heard in Somerset today, have existed in this region for hundred of years.

Of Ancient and Apostolic Lineage: Somerset Parish 1692-1992 is available through St. Andrew's Episcopal Church.

Each participating artist will receive a copy of the directory when completed and the remaining will be placed in businesses, tourist attractions, government buildings and will be mailed to anyone requesting the information. It will be reprinted if necessary and updated every two years.

In addition, artists will also be placed in the directory if anyone wants additional information about their work, or more expo-

Bills important to electric co-ops

Editor:

Two committees in the Maryland General Assembly are now debating legislation that is very important to Choptank Electric Cooperative and its members. It is vital that we urge our elected representatives to support this measure.

The legislation, House Bill 822/Senate Bill 445, updates the Maryland Electric Cooperative Act of 1941. This act mandated a narrow range of business opportunities for the state's electric cooperatives.

However, Maryland's electric industry is now changing through deregulation. Customers will soon be able to choose their power supplier. Along with electricity, companies will offer a wide range of additional services that will benefit customers. This is the promise of customer choice.

Maryland's investor-owned utilities can immediately take advantage of these new business opportunities. In fact, investor-owned utilities are already engaged in a broad range of business activities through unregulated affiliates and divisions of the regulated utilities. The state's electric cooperatives are barred from doing the same unless the electric Cooperative Act is updated. It is simply an issue of fairness. We want the same opportunities for our members as those that are available to customers of other types of electric utilities, while permitting our customers to enjoy the benefits of the cooperative form of business.

This is not a new issue in the electric industry. Many other states recognized the inequities of restrictions on cooperatives and changed their laws so cooperatives could compete fairly in a competitive market. We are asking that Maryland legislators give the state's electric cooperatives the same opportunity.

Maryland electric cooperatives bring electric power to 160,000 residents and businesses. They are nonprofit and operate solely for the benefit of their members. As Maryland's electric industry changes, we want the ability to change with it in a way that improves our service to our customers.

Please contact your elected state representatives and let them know that House Bill 822 and Senate Bill 445 deserve their support.

Delmarva fox squirrel makes comeback

By JOHN V. DENNIS

In my Aug. 5, 1998, column, I reported on the Delmarva fox squirrel, black bear, timber rattlesnake, and beaver, which were once plentiful on the Eastern Shore but which had all but disappeared by 1900.

Of the four, the beaver is making a comeback, as I reported in my Dec. 2, 1999, column, and this is also true of the Delmarva fox squirrel.

As I previously stated, this squirrel is larger than the familiar gray squirrel and spends much more time on the ground. It once occupied the entire Delmarva Peninsula as well as parts of southeastern Pennsylvania and west-central New Jersey.

Loss of habitat, hunting pressure, and the inroads of predators resulted in decimating the population until by the 1960s, it could be found only in a few places in the Maryland counties of Dorchester, Talbot, Queen Anne's, and Kent.

In 1967, it was declared endangered under the terms of the Endangered Species Act. Protection and management under the terms of the act have seen this squirrel make a good comeback.

It has been reintroduced into every county on the Eastern Shore, including three sites in Kent and Somerset counties. Introductions have also been made in Delaware and southeastern Pennsylvania.

The Delmarva fox squirrel is the largest squirrel in North America, much larger than the gray squirrel. It has a bushy tail, like a fox's. Its fur is a uniform, silvery gray. Its feet are white.

Not as agile as the gray squirrel and spending more time on the ground, it was more subject to loss from predators and easier for hunters to shoot.

Two of the best places to see these squirrels are the Blackwater National Wildlife Refuge in Dorchester County and the Chincoteague National Wildlife Refuge in Accomack County.

I have had my best luck seeing this squirrel when driving paved roads at the Blackwater Refuge. They often come out into the open to feed on soybeans or corn.

At the Chincoteague National Wildlife Refuge, where there are about 400 of these squirrels, they can be most often seen by hiking along the trail that leads to the historic old lighthouse.

Signs at both refuges urge motorists to drive slowly, or otherwise they might hit and kill one of the squirrels. Indeed, the squirrels are so slow about getting out of the way that some of them are killed. At visitor centers at both refuges, you can view stuffed specimens of Delmarva fox squirrels that have been killed by cars.

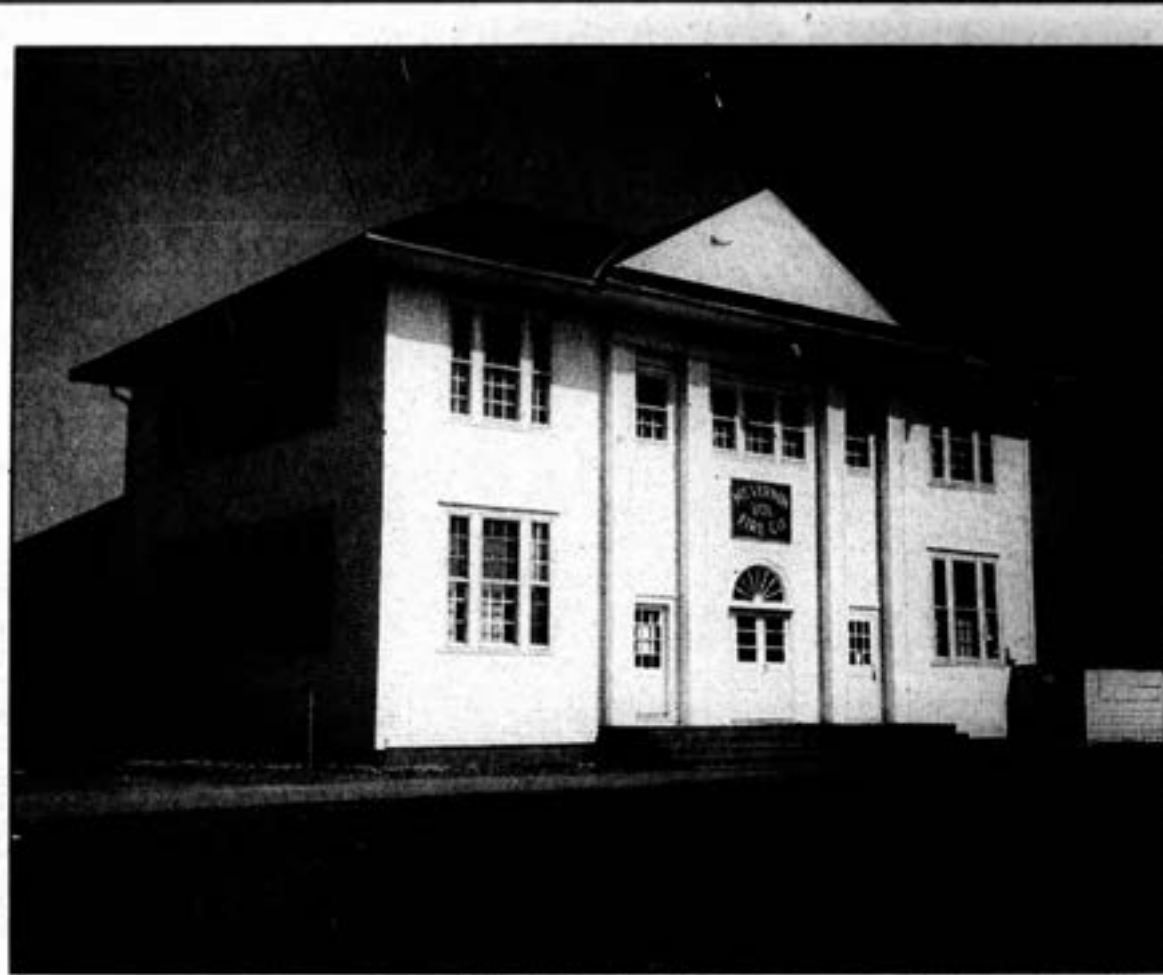

Suitable habitat is critical in helping the Delmarva fox squirrel. It requires open, parklike woodlands with little underbrush. Acorns are its favorite food.

If there are few large trees containing cavities, it is important to place nest boxes for the squirrels. Unlike the gray squirrel, they do not build leaf nests. The squirrels prefer woodlots of mixed hardwoods such as oak, maple, hickory, beech, and pine. These trees provide them with seeds and nuts.

Sightings of these squirrels outside of national and state wildlife refuges should be reported to the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, Wildlife and Heritage Division, 580 Taylor Ave., Annapolis, Md 21401.

First become familiar with the squirrels so that you know what they look like. This can be done by visiting the Chincoteague or Blackwater National Wildlife Refuges. You won't find any of these squirrels in Princess Anne!

Economic development task force holds first meeting

Chesapeake College was the site of the March 6th kick-off meeting of the Eastern Shore Economic Development Task Force. Gov. Parris Glendening issued an Executive Order in December 1999 establishing the Task Force to develop an economic development strategy for the Eastern Shore Region.

According to Chairman Bill Ecker, the Task Force's goal is "to establish a public/private partnership, involving business, government, and community leaders from the entire Eastern Shore region, to provide leadership in developing smart economic growth strategies." Ecker said that by collaborating as a region, all nine counties can work together to support economic development improvements, thus stimulating capital investment and the creation of family supporting jobs.

On hand for the unveiling of the Task Force were the Speaker of the House, the Honorable Casper Taylor; Secretary of the Department of Housing & Community Development, the Honorable Raymond Skinner; Secretary of the Department of Natural Resources, the Honorable Sarah Taylor-Rogers; and members of the Eastern Shore Delegation. Also in attendance were representatives from the State Departments of Agriculture, Business and Economic Development, Education, Environment, Health and Mental Hygiene, Higher Education Commission, Office of Planning, and the Lt. Governor's office.

Delegates Norman H. Conway, Chair, and Charles McClenahan, Vice-Chair of the Eastern Shore Delegation, have taken the leadership role in getting the Task Force formulated. Conway said he knew everyone on the Task Force wanted what was best for the Eastern Shore and emphasized that for the nine counties to move forward, they must work together as "one."

The Task Force will be working under an ambitious schedule. All nine counties are charged with holding meetings to assess the strengths and weaknesses across the Eastern Shore focusing on the following areas: agriculture & natural resources; economic development & infrastructure; education & workforce development; government services, including corrections and housing; health; tourism & recreation; and transportation. Those recommendations will be brought back to Steering Committee members for review and an economic development strategy will be prepared. Chairman Ecker said he hopes to have the final report to the Eastern Shore Delegation and Governor Glendening by mid-summer.

For more information on the Task Force, call 410-742-9271.

26th Bay Bridge Walk is May 7

The Maryland Transportation Authority is encouraging participants to arrive early to spend a day near the Bay at the 26th Annual Chesapeake Bay Bridge Walk on Sunday, May 7. The event begins at 9 a.m.

"We are pleased to host this event each year and once again give Maryland citizens and visitors a unique, breathtaking view of the Chesapeake Bay," said transportation secretary and Authority chairman John D. Portari. "This year's event will be especially memorable as we celebrate the first walk of the new century." The 4.3 mile walk draws 40,000 to 60,000 people annually.

Buses will begin boarding at 8:30 a.m. from the three designated parking areas only:

Naval-Marine Corps Stadium (serving Washington, D.C., Southern Maryland and Northern Virginia participants).

Anne Arundel Community College (most convenient for those traveling from the Baltimore metro area).

The Chesapeake Business Park (best for those traveling from the Eastern Shore or Delaware).

There are no other parking areas available for the event. No parking will be available at the Bay Bridge or at Sandy Point State Park. A $1 donation is requested for participants age 6 and older to help defray the cost of the buses. Many of the buses, which are equipped with wheelchair lifts, will continue to run until all parking areas are filled. No walkers will be transported to the bridge after the lots are filled.

"We are advertising participants to arrive before 11 a.m.," said Thomas L. Osborne, executive secretary of the Authority. "Even if parking should remain open after noon, which is unlikely, we cannot admit walkers to the bridge after 1 p.m."

Motorists traveling to and from the Eastern Shore on May 7 WILL EXPERIENCE MAJOR TRAFFIC DELAYS AND CONGESTION near the bridge until 7:30 p.m. The eastbound span will be closed at 5 a.m. to allow workers to prepare for the walk. To accommodate eastbound traffic, the bridge's westbound span will be in two-way operation during the day. The eastbound bridge will re-open by 7 p.m. Authority officials advise motorists to carpool and to allow adequate travel time to reach their destinations.

Drinking water and portable restroom facilities will be available on the bridge, along with Maryland Transportation Authority Police officers, who will be stationed to render assistance to walkers. In the interest of safety, running or jogging will be prohibited, along with pets, bicycles, skates, rollerblades and skateboards. Children in strollers and participants in wheelchairs are welcome. If parents become separated from their children, they should alert a police officer and proceed to the truck-weigh station located just beyond the walk's finish line. Lost property also may be claimed at this location.

The walk will be canceled for inclement weather or high winds. Cancellation announcements will be made on local radio stations. Prospective walkers can learn more about the event or discover the status of the walk by calling the Bay Bridge Information Line at 1-877-BAYSPAN or visiting the Authority's website at www.mtda.state.md.us.

Helen Sue Ward Golf Classic planned April 30

The Great Hope Golf Course in Westover will again host the Helen Sue Ward Golf Classic on Sunday, April 30.

Last year's event brought some of the best golfers on the Lower Eastern Shore to compete. The winners netted some handsome prize money and dozens of door prizes, including free dinners at local restaurants and rounds of golf at area courses, were given away. Upon registration, players will receive complimentary gifts and following play, lunch will be served.

The format of the 9 a.m. shotgun start will be a four person scramble with two divisions. Division I requires a minimum team handicap of 50 and only one single digit handicapper. Division II must have a total team handicap of 90 or greater and no single digit handicappers.

Through the generous sponsorship and support of many Lower Shore businesses and interested individuals, this annual tournament has become one of the area's most popular. This year's golfers can look forward to a first class tournament and the opportunity to help fund two local scholarships for deserving students. The announcement of the recipients of the scholarship awards will take place on the day of the tournament.

Applications are not available at Great Hope Golf Course or by contacting Bill Cain at 410-651-9787. Because the tournament will be limited to twenty-six teams, early sign-up is recommended.

The new FFA money would probably be used to extend the existing paved runway and build new hangars at the facility on Jacksonville Road, he said.

The funding will require a 10 percent, or $15,000, match by the local governments, said Sarbanes spokesman Jesse Jacobs.

In addition to Crisfield, airports in Cambridge, Easton, Stevensville and Ocean City each will receive $150,000 a year, and the Salisbury-Ocean City Wicomico Regional Airport will receive $1 million annually.

Med-Chi director to speak March 29

The Delmarva Peninsula's only permanent non-invasive lithotripter offers quick relief at Peninsula Regional Medical Center.

After treatment with our lithotripter (Greek for stone crusher), all that's left of a kidney stone is mere dust.

While our patient reclines comfortably, an x-ray machine aims the lithotripter's series of pulsating waves toward the stone - reducing it without invasive surgery. The advantages of lithotripsy are many: no pain or scarring, minimal anesthesia, and usually just a few days recovery. Since the Peninsula Stone Center has the area's only on-site lithotripter, treatment can happen when you need it. 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

To learn more, contact your physician. If you need a physician, call our Physician Referral Line at 410-543-7090 or 1-888-290-7090.

WEEKLY SPORTS WRAPUP

By JANICE MILLER

Ah, spring! What beautiful sights and sounds. The flowers in bloom, the trees budding, the sweat smell of freshly oiled leather, the rush of metal cleats crushing on cinders, the pong of felt hitting the sweet spot on the racket, the crack (or ping) of the bat, YEA! Its time for spring sports!

Local high school students are busier than ever during this time of year. Both Washington and Crisfield High Schools will field baseball, softball, tennis, and track teams. Each coach seems pleased with their team, and anxious for the season to get underway.

Washington Softball

First year coach Lindsay Nelson is looking forward to improving on last year's .500 record. "We have a young team, filled with talent," Nelson said. "They need confidence. If they can step on the field and believe in themselves, we will have success."

Nelson will rely on senior Kristen Anderson, the team's only four-year player, for leadership. Junior Ashley Boston will shoulder most of the pitching duties, with freshman Sarah Shores ready to come in for relief.

Erica Nelson and Melissa Webster are looking good at the plate. Danielle White and Carrie Beauchamp will likely be key players for the young Lady Jags, as will Senior Crystal Pines and Freshman Katie Ford.

Nelson is a 1996 graduate of Washington High School and is currently working on an internship with Athletic Director Donnie Price, as part of her graduation requirements at Messiah College in Harrisburg, PA. She played softball at Messiah the last three seasons. Nelson is due to graduate in May.

Washington Baseball

With eight returning starters, Coach Greg Montessoro is hopeful for an improved season this year. "We want to be more competitive this year," Montessoro said.

Sharing the pitching duties with Billy Walters, will be Scott Stuckey, Tony Bedsworth, C.J. Wink, Colin Thomas, and Kevin Thomas.

"We hit well in our scrimmage," said Montessoro, who is coaching the Jaguars for a second season. Prior to coming to WHS he coached for 13 years at Chincoteague High School. He has also played and coached in the Eastern Shore Baseball League, and was on Penn State's baseball for two years in college.

Crisfield Softball

The CHS softball team has two tough acts to follow, the field hockey and girls basketball teams which both had their best seasons ever this school year, but Coach Melvin Higgs is encouraged about how his team is shaping up.

"The girls are eager to learn, asking all the right questions," said Higgs. "We are already working on situations that we never even got to last year."

Two freshmen, Tiffany Howard and Melody Higgs, will likely share the pitching duties. Two other freshmen Courtney Flaherty, who has a strong arm, and Amber Hinman, who is hitting the ball really well in preseason will see lots of action. Another freshman Allison Atkins is looking good on defense.

Higgs will look to Juniors Corley Brice and Charlotte Wilson for leadership. Shannon Hofer the other Junior is strong at the plate and "has a cannon on third base," according to Higgs.

This is Coach Higgs' seventh year as coach of the Lady Crabbers. He is a CHS alumnus, and teaches auto mechanics at Tawes Vo-Tech.

Crisfield Baseball

With only four starters returning, the CHS baseball team will be working hard to be competitive. "The players are receptive to what we're trying to do," said second-year

Coach Clint Sterling. "By mid-season we should gel into a good unit. We need good defense to stay competitive."

Juniors Evan Ward and Butch Mills will share most of the pitching duties, with Jamie Aswell and Donald Wharton seeing action as well.

"We have some kids that can swing the bat. They have good attitudes. We are looking to improve," Sterling said.

Sterling is a 1991 graduate of CHS and a graduate of Salisbury State University. He is assisted by Scott Tawes, also a CHS alumnus.

Crisfield Tennis

Kim Sterling and Robin Ford will share the coaching duties of the CHS tennis team this year.

The girls will be led by Junior Sarah Caldwell, who won 4 first-singles matches last year, and Seniors Julie Carson, who was 7 - 6 overall last year, and Jenny Ward, who won 2 first-singles matches a year ago.

The boys team has three new players, and will be led by experienced players robin Schneider, and Tyler Ryan, both Juniors.

Coach Sterling, also a CHS alumnus, has 10 years tennis coaching experience. Ford, the CHS Maryland's Tomorrow Counselor, is coaching for a third year.

Crisfield Track

Two years ago Coach Jack Paul started the CHS track team with 7 kids. This year there are 25 kids on the team. "The team is really growing. We have a full girls team," said Paul. "It is great to see so many kids interested."

Jennifer Kenney, Raynetta Jones, Chaketa Crews, and Alyson Paul are the nucleus of the young team. Freshman Ashley Douglas will likely be a top sprinter.

Coach Paul is very encouraged with these early results. "The girls have been on a strength and conditioning program," he said. "They still need to bring their times down some but they are doing very well."

The boys will be led by Marchand Whittington, who ran the 400 Meters in 62 seconds, and Corey Holland. DeVal Jackson is a top sprinter, and Jonathan Pruitt will be tough to beat in the mile run.

By Kolby Davis

In our community today, many of our neighbors don't know the meaning of our three R's. Reduce, reuse, and recycle. The three magic words that can help our community to last a lifetime.

There are many ways that you can help our community. Start by burning your trash so that you don't have to take it to a landfill. This will reduce the amount of trash in the landfills. You can also wash and reuse plastic forks, spoons, plates, or cups, instead of throwing them away. Use fewer disposable items. Try to reuse or recycle newspaper, cardboard, and extra paper, and buy food that has been packaged in recycled materials. Finally, try to donate clothes and toys to the needy instead of throwing all of your unwanted items away.

Our community could face a great danger if we don't put in a greater effort of reducing, reusing, and recycling. Gases can cause global warming and smog in our air. Waste can kill plants and pollute our water, not to mention, kill the animals in the Chesapeake Bay. By the year 2009, eighty percent of our landfills will be full, forcing us to use more land in order to meet our needs. That means we will have to destroy our animals habitats, and use our community's land in order to hold our trash. If that does happen, it will cost us ninety million dollars to make a new one. Can't we use that money a little bit more wisely? How about buying more trees that we can plant around town?

Or maybe we can build a new park for our children to play in. What about buying new school books for our children, so that they can better understand the value of our world and learn that every day of life counts? Please help us reduce, reuse, and recycle. You would be surprised at what we could do if we just work together. WILL YOU HELP?

By Kristin Richardson

The world is growing bigger and bigger every day, with each person producing three and one-half to four pounds of garbage daily. Billions of pounds of garbage are made every day. The solution to this ever-growing problem is "RRR." Reduce, reuse, recycle is a way to preserve our lands for the future.

There are many ways an individual can reduce, reuse, and recycle. You could buy items that come in recycled packaging. Another way to reduce, reuse, and recycle is to use fewer disposable items such as diapers or napkins. Making a compost pile in your backyard is a great way to help your environment. Incinerating garbage instead of taking it to a landfill is also a great way to help the Earth. The most helpful and easy way to reduce, reuse, and recycle is to collect recyclable items such as paper, plastic, glass and aluminum.

The dangers of not reducing, reusing or recycling are great. By the year 2009, eighty percent of the landfills will be used up. Leaking gases from the landfills can kill plants and cause smog. It can also cause global warming. The land will become unsanitary. Many resources will be wasted if items are not recycled.

The three R's are very important to the survival of our planet. This is the only planet that meets our every need as humans. Once it is gone, we have nothing else. If everyone does at least one of the three R's, our planet will be in better shape.

By Christina Smiley

The three R's are reduce, reuse, and recycle. Believe it or not, if we do not do these things we could die sooner than you think.

You can reduce, reuse, and recycle. First you can reduce by using fewer disposable items (examples: diapers, napkins, cups, and paper). You can also reduce by buying food packaged in recyclable materials called pre-cycling (examples: cardboard or newspaper). Second is reuse. Reuse means to use items again that you would throw away. Some ways to reuse waste is to reuse bags from groceries, wash plastic cups and utensils and donate toys and clothes. Third is recycle. Recycle means to reuse a products raw materials instead of throwing them away. You can recycle by finding out what is recyclable (plastic, aluminum, glass, newspaper, and iron metal). You can also recycle by making a compost.

If we don't reduce, reuse, recycle we could be serious danger. By the year 2009 eighty percent of our landfills will be full. A landfill is a huge hole where trash is covered with dirt. It cost ninety million dollars to make a new landfill. When the garbage is landfills begin to rot, smells and gases can leak into the soil and kill the plants. It could also cause smog and global warming. So now that you know, will you reduce, reuse, recycle? If you do, it could save your life.

Artist visits second grade

Mr. Denny McLeod visited Mrs. Ennis' second grade class at Princess Anne Primary School to discuss advertising with them in connection with a pilot enrichment program designed to foster creativity and higher level thinking skills.

The program, entitled Madison Avenue, centers around the art of advertising which is something Mr. McLeod deals with on a daily basis as an employee of English's Signs in Salisbury.

During his 45 minute visit Mr. McLeod discussed when, why, and where people might need advertisements. He talked about slogans and logos, something the students have been creating and drawing on their own for the past several weeks.

Mr. McLeod discussed the importance of a portfolio and even shared his portfolio with the class. One of the main things that Mr. McLeod wanted to get across to students is that designing a logo or advertisement takes time and a great deal of thought to get it right. The audience must be considered at all times.

Mr. McLeod also emphasized that people spend a great deal of money on advertisements because they want to attract the consumers to buy or use their products.

One of the most appealing parts of the presentation to the students was seeing the drawings of the cars that Mr. McLeod drew years ago when he aspired to be a car advertiser. He has designed sweatshirt and t-shirt designs for the local area which feature products common to the Eastern Shore of Maryland, most especially the water and farming business.

Assateague holds poster contest

Students from Eastern Shore School Districts are invited to participate in "A Perfect Day at Assateague" Poster, Art and Photo Contest.

Contest categories include: posters, open to grades K through 12, two-dimensional art open to grades 7 through 12, and photography, open to grades 9 through 12.

The Assateague Mobile Sportfishermen's Association will award over $1,800 in prizes for winning entries.

Information packages on the contests will be sent directly to public schools in the Lower Eastern Shore counties. All entries must be received by 4:30 p.m. March 31

UMES faculty to take part in techonology project

Faculty members at five Eastern Shore colleges and universities will learn how to incorporate leading-edge technology into their courses as part of a $330,000 grant awarded by the Maryland Higher Education Commission.

The grant, for a project sponsored by the Eastern Shore Association of College Presidents, was awarded to Chesapeake College as the project's lead institution. Chesapeake's partners in the project are Salisbury State University, the University of Maryland Eastern Shore, Washington College, and Wor-Wic Community College. Chesapeake and Wor-Wic are comprehensive, regional community colleges.

Salisbury State University and the University of Maryland Eastern Shore are constituent institutions in the University of System Maryland, and Washington College is private liberal arts college in Chestertown, Maryland.

The grant is being used to help create a shared Faculty Development Institute, which will provide continuing long-term technology training for the faculties of the five cooperating institutions. While the institute's offices will be physically located on Chesapeake College's main campus in Wye Mills training will take place at all five of the member institutions, according to Dr. Cynthia France, the project director.

Dr. France said faculty members at the five member institutions will begin receiving training this summer that will provide them with the skills to use leading-edge technologies in traditional classes and to create new Internet-based courses.

"It's all about talented people collaborating across institutional lines to make the teaching-learning process more effective, easier, fun, and more convenient," said France, who earned a Ph.D. in curriculum and instruction from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. "We will use some appealing technological tools to do this, and we will build on what we've learned from research on teaching and learning."

France said the institute will offer services faculty members need to maintain teaching excellence in a quickly changing educational landscape.

These services include instructional design assistance, faculty-centered mentoring programs, and regional conferences for sharing experiences and celebrating successes. Plans are being made to link faculty members from the five institutions who teach similar content into "Cross-College Faculty Forums." These forums will collaborate on developing, sharing, and getting recognition for curriculum components that incorporate technology.

The people who stand to benefit the most from this grant, according to Dr. France, are the students who attend the five member institutions.

"Students expect instruction that will give them the tools to participate fully in the electronic environment," Dr. France said, "and our Eastern Shore colleges intend to meet those expectations."

More convenient learning options, such as an increasing number of Internet-based courses at the member institutions, will be welcomed by students, according to Catherine Bolek, Director of Sponsored Programs at The University of Maryland Eastern Shore, who took a lead role in developing the successful grant proposal. "We will provide students on the Shore with access to classes they can take any time, any place, at any pace, with the support of local institutions," Bolek said.

The Eastern Shore Association of College Presidents focuses on higher education issues affecting the residents of Maryland's Eastern Shore. Among the other projects being sponsored by the organization is a plan to develop a higher education center housed on the campus of Chesapeake College that will offer classes from Salisbury State, Washington College, and UMES. Students will be able to earn baccalaureate, masters, and even doctoral degrees through the center.

Exhibit of C.D. Clarke paintings opens at SSU

"Little Fish in a Smaller Pond," an exhibit of paintings by sporting artist C.D. Clarke, opens Tuesday, April 4, and runs through May 26 in the Atrium Gallery in the Guerrieri University Center at Salisbury State.

Admission is free and the public is invited.

Clarke's watercolor and oil paintings, which have been displayed throughout the country, incorporate mostly hunting and fishing scenes in natural landscapes.

"A broader definition would be that I am a landscape artist," said Clarke, "but my work really focuses on the sport."

"If I had Clarke's gifts," wrote outdoor writer Angus Phillips in The Washington Post, "I might be able to capture the complex mix of emotions...serenity, solitude, beauty, wonder, delight."

Clarke's work has been featured in many sporting print media including Field and Stream, Saltwater Sportsman, Wildlife Art News, Pointing Dog Journal and My Fishing in Saltwaters.

Clarke was born in Rochester,

NY, and received his B.F.A. in painting from Syracuse University in 1981. He moved to the Eastern Shore of Maryland in 1982 and lives in Frenchtown. His work reflects the world around him. His life long interest in the outdoors, hunting and fishing in particular make them subjects for a substantial portion of his work.

He has traveled extensively painting in the Caribbean, Scotland, England, Iceland, The Bahamas, Canada, Alaska, Montana and South America. His work captures the feeling, and most importantly, the light of sparkling bonefish flats, misty Scottish salmon rivers, raw windy marshes, icy Chilean Alps and warm sunny Argentinean pampas.

The University Galleries is hosting an artist's reception for "Little Fish in a Smaller Pond" on Friday, April 7, from 4-6 p.m. at the atrium Gallery.

For more information please call the Salisbury State Public Relations Office at 410-543-6030.

Head Start workers enroll at UMES

The University of Maryland Eastern Shore has announced that local Head Start Personnel will be enrolled in its Human Ecology (Child Development) degree program. The enrollment stems from a collaboration between UMES and the Seton Center in Princess Anne.

These students were registered in the Introduction to Human Ecology course and chose the service learning option in which they designed a program packed with exciting educational, arts and social development activities for 28 Somerset County children in grades 1-5.

Children were separated into two groups (grades 1-2 and 3-5). During a two week period children were involved in a number of activities, including a reading program in which they learned about different types of poetry as well as created poetry of their own. They also visited the Princess Anne and UMES Libraries for instructions on surfing the web. The students were given a lesson in social and restaurant etiquette accompanied by a trip to UMES to practice these skills while enjoying a gourmet meal. The children learned money management skills and explored career opportunities.

All participants, children and students desired a longer period for the program and wanted to have the program repeated.

McCready offers free CNA course

A free training course designed to prepare individuals to become Certified Nursing Assistants for the Alice Byrd Tawes Nursing Home will soon be scheduled in Crisfield by McCready Health Services Foundation.

The course takes 85 hours of classroom study and clinical experience to complete. Following that, students must pass a certifying examination offered by Wor-Wic Community College and then be registered by the Maryland Board of Nursing.

The course date will be announced when at least 10 prospective students are enrolled. Applicants will be asked to complete an employment application and be interviewed.

To apply, fill out an application at McCready's human resources department by Friday, March 31. Interviews will then be scheduled.

UMES sponsors math, science contest

The University of Maryland Eastern Shore is sponsoring the third annual Dolores R. Spikes and William P. Hylche Mathematics and Science Competition.

The purpose of the event is to encourage and reward academic excellence in these areas.

The competition is open to a junior and high schools in the three county areas — Somerset, Wicomico and Worcester.

The competition will be held on Saturday, April 15, and will involve testing in the following areas:

Pre-Algebra, Algebra I, Algebra II, Geometry, Calculus I, Biology I, Chemistry, and Physics.

"We are expecting nearly 100 area high school students to compete," said Dr. Robert Johnson, UMES Executive Vice President. "Last year's competition was a tremendous success with awards presented to more than 25 outstanding math and science students."

The competition begins at 9 a.m. in Carver Hall Auditorium on campus. Parents are welcome to attend.

Awards will be presented at 1 p.m.

For more information contact the Office of Community Relations at 410-651-6669 or 7580.

Band from Kenya performs at UMES

Jabali Afrika, a band from Kenya, will be appearing in concert on Monday, March 27 at 8 p.m., in the Ella Fitzgerald Center for the Performing Arts on the University of Maryland Eastern Shore's campus.

The band's original sound is attributed to its own unique mixture and special fusion of African rhythms. However, Jabali Afrika is not only adept at composing songs, playing a variety of instruments, and blending their voices into a harmonious sound, but are also talented dancers and choreographers. They have appeared on Mr. Roger's Neighborhood, Good Morning America, and have been featured on CNN's Lifestyle and the British Broadcasting Corporation.

Dr. James White, Jr., director of Student Activities stated, "The Office of Student Activities is tremendously pleased to have the opportunity to bring this type of cultural exposure to UMES students and the Eastern Shore community for free. I am sure that everyone will delight in the sounds and dance of Jabali Afrika."

The performance is free and the public is welcome to attend.

Notice of Intent to Establish
Total Maximum Daily Loads (TMDLs)
of Nitrogen, Phosphorus, and Biochemical Oxygen Demand (BOD)
in Somerset County, MD

Section 303(d) of the federal Clean Water Act requires Maryland to: (1) identify waters, known as water quality limited segments (WQLSs), where technology-based effluent limitations and other required controls cannot achieve water quality standards; (2) for each listed water, establish Total Maximum Daily Loads (TMDLs) for pollutants preventing the attainment of water quality standards; and (3) offer an opportunity for public review and comment on the proposed TMDLs.

The Manokin River was identified on the State's 1996 list of WQLSs because of low dissolved oxygen and seasonal algal blooms. Consequently, the Department is establishing three TMDLs for the Manokin River, for nitrogen, phosphorus, and Biochemical Oxygen Demand (BOD). The TMDLs set the maximum load limit for each substance. Each TMDL also reflects load allocations to point sources and non-point sources and a margin of safety, which accounts for uncertainty in the procedures used to estimate the TMDLs.

Once established by the State, the TMDLs will be subject to approval by the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). The established TMDLs will support the measures needed to restore water quality in the Manokin River.

NOTICE
PUBLIC HEARING

Notice is hereby given in accordance with Article 68B, of the Annotated Code of Maryland, and Ordinance 143 of Somerset County, that a Public Hearing will be held by the Board of County Commissioners for Somerset County to hear opponents and proponents on:

Tuesday, April 11 at 2 P.M.

In the Somerset County Commissioners Meeting Room, Room 111, Somerset County Office Complex, 11916 Somerset Avenue, Princess Anne, MD, relating to the following matter:
That pursuant to the unfavorable recommendation of the Somerset County Planning and Zoning Commission, the hereinafter described parcel of land located in the Lawsons Election District, shown as Parcel #82, Block #4 on Tax Map #72 and lies approximately north of the intersection of Mariner Road and Maryland Rt. 413, be reclassified from Residential One (R-1) to Commercial-3 (C-3).

The site of the proposed change is not located within the Chesapeake Bay Critical Area. The applicant, the estate of Ralph Walston, via Tidewater Express, cites a mistake in the current zoning as reason for the request.

Copies of the proposed change and the present Zoning Ordinance are available for inspection by any interested party during regular business hours at the Office of the Department of Technical & Community Services, 11916 Somerset Avenue, (Somerset County Office Complex), Room #211, Princess Anne, Maryland during regular office hours (8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.), Monday through Friday, except legal holidays.

Daffodil Show will have plenty of blooms

With the "HOST OF GOLDEN DAFFODILS" filling the landscape already, one would have to think that by April 1 and 2, dates of the Somerset County Garden Club's 35th Annual Daffodil Show, there would be none left by show dates. However, there are late-bloomers to still anticipate.

The show at Peninsula Bank, downtown Princess Anne, will be featuring some extraordinary, and even exotic blooms, unusual coloring and size.

In addition to horticulture, there will be 24 designs, carrying out the theme of the show: "A Millennium of Daffodils," stretching over the centuries, such as "Medieval Magic," "Jazz Age," and "Colonial Times," small arrangements not exceeding 8 inches in height, width, and depth, eligible for Petite Awards.

In other designs, there will be greater size, such as "Space Exploration" and "Antebellum Days," eligible for "Designer's Choice," and finally "Victorian Elegance," functional tables for two, cloth and napkins, and daffodil designs, compatible in color and interpretation.

All arrangements are by amateurs, and require daffodils.

The Horticulture classes in 13 divisions must be grown in the open by amateur gardeners, and will be judged by accredited Flower Show judges from several states.

The daffodil was officially declared the "Flower of Somerset" in 1985. For more information 410-968-2423 or 410-968-0952.

Crabbing skiffs to be on display

The Crisfield Racing Skiff Association will display Smith Island Crabbing Skiffs and have crabbing demonstrations during the Soft Shell Crab Fair on Sunday, May 28. Racing skiffs, both under construction and completed will be on display. Association members will be available to answer questions.

Crisfield and crabbing go together, as well as the means to catch the crabs. The Smith Island Crabbing Skiffs were developed on and around Smith Island for catching soft crabs. The CRSA is keeping the tradition of building the skiffs alive and has added racing to their agenda.

These little boats, inexpensive and easy to build, give everyone a chance to experience the fun of "messing about with boats" with a minimum of cost and a lot of fun.

The skiffs will be displayed all day with the crabbing demonstration scheduled for noon.

School consolidation vote planned for November

By LIZ HOLLAND

Somerset voters will help decide whether or not to combine the county's two public high schools in a referendum that is expected to be on November's ballot.

In a surprise move Tuesday night, the Somerset County Board of Education voted unanimously to send the controversial issue to a vote, which was the suggestion of many opponents of the plan who spoke at public hearings last fall.

By letting county residents decide the issue shows "the board is open to the voice of the citizens of the county," Chairman Ted Abbott said.

However, the board could still vote the other way on the issue because the outcome of the referendum will be nonbinding, he said.

The proposal to close Washington and Crisfield high schools and build a combined high school is Westover has divided county residents since the issue was first aired in October.

Crisfield residents have fiercely opposed the plan which they said would remove a school in which they take pride from their community.

But proponents of the plan, most of whom live in the northern part of the county, have cited a declining birth rate and lack of funds as a reason to consolidate the schools.

The proposed realignment plan — which includes adding more advanced placement courses and other "extras" in the schools — is projected to save the school system as much as $1.2 million a year.

However, if the county were to improve programs in the schools under the current building alignment, it would cost an additional $1.3 million a year, school officials said.

In addition to a combined high school in Westover, the plan developed last year by a parent/community advisory group also calls for moving elementary and middle school students into other school buildings.

The plan would leave four school buildings empty — Whittington Primary in Crisfield, Marion Sarah Peyton, Westover Elementary and Greenwood Middle in Princess Anne.

Only Ewell School on Smith

Island would be unchanged.

A new school building next to the J.M. Tawes Career & Vocational Center in Westover has been estimated to cost $13 million to $14 million.

The proposal has gotten the backing of several organizations and elected officials in the county, including the Crisfield Area Chamber of Commerce, the Somerset County Commissioners, the Princess Anne Town Commissioners and the county's Economic Development Commission.

$20.5 M school budget proposed

By LIZ HOLLAND

Smaller classes at the county's two primary schools is one of the top priorities in a proposed $20.5 million budget for fiscal 2001 that was unveiled by Superintendent Michael D. Thomas at last week's Board of Education meeting.

Thomas's proposed budget includes two new teachers each for Princess Anne Primary School and Whittington Primary School in Crisfield.

The additional teachers would allow school officials to reduce the student-to-teacher ratio from 23-to-1 to 18-to-1 at Princess Anne Primary and from 25-to-1 to 18-to-1 at Whittington Primary, Thomas said.

"The research is overwhelmingly strong in the benefits (reduced class size) can provide, especially in the elementary grades," he said.

Among the other priorities included in the superintendent's proposed budget are money for curriculum development, staff development, textbooks and instructional materials, technology and the governor's teacher salary challenge.

The proposed budget includes a $9.5 million request for county funds, which is $2.4 million more than the current year.

The school system is also expected to get about $10 million in state funding.

One of the budget items that will increase the most over the current year is health care coverage. Thomas said the school system's share of Blue Cross/Blue Shield expenses for employees is expected to go up 20 percent over the current year.

In addition to the operating budget, Thomas also submitted a proposed $342,000 capital improvements budget that includes heating, ventilating and air conditioning work at Princess Anne Primary

From left, Bea Warbasse, Kay Bennett and Shirley Fantl set the table for tea Sunday afternoon at the Teackle Mansion during a performance of "The Belle of Amherst." The performances, which were held Friday, Saturday and Sunday, raised approximately $3,500 toward the restoration of the mansion's drawing room.

Census Bureau opens seven 'Be Counted' sites in county

The Annapolis Census Office has opened 50 Questionnaire Assistance Centers within its region which includes the Eastern Shore. These centers are designed to help people who have questions in completing their census questionnaire or about the census in general, need special language assistance or physical assistance to complete a questionnaire, or did not receive a questionnaire.

Questionnaire Assistance Centers will remain open through April 14.

Beginning on March 31, the Questionnaire Assistance Centers will be joined by 56 additional Be Counted sites where people who did not receive a questionnaire at home may pick one up together with prepaid mailing envelope.

Questionnaire Assistance Centers are staffed by local volunteers and by Census employees trained to assist respondents in answering questions. A large print English guide and language assistance guides in 37 languages will be available at all Questionnaire

Assistance Centers.

Census information is subject to strict confidentiality laws for 72 years and may not be revealed to any person or government agency except in the form of statistics.

The United States Constitution requires a census of the United States every 10 years. To ensure proper distribution of government funds to communities and states for highways, schools, health facilities and in any other programs, it is important that everyone living in the United States on April 1, be counted. Without a complete, accurate census, a community may not receive its fair share.

Farmers back right to farm law

By LIZ HOLLAND

A proposed ordinance that would allow farms and forestry operations in Somerset County to continue without fear of complaints and lawsuits from residential neighbors, and would warn potential home buyers in rural areas of nuisances associated with those businesses, got the backing of farmers during a public hearing Tuesday night.

"I can't see how anyone cannot be in favor of it," said Rick Nelson, a past president of the Somerset County Farm Bureau. "It helps everyone out — farmers and land owners. The ag community is pretty much 100 percent behind it, and land owners should be too."

The ordinance has the support of the Farm Bureau which adopted a right-to-farm policy in October that encouraged the county to pass such a law. President Charles Otto said at the hearing, which was held before the County Commissioners.

If the commissioners adopt the ordinance, farmers within agricultural districts would be allowed to continue accepted ag practices that do not endanger public health or safety, even if an adjacent homeowner doesn't like the odors, noise of dust associated with farming.

The ordinance establishes a Somerset County Agricultural Reconciliation Board that will hear complaints, and then mediate and arbitrate disputes between farmers and homeowners.

Homeowners would not be allowed to take a farmer to court without first going before the board. County Attorney Kirk Simpkins said.

The board would be composed of five people, two of whom would be nominated by the county Farm Bureau, and one nominated by the county Forestry Board.

Conflicts that cannot be amicably resolved between two parties would

Pastor's Corner

A wonderful way of seeing Jesus

By the Rev. Olivia Costango
Antioch U.M. Church

The Bible in Hebrews chapter 5 shows Jesus as two different people.

First it says in verse 7: "In his life on earth Jesus made his prayers and requests with loud cries and tears to God, who could save him from death."

It is talking about Jesus during his life on earth when he cried out in pain, of tears, and about suffering.

He pleaded with God for help. He was the one who suffered and died.

It also says in verse 9: "Where he was made perfect, he became the source of eternal salvation for all those who obey him." After his resurrection, we see Christ ruling in heaven with the power to save all people.

This is a wonderful way to see Jesus. We see him as the one who asked for help, and we see him as the one who gives help. Sometimes when we have problems, we think, or even say, "Nobody understands." Then remember that Jesus asked for help when he was in need. He understands. At other times we think, "Nobody can help me." Then remember that Christ can help.

Part of the greatness of Christ is that he can do both — he was able to suffer for us, and he is able to deliver us from suffering.

1719 communion set to be displayed

About 1720, Somerset Parish was presented a large silver communion set by Queen Anne of England. This precious set, hallmarked 1719, consists of a flagon, chalice, paten and stand/cover. Each piece is inscribed "For the use of Somerset Parish in Somerset County for the Province of Maryland. Per William Stoughton."

William Stoughton, a vestryman of the parish, was the husband of Ann Elzey, daughter of Arnold Elzey of Almodington, and the grandfather of the wife of Levin Winder, the first of Somerset County's two governors of Maryland.

Because it is one of the oldest complete sets, this communion silver was displayed at Tiffany's in New York in 1889 during the General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church. Bishop Potter of New York wanted to purchase the set and offered $500 for it; but this and all other offers were refused.

The Queen Anne silver has not been publicly displayed or used in a church service for quite some time. The chalice is not the most convenient for use during communion services. According to the Rev. Ron Knapp of St. Andrew's, the chalice is extremely deep, causing some difficulty controlling the flow of wine from priest to communicant. Accordingly, the church rubric of 1720 read, "And here the priest to communicant. Accordingly, the church rubric of 1720 read, "And here the priest shall deliver the cup into their hands." This meant that the communicant took the cup into his own hands when receiving Holy Communion, in order to prevent a spill. Modern chalices are wider and more shallow, thus eliminating this difficulty.

The Queen Anne silver will be used during the 11 a.m. worship service at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church on April 9th. It will then be on public display during the Open House which follows from 1 to 4 p.m.

People help Costen Center with money, volunteer labor

The Costen Recreation Center located in Westover would like to take this opportunity to thank various organizations and individuals for their support.

The following organizations have sent contributions: VFW Post 827 in Crisfield, Elks Lodge in Crisfield, American Legion Post 16 in Crisfield, VFW Post 9505 in Princess Anne, American Legion Post 132 in Princess Anne, Kiwanis Club in Pocomoke, and the Community Foundation in Salisbury. Special program mini grants were received from Somerset Art Council, Prevention Program in Worcester County, and Governor's Prevention Program in Annapolis.

Letters were recently mailed to individuals and businesses asking for contributions for operating expenses. Due to the high cost of gasoline for the van which transports the youth and cost of fuel oil, the center's number of days of operation from had to be cut back from four to two days a week.

The center is looking forward to the continued support of the Somerset Cooperative Extension and in the near future the Somerset Health Department, Somerset Recreation Department and Somerset County Commissioners.

Costen Center will soon have completed their new computer lab. A grant from the Community Foundation was given for the heating system, air conditioner, computer, printer and carpeting. Butch Nutter volunteered the rewiring for the computers. The University of Maryland Eastern Shore and the Somerset Cooperative Extension donated the computers. The interior of the lab needs building materials such as insulation, wallboard, a door, and 15 computer work stations. After receiving the donations or building materials the center will have volunteers complete the physical labor. We hope to have the lab completed for before the end of May.

The Pocomoke Police Department, Natural Resource Police, 4-H office and the Pocomoke Kiwanis will begin a program in April called "Hooked on Fishing, Not on Drugs" which will include fishing, water safety and other outdoor skills. This program will be offered on Thursday during the months of April, June and July. The Natural Resource Police will also have their annual Fishing Rodeo at Costen Recreation Center on Saturday May 20. For more information call Mrs. Cottman at 410-957-0129 by March 31.

The Costen Center was recently featured on WBOC Delmarva Heart and Soul. Contributions are needed. All contributions are tax deductible to Costen Recreation Council, Inc., 8158 Cottman Lane, Westover, MD 21871 in C/O Georganna Cottman. For more information call 410-957-0129.

Pastor's Corner

A wonderful way of seeing Jesus

By the Rev. Olivia Costango
Antioch U.M. Church

The Bible in Hebrews chapter 5 shows Jesus as two different people.

First it says in verse 7: "In his life on earth Jesus made his prayers and requests with loud cries and tears to God, who could save him from death."

It is talking about Jesus during his life on earth when he cried out in pain, of tears, and about suffering.

He pleaded with God for help. He was the one who suffered and died.

It also says in verse 9: "Where he was made perfect, he became the source of eternal salvation for all those who obey him." After his resurrection, we see Christ ruling in heaven with the power to save all people.

This is a wonderful way to see Jesus. We see him as the one who asked for help, and we see him as the one who gives help. Sometimes when we have problems, we think, or even say, "Nobody understands." Then remember that Jesus asked for help when he was in need. He understands. At other times we think, "Nobody can help me." Then remember that Christ can help.

Part of the greatness of Christ is that he can do both—he was able to suffer for us, and he is able to deliver us from suffering.

1719 communion set to be displayed

About 1720, Somerset Parish was presented a large silver communion set by Queen Anne of England. This precious set, hallmarked 1719, consists of a flagon, chalice, paten and stand/cover. Each piece is inscribed "For the use of Somerset Parish in Somerset County for the Province of Maryland. Per William Stoughton."

William Stoughton, a vestryman of the parish, was the husband of Ann Elzey, daughter of Arnold Elzey of Almodington, and the grandfather of the wife of Levin Winder, the first of Somerset County's two governors of Maryland.

Because it is one of the oldest complete sets, this communion silver was displayed at Tiffany's in New York in 1889 during the General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church. Bishop Potter of New York wanted to purchase the set and offered $500 for it; but this and all other offers were refused.

The Queen Anne silver has not been publicly displayed or used in a church service for quite some time. The chalice is not the most convenient for use during communion services. According to the Rev. Ron Knapp of St. Andrew's, the chalice is extremely deep, causing some difficulty controlling the flow of wine from priest to communicant. Accordingly, the church rubric of 1720 read, "And here the priest to communicant. Accordingly, the church rubric of 1720 read, "And here the priest shall deliver the cup into their hands." This meant that the communicant took the cup into his own hands when receiving Holy Communion, in order to prevent a spill. Modern chalices are wider and more shallow, thus eliminating this difficulty.

The Queen Anne silver will be used during the 11 a.m. worship service at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church on April 9th. It will then be on public display during the Open House which follows from 1 to 4 p.m.

People help Costen Center with money, volunteer labor

The Costen Recreation Center located in Westover would like to take this opportunity to thank various organizations and individuals for their support.

The following organizations have sent contributions: VFW Post 827 in Crisfield, Elks Lodge in Crisfield, American Legion Post 16 in Crisfield, VFW Post 9505 in Princess Anne, American Legion Post 132 in Princess Anne, Kiwanis Club in Pocomoke, and the Community Foundation in Salisbury. Special program mini grants were received from Somerset Art Council, Prevention Program in Worcester County, and Governor's Prevention Program in Annapolis.

Letters were recently mailed to individuals and businesses asking for contributions for operating expenses. Due to the high cost of gasoline for the van which transports the youth and cost of fuel oil, the center's number of days of operation from had to be cut back from four to two days a week.

The center is looking forward to the continued support of the Somerset Cooperative Extension and in the near future the Somerset Health Department, Somerset Recreation Department and Somerset County Commissioners.

Costen Center will soon have completed their new computer lab. A grant from the Community Foundation was given for the heating system, air conditioner, computer, printer and carpeting. Butch Nutter volunteered the rewiring for the computers. The University of Maryland Eastern Shore and the Somerset Cooperative Extension donated the computers. The interior of the lab needs building materials such as insulation, wallboard, a door, and 15 computer work stations. After receiving the donations or building materials the center will have volunteers complete the physical labor. We hope to have the lab completed for before the end of May.

The Pocomoke Police Department, Natural Resource Police, 4-H office and the Pocomoke Kiwanis will begin a program in April called "Hooked on Fishing, Not on Drugs" which will include fishing, water safety and other outdoor skills. This program will be offered on Thursday during the months of April, June and July. The Natural Resource Police will also have their annual Fishing Rodeo at Costen Recreation Center on Saturday May 20. For more information call Mrs. Cortman at 410-957-0129 by March 31.

The Costen Center was recently featured on WBOC Delmarva Heart and Soul. Contributions are needed. All contributions are tax deductible to Costen Recreation Center, Inc., 8158 Cottman Lane, Westover, MD 21871 in C/O Georganna Cottman. For more information call 410-957-0129.

Consolidation will kill the dream

Editor:

Basketball is an art form. Those of you that may not agree with that statement have not sat on the bleachers or in an arena and watched a perfectly executed lay-up shot. The stretch of the legs as the body gains momentum as it methodically moves down the court towards the basket. The feel of your hand on the leather as your eyes make the shot even before your legs spring from the floor. The slow extension of the arm as your body starts to rotate. The ball gently slides across the backboard as your body glides under the board and finishes its rotation. You hear the golden "swoosh" as the ball drops through the net, the crowd cheers, and the cheerleaders jump for joy with pom-poms waving. You move back down the court with that resounding "YES" going through your head. If you are or have ever been a basketball player, there is no greater feeling than perfecting the lay-up shot, or watching a ball you just release, net the basket from near center court. No greater feeling except winning a championship.

Crisfield High School won the Class 1A Championship this year, but it will not be the first trophy that sits in the trophy case for the same honor. Back in 1961 and 1964 when the same trophy was won, it was known as the Class C Championship. Basketball has been a way of life in Crisfield for almost half a century when the first championship was won by the Crabbers in 1957. One of the first things a youngster asked for besides a bicycle and a pair of roller skates, was a basketball. Hoops graced garages, sides of buildings and polls all over town. Basketball courts graced the playgrounds of the elementary schools and every child who had a Dad put one up at home know exactly how many feet from the ground the rim had to be placed. Foul lines were marked on the ground with sticks taken from the branches of a nearby tree. "Five Out" was as popular a game then as computer games are to the kids of today. You played basketball at "recess," "lunch time" and after school. It was not just a sport, it was a life-style.

Basketball in the art world is a top seller. Major department stores all over the country sell posters of the major players. Even after retirement, you will still see posters of Michael Jordan everywhere. Artists continue to paint the greats and produce limited and open editions by the thousands of Barkley, Byrd, Ewing, Irving, Kareem, Majic Bill Russell, etc. Even Bill Bradley posters are popping up again—no mystery as to the why's and wherefore's there.

Michael Jordan has been elected by numerous polls, coaches, players, sports casters, and fans as perhaps the greatest basketball player that has ever played the game. High school and college students for years have aspired to such greatness. Children look up to champions. We have seen champions in our own back yards. We have watched them play on the court of Crisfield High School. We have seen Crisfield bring home the state championship trophy more than any other high school, not only in their class, but in the area.

If our schools are consolidated in Somerset County, the continuation of that dream at Crisfield High School will be no more. Crisfield youngsters will lose their local heroes and basketball as Crisfield has always known it, will exist no more. Heroes will be national ones that they buy posters of and hang on their walls instead of a fond memory of their local hero on the basketball team who taught them how to release the ball for the extra point at the foul line or execute that perfect lay-up.

Ethanol should replace MTBE

Editor:

There has been considerable interest in the media about water contamination from the gasoline additive MTBE. There is a solution to this serious problem. Ethanol. Ethanol is a renewable fuel resource that is made from corn, wheat, or most any starch-based product. It can be added to gasoline to provide the same air quality benefits as MTBE without the environmental risks. The best part of this great product is that ethanol is available right here in the United States. (Almost 50 percent of MTBE is imported.)

Not only is it a safe, and an environmentally friendly fuel resource, its use could greatly improve sagging grain prices in this country. Currently, grain prices have hit an all time low, causing great strain on farmers today. Coincidentally, gas prices are again rising beyond belief.

Studies have shown that the nation could be solely using ethanol as the required gasoline additive by the year 2003 with little or no strain on the market. Additionally, at today's prices, the use of ethanol would cost no more and more possibly less than MTBE.

Those who depend on farm income are struggling to hang on. More and more farms are being sold for development. The "family farm" can't hold on unless we make some important changes in our government and its support of agriculture.

Ethanol surely isn't a cure-all for the state of agriculture, but its use throughout the country surely is a step in the right direction.

I encourage everyone to take time and find out about the crisis. Call your local legislators and give support for the use of ethanol.

Wet spring keeps bees from doing their job

By JOHN V. DENNIS

In addition to the hardships we are having from a cool, very wet spring, there is one that people rarely think about. This is the fact that bees do not go about their business of pollinating flowers in rainy, cool weather.

Although some flowers are self-pollinating and others receive pollen carried by the wind, most fruit-producing trees in orchards and many farm crops, including alfalfa and clover, depend on bees for pollination. Without the pollen carried by bees, butterflies, some other insects, and even hummingbirds from male flowers to female flowers, the plants cannot produce seeds or fruit.

For beekeepers, who make a portion of their livelihood from selling honey, a cool, wet spring is bad news indeed. There are about 300,000 people in the United States who keep bees. Most of them are hobbyists who maintain from one to 10 hives.

Beekeeping can be conducted almost anywhere, including backyards in Princess Anne. I recall that formerly a beehive was maintained in a yard across from us on Beechwood Street. There were also hives at the UMES agricultural campus. These hives have been removed. This means that we have fewer honey bees to pollinate flowers.

The honeybee was introduced to this country from Europe many years ago. The honey that is stored in hives to supply food for the bees during the winter months is normally more than the bees need. The beekeeper, wearing protective clothing to keep from being stung, will open the beehive and remove combs full of honey. Beeswax, a commercial product, is a by-product.

The spring months of March and April are times of the year when bees are particularly hard pressed to find nectar and pollen. Not used in making honey, pollen is stored in special cells and eaten by members of the colony.

Pollen supplies bees with their sole source of protein as well as some minerals and vitamins.

On the few sunny days we've had, honey bees were seen going to the early blossoms of the red maple, redbud, flowering quince, primrose, and daffodil. Bumblebees visit many of the same flowers. But, unlike the gregarious honey bees that live in colonies, bumblebees are loners. Only the queen survives the winter. She stores a small amount of honey in the burrow where she spends the winter. In early spring, she may be out gathering nectar and pollen in cool, damp weather when honeybees are staying in their hives. Bumblebees store only enough honey for their own use, but they're good pollinators, probing deeper into flowers than honeybees.

The fine grains of yellow pollen that bees get from flowers provide them with food but are a nuisance, and often a health risk to people. Earlier this spring so much pollen rained down from a cedar tree in our yard that cars parked nearby were covered with it. I had to wash the pollen off with a hose. And for hay fever sufferers pollen getting into the respiratory system causes sneezing, runny nose and watery eyes. People may be allergic to some kinds of pollen in early fall, is one of the worse kinds. I consider myself fortunate in not being subject to discomfort from pollen. Those who are sufferers can often obtain relief from antihistamines. The first step is to see your doctor.

All this rain we are having is helping keep pollen out of the air. Many people, therefore, are breathing easier. But the weather has been hard on honey bees and bumble bees.

An Eye On Art

Select packing materials carefully

By PAM MCCREADY

Previously we discussed the importance of using acid-free materials when framing and storing your artwork. The same is true when selecting appropriate packing materials for shipping. The selection of these materials for travel may be the greatest risk factor when it comes to possible damage to your art. One can take the most controlled environment and do one's best to control the variables, but "Freddie" as we call him in the art industry, will always find a way to rear his ugly head and ruin everything.

Weather and movement will play havoc with the stability of your art. Proper packing materials can reduce these stresses and keep "Freddie" at bay.

Keep your art free of dust and dirt, pad it, and protect it from water and spills. This is the true objective of proper wrapping.

First wrap your art in soft, acid-free, moisture-absorbent materials tissue paper will do nicely—acid-free tissue paper. This absorbs moisture that may accumulate due to changes in temperature and humidity.

Second, wrap in a plastic shield in case of accidental flooding or spills. Because plastic can also trap moisture in it, it is vital to wrap art in a moisture-absorbent material first.

Art objects are generally the only art that should be wrapped in plastic sheeting. Plastic can attract dust and dirt to the surface as well as promoting static electricity. Never use plastic to wrap unframed works of art on paper. This is especially true of pastels or any powdery pigment. Static electricity will cause these to flake off. Plastic can also fuse with varnish and acrylic paint, especially under high temperatures or humidity. Be sure to wrap these with glassine before wrapping in plastic. Extreme changes in the environment should be avoided whenever possible.

Polyethylene foam, such as Ethafoam, provide an anti-static as well as a padded environment. Ethafoam is available in flexible sheeting and in blocks. Bubble wrap is also popular. They both provide waterproofing and padding. Always use bubble wrap with the bubble side out or away from the object of art. Corners of unframed and framed paintings should be padded with paper or strips of felt, and cut to fit over the primary wrapping.

Unframed works should be wrapped in acid-free tissue and placed in acid-free boxes or portfolios. Foamcore or fiberboard are also suitable materials for creating a protective barrier. One simple rule is vital. Keep similar size works together when packaging works of art on paper.

Works framed behind glass should have the glass removed and replaced with Plexiglas, or taken apart, wrap the glass carefully in separate, padded wrapping, or use masking tape on the glass. Taping will hold jagged pieces together should there be breakage, but will not make the glass stronger. Apply the tape in a crisscross pattern on the surface of the glass with the ends of the tape turned upward for easy removal. Remove by pulling back the tape remains close to the glass—not at a 90 degree angle. This prevents undue stress on the glass. Extra care is needed when packaging art behind glass. A note of caution. If glass is replaced with Plexiglas, do not tape. The adhesive is extremely difficult to remove.

Artwork should be wrapped carefully and with ample padding. Do not tape directly to artwork. Use a moisture barrier followed by a waterproof material. Following these simple steps will go a long way to ensure that your art arrives safely and in good condition.

A SECOND TIME AROUND

Family man, golfer, businessman... 72-year-old Edwin James of Bridgeville, Delaware leads a busy life. Not even a quadruple bypass could slow him down. And he would know—he's been through it twice.

The Peninsula Heart Center's Dr. Nicholas Ogburn successfully performed Edwin's first quadruple bypass surgery more than nine years ago. So when Edwin started to suffer chest pain last fall, there was no question where he would seek treatment.

"The Peninsula Heart Center was the only choice for me. The services and technology are the most advanced today, and the staff was wonderful. And because it's so close to home, being at Peninsula Regional made life easier for my family and friends."

Edwin was also pleased that endoscopic removal of his leg vein—a new technique performed by Ty Huskey, PA—eliminated a long incision and reduced scarring.

Today, Edwin, who never plans to retire, is back at work and playing golf again. He and Florence, his golf partner and wife of 51 years, are grateful to the Peninsula Heart Center for his renewed health—a second time around.

The care Edwin James received is just one example of the advanced technology and quality services the Heart Center provides to all its patients. Peninsula Heart Center—The Center of Excellence for Cardiac Care on the Delmarva Peninsula.

POLICE REPORT

Burglaries

Maryland State Police are investigating several burglaries at weekend and summer homes in the Marion area. In the latest reported burglary that took place between March 15 and 17, a large quantity of fishing tackle was taken, police said. Also stolen were several hunting rifles and shotguns, video games, boat equipment and supplies. Anyone with information in these cases is asked to call state police at 410-651-3101. Tips will remain confidential.

Assault on police officer

Edward Randolph Hindle, 64, of Hill Lane, Crisfield, was charged with hindering a police officer, resisting arrest and second-degree assault on a police officer while he was being served a court-ordered eviction of a residence on March 20, according to the Somerset County Sheriff's Office. Hindle is accused of refusing to leave the premises, and of becoming disorderly and of assaulting a deputy. The deputy who was serving the eviction notice was assisted by neighbors in handcuffing Hindle, according to the Sheriff's Office. Hindle was released on personal recognizance.

Drug possession

Amy Elrod Frances, 19, of Eden and James Correll Mackey, 18, of Chanmore Way, Princess Anne, were charged with possession of marijuana March 20 following an investigation into a suspicious vehicle parked on the railroad tracks near Arden Station Road, according to the Somerset County Sheriff's Office. Frances and Mackey are accused of smoking marijuana inside the vehicle, police said. Both were released on personal recognizance.

Warrants

The Somerset County Sheriff's Office served arrest warrants to the following people:

• Virginia Marie James, 58, Myrtle Street, Crisfield; March 15; two counts uttering a bad check; released on personal recognizance.

• Marquette Paige, 20, Maple Street, Crisfield; March 17; failure to appear in Circuit Court concerning nonpayment of child support; $500 bond.

• Darnell Anthony Davis, 29, Sinclair Lane, Baltimore; March 17; failure to appear in Circuit Court concerning nonpayment of child support; $10,000 bond.

• Hope Rushawn Schoolfield, 21, Locust Street, Crisfield; March 18; failure to appear in District Court concerning possession of marijuana; $500 bond.

• Kevin Lamont Hitch, 25, Jones Factory Road, Upper Fairmount; March 22; failure to appear in Circuit Court concerning nonpayment of child support; $1,500 bond.

CRIME SOLVERS INC. of Somerset County will pay the entire amount of $1,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the people responsible for the following homicides:

Jacqueline Rogers Tilghman of Princess Anne was last seen alive in the Greenwood section outside Princess Anne on Dec. 27, 1995. Her body was found on Marumco Road in Marion Station.

David Bell of Chesapeake Avenue, Crisfield, was found dead in his residence in February 1997.

If you have information on either of these homicides, call Crime Solvers at 410-651-4271.

Farmers back right to farm law be submitted to the board in writing through the county's planning office.

The ordinance also requires sellers of residential properties that are located in agricultural zones to give a disclosure statement to buyers outlining inconveniences and discomforts, such as noise, odors, flies, dust, spraying by aircraft and operation of heavy equipment that occur — sometimes 24 hours a day — in farming operations.

Realtors in the county would be given copies of the disclosure forms to attach to contracts of sale on residential properties in agricultural zones.

The ordinance was drafted at the request of the County Commissioners, three of whom are farmers, and is similar to ones already enacted in other Maryland counties where new housing built alongside existing farms has created problems and, in some cases, led to lawsuits.

Written comment on the right to farm ordinance will be accepted through April 3, and may be mailed to the Somerset County Commissioners, P.O. Box 37, Princess Anne, Md. 21853.

Hydrant crash

Princess Anne police and members of the Princess Anne Volunteer Fire Company responded to the scene of this unusual accident March 18 on Somerset Avenue at South Street. The car, driven by Thomas Benjamin Beckett, 28, of Greenwood School Road, Princess Anne, was traveling south on Somerset Avenue when it struck the barriers around this fire hydrant and landed on top of it. Beckett was taken to Peninsula Regional Medical Center where he was treated for chest pains.

Day care holds 'senior prom'

The Westover Adult Medical Day Care, located at 8395 Old Westover Marion Road, held a "Senior Prom" for its clients, featuring music and dancing.

The center, which opened last year, has met with great success in the community. Over 55 individuals come to the center for assistance with personal care and daily activities, social work services, nutritious meals and snacks, therapeutic activities, and other services. A majority of the clients are senior citizens.

Adult Medical Day Care has been referred to as one of "health care's best kept secrets." Within this single community-based service, the physical, medical, psychological and social needs of an individual are addressed by a team of professionals working together to assist the participant and his/her family. Adult day care services strive to lessen the burden of caregiving, support the family and promote independence. By achieving these goals, centers are often able to delay and/or prevent nursing home placement.

The Westover Adult Medical Day Care Center welcomes mentally or physically challenged adults age 16 or older, who need medical supervision and social/physical stimulation.

The April screenings will be held on Friday, April 14, at Peninsula Regional's Primary Care at 1201 Pemberton Drive, #2B in Salisbury, from 9 a.m. until noon and on Wednesday, April 19, at the Vascular Lab at the Medical Center from 8 a.m. until noon.

Hip pain seminar planned April 13

Melanie White, RN of Peninsula Regional Medical Center's Peninsula Joint Replacement Center will present the free seminar "Hip Pain: Your Treatment Options" on Thursday, April 13.

White, a orthopedic resource nurse, will discuss what causes hip pain, what medical, surgical, and rehabilitation treatment options exist, and what patients can expect, both before and after surgery if an orthopedic specialist recommends a total hip replacement at the Peninsula Joint Replacement Center. "If you're over the age of 55 and have hip pain, stiffness or swelling, chances are you have arthritis of the hip," said White. "The good news is that many treatments are now available to control these symptoms, allowing you to move easily and without pain once again."

The free seminar will be held in the auditorium of Peninsula Regional Medical Center's Avery W. Hall Education Center at the corner of Locust Street and Waverly Drive in Salisbury from 11 a.m. until noon. White will be available to answer questions either during or immediately following her presentation.

After treatment with our lithotripter (Greek for stone crusher), all that's left of a kidney stone is mere dust.

While our patient reclines comfortably, an x-ray machine aims the lithotripter's series of pulsating waves toward the stone - reducing it without invasive surgery. The advantages of lithotripsy are many: no pain or scarring, minimal anesthesia, and usually just a few days recovery. Since the Peninsula Stone Center has the area's only on-site lithotripter, treatment can happen when you need it, 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

To learn more, contact your physician. If you need a physician, call our Physician Referral Line at 410-543-7090 or 1-888-290-7090.

THANK YOU DOCTORS.

Thank you for all of the times you were taken away from your own families to care for our families. The times you were called to a patient's side at 2 a.m., missed Thanksgiving dinner, gave up those precious moments with your own child at a soccer game or recital to care for someone else's child. Your selfless devotion to your community and the compassion and care you provide is sometimes ignored, but always appreciated.

March 30 is National Doctors' Day. Let's all take the time to do what we should do daily, and thank our doctors for their sacrifices and dedication to their patients and our community.

Art awards

Barbara Bloodworth, right, of the Shoreland Club presents awards to Greenwood Middle School students Kasey Green (first place), second from right, and Tekeya Waters (second place) for their artwork entered in a contest sponsored by the Eastern Shore District Maryland Federated Women's Clubs. Their work will go on to the state level contest. With them is art teacher Janice Humphrey, left. A student at Woodson Middle School in Crisfield, Sevonnie Whittington, was awarded an honorable mention in the contest.

WEEKLY SPORTS WRAPUP

The Washington High School boys may have found their niche in high school athletics on the track. After struggling through football, soccer, and basketball seasons it was a great day for the Jaguars as they raced to victory over Wicomico and Easton High Schools on Thursday. "The guys are on a big high right now," said Coach David Kroon.

The Jags took first in nearly every event, both on the track and in field events. Guy Nzamba led on the track with firsts in the high hurdles and high jump, on relay teams. Taron Stewart, participating in his first track meet ever, took first with a 17' 10" long jump. Nzamba participated in States last year.

The girls were led by Jana White, with three firsts, Carlisa Ward, and Merritt Smith who took first in two events each. White, a standout basketball player, was the lead runner on the Cross Country team last fall, making the Bayside Conference 1st Team all-stars. "I made it to the State Finals in hurdles a year ago."

Baseball

Stephen Decatur 10 - CHS 0
It was a tough opener for CHS as they lost to S. Decatur. "I think they were a little nervous," said Coach Clint Sterling. "We made some physical errors, but the score was only 4 - 0 going into the last inning."

Edwin Gaines was the only CHS batter to get on base when he reached first on a walk.

Parkside 17 - CHS 0

Jamie Aswell and Derrick Turpin each had one hit to lead the Crabbers against baseball power Parkside. "Parkside is one of the best teams in the Bayside Conference," said Coach Sterling. "They really hit the ball. We hit the ball, but right at them." Sterling thought it was a good effort for his young squad despite the score.

CHS 9 - WHS 2

CHS scored in every inning except the 4th to record their first win of the season. "We got good pitching and we made the plays today," said Coach Sterling.

Evan Ward got the win for the Crabbers, giving up just 4 hits and 2 walks, and striking out 6. At the plate Ward hit 3 doubles, scored 4 runs, and had 3 stolen bases.

For Washington, Charles Bridell led with two hits. Scott Stuckey hit a double, and Tony Bedsworth went 1 - 2 with 2 RBIs.

Stephen Decatur 12 - WHS 9

WHS was behind by only one run in the first, but failed to score in the 2nd, 3rd, and 4th innings in their loss to S. Decatur. The Jaguars came back with a nice rally in the 5th, on RBI singles by Amos Fischer and Scott Stuckey, and a sacrifice fly by Colin Thomas, but it wasn't enough. The Jags had nine hits, including a double by Scott Stuckey. Stuckey, Fischer, and Tony Bedsworth had two hits each.

Softball

Stephen Decatur 9 - WHS 6

"It was a good opener," said Coach Lindsay Nelson. "We missed some opportunities to get the runs we needed to win. We had good hitting but we left 12 runners on base." Crystal Pines and Melissa Webster had two hits each. Erica Nelson and Danielle White each had one hit. Ashley Boston recorded 5 strike outs on the mound.

Stephen Decatur 18 - CHS 0

The CHS softball team suffered from a case of first game jitters in their opening day loss to S. Decatur. "They had a big first inning, scoring 12 runs, but it wasn't bad after that," said Coach Melvin Higgs. "We had some chances to score but couldn't get the timely hits."

Parkside 36 - CHS 1

"They just hit the ball," said Coach Higgs.

WHS 19 - CHS 10

Erica Nelson had two hits to lead the Lady Jaguars to their first victory of the year. Ashley Boston and Sarah Shores combined for 5 strike outs on the mound.

For Crisfield, it was an encouraging effort for a young team with two Freshman pitchers and no Seniors. After scoring just one run in two games earlier in the week the CHS bats came to life. CHS out-hit WHS 12 - 8, but walks took their toll on the two young pitchers.

Coach Higgs was encouraged with his youngsters. "Tiffany Howard pitched her best game ever," he said. "Charlotte Wilson is doing an extremely good job quarterbacking from catcher." Janise Bell and Corey Brice each had doubles for CHS.

Tennis

Boys: Stephen Decatur 7 - CHS 0

Girls: Stephen Decatur 6 - CHS 1

Sarah Mae Caldwell defeated her opponent 8 - 0, to record the only victory for CHS on the hard-court on Thursday at Crisfield.

Boys: Parkside 5 - CHS 2

Bryan Johnson and Tyler Ryan both defeated their opponents 9 - 7 to lead the CHS boys against Parkside on Friday.

Girls: Parkside 6 - CHS 1

Krispen Parke won 8 - 6 for the girls.

WHS alumni to give $500 scholarship

Applicants must be a student whose parents, grandparents or guardian attended or would have

The scholarship was started in 1992 when the class of 1957 decided to organize a homecoming of several classes to make available a scholarship for students whose parents, grandparents or guardian attended or would have graduated from Washington High School by year 1969.

Applications are available at Washington High School, or contact Nancy D. Ashley at 410-548-2023.

The deadline for submission is April 30.

Students learn about dental hygiene

Students in Mrs. Ennis' second grade lab at Princess Anne Primary School were taught about the importance of maintaining good dental health.

Karla Beardsley, dietician from the Somerset County Health Department, and Lisa Dennis, 4-H Extension Agent for Somerset County, visited the lab on March 24 to discuss with students the importance of taking care of their teeth.

Students were instructed on ways to prevent cavities, the anatomy of a tooth, and the proper way to brush. Students had an opportunity to eat a peanut butter cracker sandwich and then use a slice of apple as an edible toothbrush to clean the peanut butter and cracker from their teeth.

Students were amazed at the results. Food pictures were passed out and students had to determine whether the food was a food cleaner or a food attacker.

Harry the Horse served as a model for the proper way to brush your teeth.

Students were also told to do the following things to prevent cavities in their teeth:

- Do not snack frequently
- Avoid sugary snacks that dissolve slowly in the mouth
- Brush as soon as you can after snacking
- Avoid carbonated drinks

● End meals with snacks with tooth cleaners that scrub off the teeth while crunching.

At the end of the lesson students received free toothbrushes and toothpaste as well as a parent sheet on good foods for children and a coloring sheet revealing a healthy snack to eat.

Somerset County Arts Council organizes children's theater

"It's not just about visual art," says Shirley Ennis. Ennis is treasurer of the Somerset County Arts Council and is heading the planning committee for a children's theater program to be created by the Arts Council. The Council wants to encourage all the arts, including music, dance, writing and theater.

Two meetings, one in Princess Anne and one in Crisfield have been held to discover and encourage community interest in children's theater. As a result of these meetings a steering committee has been formed to develop a program of theater workshops for children during the coming summer culminating in a performance. These workshops will teach all aspects of theater arts and insure the participation of all children in the final production.

The Arts Council is planning a Children's Art Festival for sometime in the future. This will include all forms of art produced by Somerset County children.

As a result of the two meetings held a list of interested adults has been compiled and three budding thespians have come forth. The Arts Council is continuing its search for people interested and willing to help in this project. For more information call the Council office at 410-968-2787.

Currently at the Burton Avenue Gallery in Crisfield is an exhibit titled "Anything Of The Green". Stop by and see hand woven garments designed with Celtic motifs by Jeanne du Nord Frank, some Irish garden ornaments and other work inspired by the Emerald Isle.

The gallery is open Monday through Saturday 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Beside the current exhibit there are water fowl carvings, other art work and a gift shop. Visitors are always warmly welcomed. Stop in and get to know the organization working to promote all the arts in Somerset County.
